I am a quadrillionaire chapter 1919-After David left, Sahar also prepared return to the Simmons Continent.

He was not in the mood to delve into the specific details for David's sudden departure.

He was attacked again just after casting the Tri-Element Slash, which aggravated his unhealed injuries. Therefore, he had to go into seclusion and recuperate as soon as possible.

Originally, Sahar's injury had reached the final critical moment, and it would not have taken long for him to recover to his peak.

After this battle, it would take some more time.

The reason was that the Tri-Element Slash did not work, and he was attacked.

This made him very depressed.

He used this trick before, but it was so invincible that his opponents would all meet their end.

Their Eternal Golden Body would be broken, and the caster would be seriously injured.

However, today it failed.

Even until now, Sahar did not know what method David used to resist his Tri-Element Slash.

It seemed that this kid was not a simple character; He had a lot of trump cards.

If Sahar met him again next time, he had to be careful and not be careless.

After glancing at the location where David tore open the space, Sahar turned and walked towards the Simmons Continent.

Moments later, there was a roar from the Simmons Continent.

"David, this is absolutely irreconcilable!"

It was clear that Sahar had just learned about the death of the cores of his family.

Originally, his family which had two Saints was on the rise.

Now, only Sahar was left.

The cores that were Sovereign Rankers were almost all wiped out.

The few that were spared were those who were performing missions outside and did not come back.

The strength and prestige of the Simmons family would surely drop.

How could Sahar, the founder of the Simmons family, accept this?

Moreover, the instigator of this incident was David.

If David did not come to them, how would the Simmons family fall to this state?

Sahar did not care what kind of grievances Nek and David had.

His heart was full of monstrous hatred for David.

He vowed that when he recovered from his injuries and returned to his peak, he would make that kid pay the price.

Next Sahar began issuing a series of orders.

He selected the new cores of the family.

Due to a lack of talent, many collateral family members were elected.

This delighted them.

To prove that Sahar made the right choice, they asked all the members of the Simmons family who were away to come back.

The Simmons Continent then went into lockdown.

No one was allowed in or out except the returning Simmons family.

After giving all orders, Sahar went into seclusion again.

This time, he would do anything necessary to heal his injury first. He did not care about the cost nor the requirements.

The family did not even have many Sovereign Rankers.

So, what was the use of keeping those treasures of heaven and earth?

Could they cultivate another Saint in a short time?

Sahar initially had kept a lot of treasures for the development of the family so they could cultivate more talents.

In addition, he felt that since Star Kingdom established the Saints Association with Sid, the number one, as its righteous leader, Star Kingdom would inevitably prohibit large-scale civil unrest, and it would fall into a period of peace for a long time.

Therefore, he did not use those treasures of heaven and earth and they were all reserved for the talented younger generations of the family.

Reality was similar to what Sahar expected.

Star Kingdom entered a period of peace under Sid's oversight.

There were no major wars.

However, Sahar did not expect that during this period of peace, the Simmons family would be the first to be attacked and Nek became the first Saint to fall in Star Kingdom in so many years.
