I am a quadrillionaire chapter 2173-Thor looked at David seriously.

Judging from his outfit, he appeared to be the son from a affluent family, not someone who would go back on his words.

Therefore, he should be serious.

In the end, Thor chose to trust David and began to gather people whom Pebbles had stolen from on the trading street.

As soon as the people heard that they could get compensated for their stolen things, they rushed to Treasure Pavilion as soon as possible.

Everyone was distressed when their treasures were stolen. At the same time, they felt that this little girl had a lot of background and dared not do too much, so they could only hope that one day her family would come to pay back for what she did.

However, they did not expect this day to come so soon.

Soon, a team of twenty to thirty people gathered at Treasure Pavilion.

These people all claimed that their treasures had been stolen by Pebbles. However, no one could confirm the legitimacy of their claims.

Pebbles had eaten all the stolen treasures to restore her soul power.

“Master David, these people are all the owners of the treasures stolen by Pebbles on the trading street. They’re all here,” Thor said politely.

All eyes in the hall were on David.

As soon as they entered the door, they saw the little girl who had stolen their things in a young man’s arms.

Since he was so intimate with that damned girl, he must be her family.

Judging from the other party’s outfit and extraordinary temperament, they were right.

The background behind the little girl was not simple.

Fortunately, even if their treasures were stolen, they did not do anything horrible to the little girl.

They did not hurt her before understanding the full situation.

Hence, when she appeared again, they never did anything too horrible to her.

Otherwise, they might be in trouble today.

There was nothing David could do about Pebbles' refusal to get off him.

He tried to remove Pebbles several times, but she always refused.

So, David could only let her do what she wanted.

With David's strength, a little girl hanging on his body would not affect his movements.

Looking at the twenty or thirty people gathered in the hall, David said, "First of all, I want to apologize to everyone on behalf of Pebbles. Children are ignorant, and when they see something they like, they try take it away and subsequently cause trouble for everyone. This time, Mr. Rivers called you all here so that I can compensate you all for your loss. For those whom Pebbles had stolen from, you can register yourselves with Mr. Rivers to list out what you've lost and how much they're worth. After this is done, I will pay for everything."

After saying that, David glanced at the crowd. Then, he changed his tone and continued, "But don't take me as a fool. I will pay what I should and not a penny less. However, if anyone dares to make false claims or exaggerate the value to scam me of more money, don't blame me if I am unkind."

After he finished speaking, the people in the hall of Treasure Pavilion suddenly felt the temperature drop sharply. They felt as if they were in extreme coldness.

They were shaking all over and they could not even move their bodies.

Everyone looked at David with horror on their faces.

'This person is so strong!

'He can make everyone motionless with his aura alone!'

Everyone here was a well-known figure in the trading street of Sole. Their strength was evident since they were able to thrive in this place. Hence, they were certainly not weak.

However, they were so overwhelmed by a young man who appeared out of nowhere that they could not lift their heads.

Even worse, they could not tell the true strength of their opponent.

'Thank God! Thank God!'

They felt glad that they did not do anything horrible to the little girl.

If not, the consequences would have been dire.

They might not even have a chance to walk out of Treasure Pavilion.

David usually opted for diplomacy before violence.

He did not get his money from trees.

It came much easier than that.

Mainly, according to the rules of the system, it was not a transaction if he spent money and did not get the items. At most, this was a gift, and he would not get any lavish points for it.

He refused to be a foolish spendthrift if he could not get any lavish points.
