I am a quadrillionaire chapter 2184-After bending down and picking up Pebbles, she was startled and woke up.

She was very nervous at first, but when she opened her eyes and saw that it was David, she relaxed again and muttered, "Are you done with your practice? Are you injured?"

"I'm fine. How would I get hurt if no one disturbed me? Pebbles, didn't I tell you to rest in the room? Why did you come here? How can it be comfortable to sleep here?"

"I'm afraid that other people would disturb your practice and hurt you. So that's why I stood guard at the door. If anyone dared to disturb you, I would beat them up. No matter what, I can't let others disturb you." The girl raised her fist, looking fierce.

David burst out laughing.

At the same time, he was very pleased.

He had not wasted his time treating this girl well.

At least she was still concerned for him.

He would not have to worry about raising someone ungrateful in the future.

Whether it was making friends or employing people, what David valued most was their character.

They could be selfish since there was a saying that said, 'Unless a person looks out for themselves, Heaven and Earth will destroy them'.

In the context of modern society, it was impossible and unrealistic to ask everyone to be selfless and sacrifice themselves to help others.

However, there must be a limit to everything, and they must still have a righteous worldview.

David could forgive Pebbles for stealing.

After all, she was young and ignorant. When she saw something good for her body, she would instinctively want to take it for herself.

Moreover, the little girl also said that she would repay them double in the future, and David believed her.

However, if Pebbles hurt the guards who blocked her or even killed someone while she was stealing, she would be too far gone.

If she had such disregard for life, David would not let the little girl stay by his side.

Some things could be forgiven, and other things could not.

Although Pebbles was young, she was not weak at all.

When the little girl was resting, it took a lot of effort for David to remove her arms from around his neck.

Not only that, David could even feel that there seemed to be an extremely powerful force inside Pebbles' small body.

So if she genuinely wanted to hurt someone, or even kill them, she could definitely do so.

However, the little girl never did this.

Even when she was chased and trapped, she only wanted to escape.

Even if she was hurt by angry bosses, she never fought back.

It was precisely because of these reasons that David decided to adopt her and allow her to be by his side and educate her well so that she would not deviate from the right path.

'Thank you, Pebbles, you're such a good girl! But if I have to go into seclusion again in the future, you can rest in the room. You don't need to stay here. I can protect myself.' David hugged the little girl with one hand and caressed her head with the other while he smiled at her.

Pebbles simply shook her head in refusal.

“No! I must stay outside the door. No one can disturb or hurt you. If anyone dares to do this, I will beat them to death.”

After the little girl finished speaking, she raised her little fist again.

“Pebbles, be a good girl! Let’s not resort to violence. We have to convince people with reason, understand?”

“What’s that?” Pebbles looked confused.

“You have to reason with them first.”

“What if I do that and they don’t listen?”

“Uh... If they don’t listen, then you can beat them up.”

I got it! I should talk to them first, but if they don’t listen, I can beat them up!”

“Uh... I guess.”
