I am a quadrillionaire chapter 2377-David froze. He was thinking about the identity of the hidden person in his heart.

That sense of familiarity was unmistakable.

However, David could not remember where he met this person.

He could not associate her with Pebbles because Pebbles was just a teenage girl when she left.

David was cautious and did not dare expose his strength to confront Elora head-on.

If he was not careful, he would not be David Lidell and probably would not be alive now.

It was his prudent character that allowed David to come all the way from Earth to Star Kingdom, and become an existence admired by countless.

Seeing David suddenly in a daze, Beanie asked, "Master David, are you okay?"

"Oh! I'm fine! I just remembered something from the past."

David, who was interrupted, did not continue.

Since the other party had already left, all was fine now.

He believed that it would not be long before he could achieve that kind of strength.

If they met again, he would surely go up and ask the other party's identity.

"Master David, let's set off now!"

"Okay! On arriving in Amber City, I'm going to need you and Rivers to work hard. I may need to stay in seclusion for quite some time in the future. So if you need anything, compile a list and I'll settle them once I'm done," David said.

Amber City should be his last stop in The Spirit Cage.

Once he arrived, he would go back to the real world most of the time to be with everyone since Pebbles was not around anymore.

At most, he would come back occasionally to see if there were any problems that he needed to take care of.

After all, Thor still had to keep spending money to help him earn lavish points.

So, he decided to inform Beanie first.

“Don’t worry, Master David! We will do our part well and won’t let you worry. You can go stay in seclusion with peace of mind!”

“Okay! Let’s go! Let’s see what Amber City, one of the eight main cities of The Spirit Cage, looks like.”

The team continued on their way.

Throughout the journey, David could only stay in the carriage and could not return to the real world.

It was because he experimented with it.

He would return to where he was when he left The Spirit Cage.

This would not change and it would also be unaffected by how far the carriage traveled.

For example, if David left The Spirit Cage while the carriage was moving, he would not reappear in the carriage when he returned. He would reappear in the last place the carriage was when he left.

So, he could only leave at night when they stopped to rest.

Night fell and the three carriages found a place to rest.

After David told Beanie not to disturb him, he exited The Spirit Cage.

David opened his eyes in the Iridescent Sect of Star Kingdom.

Looking at the thirty delicate wooden boxes in front of him, a smile appeared on his face.

These were all the results of his hard work from working day and night for more than a month.

Fortunately, his research was successful and he managed to create these.

From now on, he did not have to stay in Star Kingdom all the time to await the arrival of the Feather family.

He would just leave two small wooden boxes containing his clones here and Star Kingdom would be very safe.

The strongest member of the Feather family was just an Ancestral Deity.

Meanwhile, his clones had the combat power of the main form, which was a beginner Supreme Overlord.

An Ancestral Deity would be killed in seconds if they came here.

Even if the Feather family came out in full force, they would only be wiped out by the clones.

Now, he wanted to give out the small wooden boxes.

He wanted to give two to Sid so that he could guard the safety of Star Kingdom.
