

Read I Am A Quadrillionaire Chapter 2535

I am a quadrillionaire chapter 2535-“Who are you?” Agatha stared at David and asked in a deep voice.

“You old hag, isn’t your question a bit redundant? Who I am is none of your business. That direct descendant of your Marche family named Fabiola, the one who looks like a ball, disgusted me, so I killed her. Since you are here for revenge, you can take action now that I am here. I, David Lidell, will take whatever you throw at me” David replied with a sneer.

As soon as he said that, both Salem and Arian could not help but feel nervous for David.

Anyone with a discerning eye could tell that this old woman was extremely powerful and she was probably at the level of the grandmaster of the Marche family.

David was quite courageous for daring to scold her so directly.

“Your name is David, huh? Very good! Although I am quite old, there are not many in Leila who dare to call me an old hag and you are the youngest one.”

As Agatha spoke, she started recalling if there was a super family with the surname Lidell among Leila’s top ten or even top five forces.

In other words, was there any disciple whose surname was Lidell among those powerful experienced partial Overlords?

She could not think of any after thinking for a long time.

“Of course, I’m good! What’s wrong with calling you an old hag? I am already very nice for not calling you an old fart.” David did not show her any respect at all.

“David, who are the seniors in your family? Who is your master?” Agatha asked.

She pretended not to hear David’s disrespect.

The most important thing now was to figure out David’s identity and how David blocked her attack.

Agatha did not expect this at all.

She had nothing to do so she came out to solve a little trouble for the Marche family, and yet she met this troublesome person.

“Say, you’re such a busybody, you dinosaur! You want to know everything, but why should I tell you? Also, do you still want to avenge Fabiola? If you don’t, I’ll settle the score with you right now. You seriously injured my friend today, so if you don’t give me an explanation, don’t even think about leaving.”

At this time, David was extremely arrogant.

He was not scared of the collaboration between the Marche family and the Campbell family at all. Instead, he directly scolded them and caused the other party to be apprehensive of him.

Egan looked dumbfounded from the sidelines.

Who was Agatha?

She was one of the two partial Overlords of the Marche family.

David called her an old hag, an old fart, and a dinosaur and yet she was not doing anything to protect her dignity as a partial Overlord.

This was not right!

Did she find something wrong?

Sure enough, something was wrong with this kid.

Luckily the Campbell family did not take action against David first.

Otherwise, the consequences would have been unpredictable.

At this time, Egan was very grateful.

However, it did not last long. He suddenly thought of something and became nervous and concerned again.

Not only had he seriously injured Salem just now, but he had almost killed Arian as well.

And those two had an extraordinary relationship with David.

Obviously, David said that to seek justice for the two of them.

What should he do?

Egan looked at Agatha.

He thought to himself, 'Please, just kill him!

'You're a partial Overlord and yet you're not doing anything despite being provoked by a young man.

'Where is your dignity?'

Agatha was also a little angry. Perhaps it was because she felt that David was still not satisfied with small gains after she had conceded.

No matter what, she was still a partial Overlord.

There were people in Leila who could defeat her. However, if anyone wanted to kill her, aside from the five Leila rulers, only two or more partial Overlords joining forces could do that. No one could kill her one-on-one.

She did not rush to make a move because she was afraid of David's method of silently blocking her attack just now.

In fact, that was just Agatha's casual attack and it did not have one-tenth of its original strength.

Yet, the unknown was always a little daunting.

She would decide after she found out.

However, she did not expect David to be so shameless.

"David, since you are so rude, I will teach you a lesson today on behalf of your parents, you uneducated brat. I'll let you know how to respect your elders. If your parents know, they will thank me," Agatha said seriously.