I am a quadrillionaire chapter 2557-Amber City, The Spirit Cage.

As time went by, the city slowly returned to its usual calmness.

The big war that everyone imagined did not happen.

Jumbo Court was still operating as normal.

Only then did everyone react.

Since the boss behind Jumbo Court was David and he was the one who killed Perry and Fabiola, he must be very confident since Jumbo Court dared to acquire the properties in everyone's hands at the critical moment.

Otherwise, if a fight broke out, those properties would become worthless.

They could see that David's identity was not simple.

He remained unscathed even after the Marche and Campbell families worked together.

Even if he paid some price in secret, the power behind David was definitely at the same level as the two major families.

Otherwise, the two major families would not let this go so easily.

Sure enough, he was confident. No wonder he dared to kill Perry and Fabiola.

The expected war did not happen.

So the people who left The Spirit Cage to seek refuge began to come back one after another.

Naturally, they would want to buy back the properties they sold.

As a result, prices in Amber City skyrocketed again.

Jumbo Court could have cashed in on this opportunity.

However, when Thor asked David, the answer he got was different from what he expected.

David's answer was simple.

"Sell? You want to sell what I have? Continue to buy at a high price. I like the feeling of spending money."

Thor was not surprised at all.

In terms of spending money, his master had the temperament of a super-powerful hedonist.

He would only buy and not sell.

Even if his things were left untouched, he still would not sell them for money.

He had money, so he could afford to be so willful.

Now that David had spoken, Thor could only follow suit.

He continued to increase the purchase price, but unfortunately, business worsened day by day.

There were too few things on sale at this time.

Everyone was buying, not selling.

David idled his time away in The Spirit Cage.

After the little girl fell asleep in his arms, he turned on the system to see the changes in his lavish points.

Compared with previous days, the increase in his lavish points now was much slower.

After spending one million to upgrade Cloning to level 6, he had only accumulated hundreds of thousands of points until now.

The next breakthrough, whether it was Body, Mind, or Cloning, would require 10 million points.

The difference between hundreds of thousands and ten million was vast.

However, David was not in a hurry.

He felt that his strength was completely sufficient to deal with all crises and accidents.

His Mind was at Ancient level 10, he had the combat power of a partial Heavenly Overlord, and he had 81 clones.

No matter where he went, he would be a terrifying power that would frighten others.

He watched the little girl eat and sleep every day, and as she slept and ate, her body grew little by little.
