I am a quadrillionaire chapter 2700-If Elven Queen Isa had not led the Elves to maintain good relations with the major forces in Leila over the years, they would have been horribly bullied by the Vingean.

Before Isa took over as the Elven Queen, it was no exaggeration to say that the Elves were the cash cow of the Vingean.

The location between the two tribes was adjacent to each other.

So, it was easy for the Vingean to capture the Elven women.

More than half of the Elven women who appeared in underground auctions in the past were abducted by the Vingean.

Therefore, it was not an exaggeration to say that the Elves hate the Vingean deeply. >

In addition, the Vingean captured more than 30 thousand Elven women at one time and sold them to various parts of Leila. Hence, the blood feud between the two clans had escalated.

Over the years, Isa had been thinking of ways to teach the Vingean a profound lesson.

Even if she could not wipe them out, she would still need them to suffer a little.

Unfortunately, no force was willing to help the Elves.

And David was the only hope Isa saw.

Who would believe that a young man whose soul power could crush her, the Elven Queen, did not have a strong background?

Only Leila's top power could cultivate an heir like David.

She would get David into conflict with the Vingean and then her plan would work.

"Mother, David said he would be here soon," Evie replied.

“Soon? How soon is soon? More than a year has passed since he said he would come to participate in the sacrificial ceremony. It has been such a long time, and with David’s strength and identity, he should have arrived no matter where he is in Leila.”

“Mother, don’t worry. I know David. Since he said he would come, he will definitely come. And didn’t the people from all major forces come early for the Elves’ service? David is not coming for this, so of course, he will come on time.”

“But that plan cannot continue until David arrives. If he doesn’t come, all the previous preparations will be in vain.”

“Mom, why don’t we just forget it? After all, we don’t know David that well. What if he doesn’t have the background that you imagined? If that’s the case, aren’t we harming him?” Evie could not stop herself from talking her mother down.

She always felt that using David was not a good thing.

“Evie, why are you starting to waver again? Have you forgotten how many members of our clan were captured by those Vingean bastards, sold to various parts of Leila, and tortured to death?”

“I haven’t forgotten! But this is our blood feud and David should not be involved. We must use our own strength to take revenge and make the Vingean pay the price,” Evie replied seriously.

“Evie, you are so naive! If we could take revenge ourselves, how would the Vingean survive to this day? Besides, there is no way that the Vingean will allow us to develop to that point. If we want revenge, we can only ask for help from external forces. David is our only hope since I became the Elven Queen. I must not miss this chance,” Isa said firmly.

“But...”

“No buts! Evie, I can listen to you on other things, but you must listen to me on this matter because this is the only chance for the Elves to take revenge.”

Seeing that Isa was so determined and would not give in at all, Evie stopped trying to persuade her.

She knew that nothing she said at this moment was of any use. Her mother was determined to use David to help the Elves get revenge. Therefore, she could only pout and sulk.

Evie had a crush on David.

The other party not only saved her at the most dangerous moment, but he also sent her back safely.

Yet, she needed to deceive and use her savior now and it was very hard for Evie to accept.

With the Elves' blood feud on one hand and her savior on the other, Evie genuinely did not know how to choose.

Isa obviously also saw Evie's dilemma. So, she comforted softly, "Evie, don't worry! Judging from my experience, David must have a huge support behind him in order to grow to this point. The Vingean are by no means his opponents so he will be fine."

"But Mother, David is my savior. I don't want to deceive him, let alone take advantage of him," Evie said with a bitter expression.

"It'll be fine as long as it's so flawless that he can't tell." «
