

I am a quadrillionaire chapter 2725-Time passed minute by minute as they simply stared at each other.

David did not push Evie either.

He was quietly waiting for the other party's decision.

If Evie still did not want to say anything, David would not force her.

After all, if she still did not want to tell him at this point, it would mean that she genuinely did not want to tell him.

There was no use in continuing to press on.

Besides, David did not like to make things hard for his friends.

Evie struggled in her heart for a long time and finally decided to come clean.

David had already noticed so if they still proceeded according to the plan, David would definitely notice that something was wrong.

When the time came, not only would he refuse to help, but he might also view the Elves as his enemies.

For the Elves, not only would they fail in their revenge, but they would also lose a powerful friend. This was a losing gamble.

Evie took a deep breath to calm herself down. After that, she said slowly, "I'm sorry, David! I lied to you. In truth, I brought you out today for a purpose."

"You lied to me? For a purpose? What purpose?" David asked curiously.

Now that she had decided not to hide anything anymore but to come clean, Evie was no longer struggling.

Next, she revealed her mother, the Elven Queen's, plans.

Of course, she would not leave out the blood feud between the Elves and the Vingean.

After talking for half an hour, Evie told David everything.

During the process, David did not say a word and listened carefully to Evie's story.

When he heard that tens of thousands of the Elves had been hunted down by the Vingean, and after they were captured, they were sold to every corner of Leila at high prices for the enjoyment of the dignitaries, David could not stop furrowing his eyebrows.

As an earthling, he was one of the agreeable and honest young men with morals.

He was well educated too.

What was the difference between arresting and trafficking Elven women and the trafficking of women and children on Earth?

It was all for these perpetrator's own benefits.

This reminded him of what he saw on the television.

Countless families had been torn apart, leaving David furious.

There was only one word in his mind for someone like this.

Kill!

The trafficking of tens of thousands of Elven women at one time shocked even David.

According to Evie, the Vingean and the Elves were also neighbors.

In addition to the Elven women who were captured in secret, the number must be higher than what they had.

It could be said that the Elves had always been troubled by the Vingean's secret kidnapping.

They had no way to counter it, so they could only be watchful,

No wonder Queen Isa wanted to take revenge at all costs.

As the Elven Queen, how could she tolerate this race, whom she had a blood feud with, living happily under her nose? At the same time, they continuously sold off her people for high rewards.

No one could accept this.

After Evie told him everything, she stared at David nervously.

She did not know what David would do, but she could imagine i
