Soon, someone below spoke up.

“David, the strength we have now is acquired through hard work and many hardships since childhood, while those ordinary people had lived a life of luxury and never experienced any hardship since childhood. Can't we enjoy a little bit of privilege? Who will work hard in the future? If no one is willing to endure hardship and work hard, what will Somerland use to fight foreign forces? What will it use for national defense? You also know that as the magnetic field becomes wider and stronger, many modern weapons won't work anymore, and it's up to us martial artists to protect Somerland.”

“Yes, as martial artists, we should have a certain advantage ordinary people do not enjoy. Everyone can't be completely equal because it is us who will fight against foreign forces.”

One person took the lead to speak up and many people soon followed.

In the end, everyone was only after their own interest.

“First of all, I want to state that you are martial artists, and you already have an absolute advantage compared to ordinary people. I just said that you can't stir up trouble for no reason, I didn't say that you can't fight back. If someone points a gun at your head, I won't hold you accountable if you kill them, but if someone just scolds you and you fly into a rage and kill them, that's definitely not acceptable. Moreover, I believe that ordinary people in the lower class will never take the initiative to provoke you.

“As for the privileges you want, of course, there will be some, but you need to wait until you defend Somerland against foreign enemies and create achievements for yourselves. When that happens, I will give you the privileges. If you do something for Somerland, I will never treat you badly.”

“I think David is right. It doesn't matter if you're a martial artist or an ordinary person, we're all the same. There's no one more superior or inferior. Everyone only has one life, and everyone has their family and friends. The King family supports this, and I'll definitely supervise the children of the King family. If they break the rules, I will take care of them before Somerland does anything,” Augustus said. David looked at Augustus, his solemn face showing a smile for the first time. To be honest, David admired the style of the King family a lot. As the most powerful force among the hidden family and sects, not only did they step forward to help Somerland when it fell into dire straits to help it get through troubled times, they even came to this realization. They were amazing

Augustus also showed a smile to David. Despite feeling that he was stronger than David, he did not dare to act recklessly.

David showed two very reputable identities today.

Now, Augustus felt that Mason was just playing dead to lure the enemies into his trap. If not, David would not come out to host this meeting for them and even ask to form a discipline team. The best choice for him would be to find a place to hide. If Mason was truly dead, everyone knew that Somerland would not be able to resist foreign forces. If David dared to stand here and take care of internal worries first, then there had to be a way to resist foreign aggression. The King family had approved Somerland's approach, so what other opinions could the others have?

They were counting on the King family to lead them to resist together!

Now, even the few families and sects who just spoke were quiet. It could be regarded as them agreeing to David's first point. David looked around and when he saw that no one was going to speak, he continued, "Since everyone agrees on the first point, then I will go on to the second point. "I believe everyone knows what happened at the grand event of the chosen ones in Somerland. The Dominic family and Star Alliance colluded with foreign forces in an attempt to split Somerland. It is a sin that deserves death. Those two malignant tumors have not been cleared yet as of today. "And I believe there are many more forces like them. They might not be very powerful and they will likely choose very remote locations to resurface so that they can first control a small territory and then slowly expand. "These people will not abide by the Somerland rules. We need to set up an discipline team now to clean up these malignant tumors and garbage, as well as deal with other illegal incidences."

"Plus, the size of Somerland is too large and we don't have enough manpower, so I hope that every force sitting here can arrange for at least one person to report to me and join this newly established discipline team according to your situation. "There is also a requirement for this person. Their abilities should not be too low, so as not to be too weak to fight back when they encounter the enemy at some point such that they can only be slaughtered by others.

“After everyone sends a person to join this team, we will appropriately issue resources according to the size of each forces’ contribution. The more you contribute, the more you get.”

Since they had agreed with the first point, naturally, no one would have an opinion on the second point.

Moreover, the second point was beneficial to them.

As long as they made a large enough contribution, the forces they were in would also get more benefits.

What was the purpose of their resurfacing? Wasn’t it to occupy more resources, recruit more people, and expand their strength to deal with the coming catastrophe?

As for what David said about arranging for someone weak to join the discipline team, that was simply impossible. This person would represent their force and they would show this to everyone in Somerland.

If their person was killed by the enemy before they made any meritorious deeds, how would they show their faces in public?

Therefore, they would definitely send someone with the necessary strength to join the discipline team to increase their prestige and produce meritorious deeds.

“The King family agrees on the second point. We will send one person who’s halfway to God Rank and three peak Dragon Rankers to join the discipline team,” Augustus said. “The Krums also agree! We will send someone halfway to God Rank and two peak Dragon Rankers to join the discipline team,” Taylor, the third elder from the Krums also said. The two great forces had spoken so the people below all spoke as well. However, many people still could not decide what kind of strength to send, so they needed to go back and discuss it first.

“Since everyone agrees, let me add one last sentence.

“In the newly formed discipline team, I am the captain and will be responsible for the arrangement and mobilization of all the personnel. Julia next to me is the deputy captain and is responsible for the logistics of the discipline team. “I hope that after your people join us, no matter how old or experienced they are, they will all obey my commands. Don’t think that they can disobey me just because I am young. If I can be the eleventh MP of the Somerland Parliament and the captain, it naturally means I have the ability. If not, don't blame me for becoming hostile and ruthless when I catch your people and turn them into an example that humiliates your family and sect. "If you have any opinions, you can mention them now. If not, today's meeting will end here. Ask your people to gather here after three days. If you come early, you can contact Deputy Captain Julia and she will arrange everything for you."

David then got up and left.

Julia stayed here and left her contact information behind for all the forces.

When the people present saw David leave, they felt that today's David seemed very different from the David at the last grand event of the chosen ones. Despite David's young age, the courage he showed today was huge. Several people at the scene were halfway to God Rank, and there was even a God Rank guardian, Augustus.

I'm A Quadrillionaire chapter 703

After the meeting, David went to Celia's house and prepared to accompany Celia. He would now wait for the major families to send their people in three days, so that they could be grouped according to their strengths and assigned to the places where they would be in charge. There were 66 provinces in Somerland, and David planned to divide the discipline team into ten teams, each of which was responsible for six to seven provinces.

As for how this group would be divided, he would only decide after he saw who the forces had sent in three day's time.

The people of Team Dragon would definitely be broken up. David still could not trust the people of the families and sects, and they need to be monitored by the people from Team Dragon for some time.

At the same time, Celia told David that classes were starting tomorrow, and she did not have much free time.

It was only then that David remembered that he was still a university student and he was about to enter his senior year.

He also promised Oliver, the chancellor of South River University, that he would definitely come back when the class started.

Recently, there had been a lot of things happening and he had completely forgotten about this matter.

Sure enough, it was not long before David's phone rang. He picked up the phone and saw that it was Oliver, the chancellor of South River University. "Hello, Mr. Carson," David answered the phone and greeted Oliver. "David, are you in River City now?" Oliver asked. "Um... Mr. Carson, I'm still in Capital City," David replied. "Still in Capital City? Tomorrow will be the first day of class. You promised me that you would be back on campus when classes start. You won't break your promise, right?" Oliver said. It was logically impossible for a chancellor to personally intervene in whether a student came to class or not. Even the best students at South River University were contacted by some specialized staff. Having the chancellor of South River University involve himself in such a trivial matter would make him look a little cheap.

However, David was different.

David's identity had been revealed, and he was the owner of East League Capitals which was in the limelight lately.

East League Capitals! Oliver did some research specifically on this company.

That was a super large company with a valuation of nearly ten trillion. When he first heard the news, he did not believe it at all.

However, East League Capitals was established in River City and the chairman was also called David Lidell, who was a 22-year-old youth. In addition, David also donated 100 million to the university.

After linking together these pieces of information, Oliver had no choice but to believe it.

No wonder David could donate 100 million at will.

David was a big shot who was in charge of a capital valued at nearly 10 trillion, so was 100 million worth anything to him?

Moreover, the foundation established by East League Capitals was estimated to have invested over 100 billion dollars in schools, nursing homes, and orphanages built in impoverished areas across the country.

This was a company with a conscience. David was also a conscientious boss.

Oliver was now afraid that David would not come to campus or that he would want to transfer to a better university.

Based on David's current status, even if he wanted to enroll at Greenwood University, doing so would be easy for him.

That was why he was calling David now as classes were about to start.

He was also afraid to disturb David if he called too early. After all, he was a big shot in charge of a ten trillion dollar company, so he would definitely be very busy. Although Oliver was now the chancellor of one of the top ten universities in Somerland, the difference between the two was still too large if he were to be compared with David. All Oliver had to do now was to have David graduate from South River University. As long as David graduated from South River University, once his identity was exposed, South River University would definitely become popular all over the country and even the world. A college student was able to build a super large company with assets worth nearly 10 trillion and he also tried his best to give back to society. What would this mean? It showed that the university had educated him well! Not only could the university sculpt its students into elites, but it could also teach the students to be grateful. This was definitely a great opportunity for South River University.

I'm A Quadrillionaire chapter 704

Whether the ranking of South River University can rise to the top three among the universities in Somerland would depend on whether David could successfully graduate from this place. This forced Oliver to call David himself. "Mr. Carson, I'm sorry, I've been busy recently, so I forgot when classes were starting. Don't worry, I'll definitely be on campus tomorrow," David replied embarrassedly.

He completely forgot when classes were starting, and he even forgot that he was still a senior.

"Then it's settled. You must come tomorrow. I'll be waiting for you on campus." "Okay, I'll be there tomorrow. If there's nothing else, I'll hang up first, Mr. Carson." "Alright, let's meet tomorrow and talk." "Okay!" David said and hung up the phone.

Oliver would be waiting for him on campus tomorrow and David figured that it was because he promised to donate 100 million dollars. He did not know that his identity had been slowly revealed.

As East League Capitals were doing more and more and its valuation continuously grew, it would definitely attract the attention of many people since it was about to break through the 10 trillion mark and become a conglomerate that countless people admired.

Although David's information had been stored in Somerland's top-secret database and it was classified as the highest level secret, the profile of East League Capitals was not hidden.

Even the simplest two things, for example, his name and age, could make some people think of him.

For example, the chancellor of South River University, Oliver Carson. Because he donated 100 million to the university without even batting an eyelid and the name and age of the chairman of East League Capitals matched with David, he was basically certain that David was the owner of East League Capitals.

However, it was not important to David whether his identity was exposed or not.

He had enough strength to protect himself. Mason just told him that no one in the world surpassed peak God Rank.

Therefore, at this moment, he was already standing on the top of the world.

Even if he did not have enough combat experience and could not defeat other peak God Rankers, he could still run, right? As long as he was not surrounded by three to five peak God Rankers, he was not afraid of anyone. Plus, the possibility of him being surrounded by three to five peak God Rankers was too small. How many peak God Rankers were there in the world?

They were all from different forces. Mason was also on the same side as him so this possibility could also be ruled out for the time being. 'Does this mean that I am already fearless?' David was stunned at the thought of this. 'How long has it been since I acquired the system? 'I have reached this level in less than a year. 'How terrifying!

According to the functions of the system, he could get lavish points as long as he spent money. From here, he could be able to become stronger after having lavish points. Thus, whoever obtained this system would be on top of the world very soon. Even so, they might an even better position than David.

After all, David was too careful. He would always take all possibilities into account whenever he was doing something. That was why he was not spending money and getting enough lavish points fast enough. If it was someone braver, they might have already surpassed peak God Rank. Of course, there was also another possibility. They might expose themselves before they grow and then get dissected for research purposes. Compared to being dissected and researched, David figured it would be better to be safe. It did not matter if his progress was slow.
