

I'm A Quadrillionaire Chapter 893

Chapter 893

Chapter 893 The whole space seemed to freeze suddenly.

Excluding Mason and the earthlings who were not affected, Pavan and others from the Stella Civilization Galaxy were all frozen.

It was as if something was holding them back.

Despite not being able to move, they could still think.

They were struggling to get out of this restraint.

At this time, David stepped forward and approached one of the elders. He reached out and looked at the box in the elder's hand.

It was a simple and unadorned wooden box with exotic animals engraved around it, and the material was also very special. David exerted a little force, but he could not break it.

One must know that with David's current strength, he could crush the hardest diamond on Earth even if he exerted a little force.

This wooden box was actually harder than a diamond.

Interesting

David opened the box.

A dark red bead was lying quietly inside, and the bead exuded an evil aura, making David very uncomfortable.

This did not look like it was something good. Frowning, David closed the box and put it away. He wanted to settle the matter in front of him first before going back to study it slowly. Then, he took the boxes from the hands of the other three elders.

During the whole process, the four elders did not resist at all.

They just quietly allowed David to take away the items in their hands.

However, David could see the extreme panic in their eyes.

As the elders of the Tuffin family in Stella Civilization Galaxy, they had been following Master Pavan around the Milky Way for many years and had seen many things.

However, they had never experienced something like this.

Their bodies were restrained by something invisible, and they could not escape it.

They had never seen this technique before,

They would have died if David had used this method in battle.

One had to know that a small mistake could change the outcome of a high-level battle.

Pavan watched David take away the most important Cursed Blood Beads from the slave mark session, and the anger in his heart went straight to the top of his head.

Cursed Blood Beads were necessary for planting the slave mark and were also the most valuable part of the process.

Pavan paid a great price to get these four Cursed Blood Beads.

He hoped to find a living planet like earth, plant his slave mark, and then prosper.

In the Milky Way, many people like Pavan paid a huge price to obtain Cursed Blood Beads. Then, they would take them to wander in the most secluded corners of the Milky Way to look for indigenous living planets.

All living planets in the center of the Milky Way were registered, and no one would dare to plant slave marks on these planets.

This was the rule, and it could not be broken.

Once broken, they would be chased and killed by the most authoritative officials in the entire Milky Way, the Milky Way Empire. Within the Milky Way, no force dared to challenge the authority of the Milky Way Empire.

Therefore, they could only look for undiscovered indigenous living planets on the Milky Way's periphery, and then plant slave marks on these unowned planets.

Pavan thought that he was blessed by God when he found Earth, an indigenous living planet. He thought he would definitely become the chosen one in the future, and he would prosper.

However, what happened now caught him off guard.

He did not think this kind of technique would be hidden on the indigenous living planet Earth. It could trap them silently.

He was struggling to believe this.

All the masters and ordinary people watching this in front of the screens on Earth were also confused.

They did not understand why these people from the Milky Way suddenly stopped moving and were allowing David to take the things from their hands.

I'm A Quadrillionaire Chapter 894

Chapter 894

Chapter 894 However, even if they did not understand, they would not ask out loud.

Only David was qualified to speak in this situation where they were facing aliens.

They just needed to watch quietly.

They should just give David their full support no matter what David did.

Only now did Mason and these masters on Earth understand that the catastrophe might not be a comet hitting the earth.

Instead, it was these aliens that appeared out of nowhere.

They were far more terrifying than comets.

After collecting the four Cursed Blood Beads, David came to Pavan.

Looking at the man in front of him, who was wearing a golden crown and radiating dazzling light, David smiled and said, "Pavan, why did you come here? What exactly is a slave mark? What are the consequences after you plant one? Give me an explanation. Otherwise, you may not be able to leave Earth today."

After speaking, David reached out and snapped his fingers.

The solidified space immediately disappeared.

“You... Who the hell are you? What did you just do to us?” Pavan asked, staring at David.

David’s way of imprisoning them was indeed a bit shocking.

However, Pavan did not think that David was the one who did this.

He would not believe a person from an indigenous living planet would have such incredible abilities.

“You don’t need to know that, you just need to answer my questions.” “What if I say no?”

“Pavan, haven’t you realized the situation yet? I’m not discussing with you, but I’m ordering you to answer my questions obediently if you don’t want to die,” David said with a grin.

“David, who do you think you are? Do you think you can kill me just because you want to? What a joke! Although I don’t know what tactics you just used... I won’t give you another chance!” After Pavan finished speaking, his body slowly dissipated from in front of David.

“Everyone, return to the Octagon, and mecha guards, get ready to fight. Let these indigenous people see how strong a level 3 civilization is.”

Pavan’s voice resonated through the air.

Then, his body returned to the enormous octagonal ship.

At the same time, the four elders, dozens of beautiful women, and nine unicorns all returned to the octagonal ship.

Hundreds of mecha monsters stood in front of the Octagon, face to face with David and the others.

The whole process was done very quickly, and it only took ten seconds.

Pavan safely returned to the Octagon and immediately breathed a sigh of relief.

Just now, David’s method of restraining them was indeed a bit overwhelming.

When he was back here, his confidence began to rise again.

The Octagon was the product of the Milky Way Empire, the most powerful in Stella Civilization Galaxy. The body of the ship was made of tough silver immersed iron.

Meanwhile, its casting technology was also the most advanced in the Milky Way Empire.

It could be described as both an offensive and defensive tool.

Not only could it emit powerful laser energy cannons, but it could also withstand even the attacks of Planet Rankers while on the defense.

A mobile fortress like that was invincible on an indigenous planet like Earth, and it could do whatever it wanted without being worried about getting breached.

Pavan was completely relieved after entering the Octagon.

The only mistake David made was to let him go. If not, Pavan genuinely did not know how to get out of those restraints. Perhaps he still needed to use some trump cards.

I'm A Quadrillionaire Chapter 895

I'm A Quadrillionaire

Chapter 895

Chapter 895 Pavan was standing in the Octagon's command room. His voice reached the ears of David and others through the Octagon's loudspeaker.

"David, return the Cursed Blood Beads to me, and obediently let me plant a slave mark. Otherwise, I will destroy the Earth today, and you will become a sinner who will be reviled by hundreds of millions of people."

After he had finished speaking, one of the corners of the Octagon fired a laser cannon at the nearest city in Falconia.

Boom!

The entire city was instantly wiped out. Nearly 100,000 people were turned into ashes under the laser cannon noiselessly.

David's eyes turned cold.

An evil fire started to flow out of his heart.

He genuinely did not expect these people to disregard human lives like that and to take action the moment they said they would.

In just a sentence, a city became history just like that.

That was nearly 100,000 lives! The Falconia executives behind David stared at the Octagon in the distance with blood-red eyes.

“David, this is a lesson to you. The people in this city died because of you. If you accept the slave mark obediently, nothing like this would have happened. Next, I will destroy a city every minute until you hand over the Cursed Blood Beads and accept the slave mark. I want to see how long you can hold on. By the way, thirty seconds have passed since we talked,” Pavan continued.

“Mr. David, don’t hand over the Cursed Blood Beads. We would rather die than be slaves for life. If we do, we’ll be despised by future generations,” a God Rank guardian said.

“Yes, David, you can’t hand over the Cursed Blood Beads. Those things obviously have a tremendous effect. If we keep them, we still have a bargaining chip. Once we hand them over, we won’t even have any bargaining power, and they’ll control us,” Mason said beside David.

Meanwhile, the human beings watching the live broadcast around the world still had not come back to their senses at this moment.

They refused to believe that a city of nearly 100,000 people was destroyed just like that.

100,000 lives were lost just like this?

At the same time, they were worried.

Would they be the next victim of the attack?

Suddenly, a Falconia mid-God Rank behind David rushed toward the hundreds of mechas on the opposite side with red eyes, not caring about anything.

He was in charge of the city that the Octagon destroyed just now.

His family was in the city, and none of them had escaped.

He was the only one left of that huge and prosperous family, so what was the point of continuing to live? One of the mechas from the opposite side also stepped forward.

The God Rank guardian from Earth struck the mecha with all his strength.

He did not do any damage to it. David took action when the mecha was ready to kill the God Rank guardian.

He instantly appeared behind the tall mecha and smacked the mecha on the back.

At the same time, the power of vibration penetrated the mecha, directly killing the person who was controlling the mecha from inside.

David pushed the powerless mecha slightly toward the God Rank guardian of Falconia.

“Take it and leave the rest to me.”

After David finished speaking, he turned to face hundreds of mechas nearly five meters tall.

His mind power had long discovered that these iron lumps were actually being controlled by someone inside.

If he killed the controller, then the mecha would just be a piece of scrap metal that would not move.

However, not even a God Rank guardian could pierce such a tough shell.

So, he was the only one who could do it.

A human being from Earth who was about 1.8 meters tall was about to face hundreds of mecha guards nearly 5 meters tall from a level 3 civilization galaxy