

Chapter 17

"She didn't even brag about it. If it were someone else, they'd probably take the opportunity to show off, subtly or not."

"Isn't that exactly what that angel in the other live stream is doing?"

"I haven't watched their stream. Did they manage to trade for anything?"

Since the two teams split up, the production team set up two live streams. If anyone acts alone later, they'll get their own stream.

So, the situations of the two teams can be easily compared.

Elric's fans couldn't help but comment here.

"I've been watching both streams. They knocked on dozens of doors before finding one household that couldn't say no. That angel helped with cooking and managed to get a few eggs and a cabbage for their team.

"Then Alex and Justin praised her endlessly, and she kept saying she learned to cook before coming here."

"Yeah, as if she wants everyone to know how hard she worked to learn it."
"

"She's constantly hinting at her contributions, unlike Lindsay."

"I noticed the old lady's smile was getting strained."

"What do you mean by 'strained'?"

"I saw that too. The old lady isn't wealthy, but she agreed to let the angel cook in exchange for vegetables after the angel begged."

"But this angel, who knows nothing of hardship, used up half of the oil in the old lady's oil can for three dishes. She even fried up all the old lady's preserved meat.

"When she was cooking, aside from putting the food in the pan and adding seasonings, everything else was done by the old lady's two granddaughters."

"I noticed she looked quite disdainful of the old lady's house at first but kept it in check for the camera."

"People in the other stream are constantly praising the angel for being so kind and hardworking. It's a bit cringy to watch."

"Haha, it gets even better."

"They found another house and offered to babysit in exchange for vegetables. But the kid, who was well-behaved at first, ended up crying, and the angel couldn't calm them down."

"It was hilarious. The angel tried to comfort the child with a sweet smile, but when the child reached out to be held, she backed away."

"On the surface, she seems like a gentle girl, but she actually dislikes children. It's so fake."

"Did they manage to trade for anything?"

"No, they didn't. Instead, the granny who came back from the field asked them to leave with a stern face. After they left, the angel kept apologizing, saying she didn't do a good job. Alex and Justin kept comforting her."

"Alex, feeling sorry for his sister, tried to cheer her up by saying that the family was rude and ungrateful."

"I can't understand his logic. They made the child cry, why should the family be grateful?"

"In his world, anyone who upsets his sister is in the wrong."

"I used to think women overly obsessed with their brothers were scary, but now I feel the same about men overly obsessed with their sisters. I pity Alex's future girlfriend."

If not for the comparison with Lindsay and the complaints from Elric's fans, Olivia's behavior might have gained her a lot of sympathy.

But now, the other guests' fans and random viewers felt that Olivia was overdoing it a bit.

Meanwhile, Elric and his team sat in the courtyard, watching Lindsay weave storage baskets from reed stalks.

Lindsay had noticed dried reed stalks piled up in the yard. With the show's permission, she took some to weave storage baskets for clothes and other household items.

The other three watched curiously, chatting idly as they did.

When the exhausted Olivia and her group returned, they saw the others leisurely watching Lindsay weave.

They suddenly felt a strong urge to complain. Why did these guys have it so easy?

Comments

Support