

Reborn 1051

Chapter 1051 Love Is Done

Manuel was driving, while Besse and Susan were sitting in the back seat.

Susan kept chattering along the way, curious about what Besse had dropped.

"Besse, what did you drop?"

Besse did not answer her question though she kept asking, because nothing had been left behind. She just wanted to go and had a look.

Manuel was getting a little tired of Susan's questions.

"Susan, please speak less and don't disturb the baby, it's asleep."

"Manuel, are you saying that I'm annoying?" Susan's attention was instantly diverted.

Besse couldn't help but breathe a sigh of relief. It was hard for her when Susan was being persistent. She looked into the rear-view mirror and said thank you to Manuel, who smiled in reply.

And then, all the way, Susan kept bombarding Besse without stopping.

Finally, they arrived at the villa.

Susan was about to follow Besse to help her when Manuel stopped her and said, "Don't you want some ice cream? I have some stored in the fridge."

"When did you put it in? Manuel, you sneaked and hid my ice cream, huh?" Susan said angrily.

"If I don't, are you planning on eating it all in one breath?"

"However, during today's prenatal check-up, the doctor said that all of your data is very good. I decided to reward you with an ice cream. Keep up the good work next time!"

"Do you think I'm a child?"

"Yes, like my daughter." Manuel indulged in a smile.

Susan felt a bit embarrassed at his sweet words but she was very pleased to hear that. As they talked, Besse had already hobbled up the stairs alone with her cane. She didn't return to the bedroom she stayed in before. Instead, she went to the kid's room.

She saw the familiar decoration, which was the same as when she first saw it. She walked up to the activity table, moved it aside, and saw two lines of words on the wall.

One line was written by Salem, and the other was what she wrote in Hannah's name at that time.

She crossed out the words that she had written with a pen and wrote something instead.

The rims of her eyes turned red. She thought, when Salem missed his mother, maybe he would see it.

Besse sat in the room for a while. She moved the activity chair over again, blocking the words written down on the wall. Then, she stood up and got ready to leave.

At the moment of departure, she turned around and saw the photo on the bedside table, which was taken when Salem was younger. In the picture, the boy was sitting on the floor, not knowing how to crawl. He was looking into the camera with great confusion on his face. He looked so adorable.

Besse couldn't help but go over to pick up the photo. She looked at it for a long time, unwilling to put it down. Just as she finally did, the door suddenly opened.

Besse's eyes flickered but she held back her tears.

"I just came to tell you that there's an album on the bedside table." Said Manuel.

Besse looked at him and he smiled slightly.

"I came up to get Susan a jacket in case she gets cold."

Besse nodded slightly.

Manuel was always considerate of others and would never let anyone feel left out.

The door was closed. Besse opened the bedside table, where she found a thick album inside with the words, "Salem's Growth Album", written on the front page.

She nervously opened it up and saw photos of the boy from when he was born until now at five years old, including pictures from his fifth birthday party, which had only happened recently.

Did Oscar make this growth album?

After finishing looking through it all, Besse closed the book with tears streaming down her face. She wiped them away before leaving but then reopened the book one last time before taking out a photo from inside.

As she left the room for good this time, she turned around imagining what it would be like if Salem occasionally visited this room.

When Besse returned to the living room, she was calm as normal again.

Susan is satisfied after eating ice cream.

"What if I have a daughter?" asked Susan, with a serious face.

"Of course, we'll take good care of her." He was used to Susan asking strange questions by now so he wasn't surprised by this one either.

"But what if she steals your love away from me?" Susan felt threatened just thinking about how much attention Manuel might give their daughter someday.

As soon as that image popped into her head though-of Manuel being tenderly attentive while caring for their little girl-Susan was somewhat agitated.

"It's not gonna happen," Manuel replied, "Daughters will eventually marry someone else. My wife is the one who truly belongs to me."

"Really?" Susan exclaimed with delight.

She didn't expect it, but Manuel was sensible in this respect.

"Uh-huh." Manuel nodded firmly.

Susan felt relieved in an instant. She always felt like Manuel was spoiling her too much, and it was getting to her head.

Only when she saw Besse in the living room did she remember that she was accompanying Besse to find her thing today, instead of dating Manuel.

She quickly got up and walked towards Besse, eagerly asking, "Did you find it?"

Besse shook her head. "No. Perhaps I remembered it wrong. It should be in my suitcase."

"Do you want me to help you look again?" Susan said enthusiastically.

"No need." Besse smiled. "Let's go."

"Do you not need it? It must be something important, right?! Or you wouldn't have gone through all this trouble to come here in person."

"It's not that important," Besse evaded, "Let's go back to the hospital. I'm afraid Doyle won't be able to find me and will get angry again."

"You are so kind to Doyle," Susan suddenly exclaimed.

Besse pursed her lips.

Because he was better than her.

"Oscar may not have another chance." Susan blurted out. There was always some lingering dissatisfaction in her heart.

Oscar almost died for Besse. However, Besse was still indifferent towards him.

Besse did not respond to Susan. She leaned on her cane and walked out first.

Susan let out a heavy sigh again.

Was Oscar deserving of this?

It seemed that in this lifetime, he would never obtain the love he desired.

Chapter 1052 Besse Leaves

The next day, Doyle underwent a physical examination. On the third day, all of his test results came back normal. He could be discharged at any time. Naturally, Doyle didn't want to spend another second in the hospital and requested to be released immediately. Besse accompanied him and went through the procedures, which was just signing a document confirming his discharge. Other matters were taken care of by someone else so they didn't waste too much time.

By 10 AM, they had left the hospital. Besse was using a crutch due to her broken leg, which would take at least three months to heal before she could walk again on it.

"Susan," she called out reluctantly as Susan and Manuel saw them off to their car.

Doyle arranged for a private plane back to Jolencami and it was already parked at the Capital International Airport.

"Are you sure you don't want us to send you off?" Susan asked hoping for more time together with her. Besse shook her head, not wanting any more emotional goodbyes at the airport, where she felt it would be too much for her.

"Do we need anyone else sending us off?" She joked but there was some truth in it as well because, after last time's accident, Queen Carol had brought over 10 professional bodyguards from Jolencami, who were now providing full protection for them along with Oscar's people. They made up quite an impressive convoy of vehicles that seemed never-ending.

"Oscar is afraid something might happen again so he sent extra people," Susan commented.

Besse nodded understandingly but didn't want any further details about it either way.

"I gotta go, Susan. Good bye." Besse said with a smile and was about to turn around.

"Send me an invitation when you get married. Unless I'm having labour, I'll attend your wedding!" Susan mentioned it again in case Besse forgot it.

"I will."

But Besse was even not sure if there would be a wedding. She sat in the car with Doyle. Then they drove off.

Oscar watched everything from above on the balcony. He saw she leaned against another man's chest smilingly and left. Salem stayed with Oscar. His eyes were red-rimmed while watching Besse leave.

"Dad, why can't we go see her off?" asked Salem.

Oscar kept his gaze fixed on the direction in which the car had driven away.

"Because I don't want to disturb her." Said he.

She already had a new life.

Salem didn't understand some things. He only knew that after Besse left, he would miss her for a very long time.

"Time to go?" Theodore walked over from behind and asked nonchalantly.

Oscar ignored Theodore, while his eyes continued to gaze at the line of vehicles that had already disappeared.

"There's not even a shadow to be seen, why bother looking?"

"Are you free?" Oscar asked.

"That's not the case," Theodore quickly chuckled nervously.

If he said yes, Oscar would keep him busy as hell.

"I have something to attend to and may leave her for a few days," Theodore replied.

"What's the matter?"

"It's nothing major, just a personal matter," Theodore hesitated and didn't want to say it.

Oscar didn't ask much either. He kept staring out of the floor-to-ceiling window at the long street, with his eyes fixed on it.

"Anyway, now it's up to you to handle the official business." Theodore began making excuses.

Oscar claimed to be hospitalized for recuperation during this period, but he worked longer hours than usual every day. Theodore didn't know why he was working so hard.

Later on, he reconsidered, it could be that Oscar was numbing himself with work to leave himself no time to think about anything else.

"Then I'll go?" Theodore asked cautiously when Oscar didn't say anything.

Oscar remained silent, which was generally an acquiescence.

Theodore breathed a sigh of relief and then left Oscar's hospital room.

As soon as he walked out of the hospital room. Theodore urgently asked his assistant next to him,

"What time is the flight?"

"It's 11:30, sir."

"Hurry up, hurry up."

"The vehicle has been arranged and is waiting for you downstairs. Now barring any unforeseen circumstances, you will make it to the airport in time."

"If I don't, I'll kill you."

"..." The assistant expressed innocence.

The person who was wasting time was not him.

Theodore got into the car and urged the driver to hurry to the airport. After arriving at the airport, Theodore went to check in with his assistant.

"I am sitting in the economy class, right?" The assistant looked at the ticket in his hand with a hint of sadness. No matter when he travelled for business, he usually took a private jet. If it was not possible to take a private jet, he still flew first class with Theodore.

Theodore glanced at him and said, "Stop complaining. I didn't make you run around down there, so consider yourself lucky."

"..."

When Theodore boarded the plane, it was already quite late. He was the last passenger to board. He sat in his seat and looked over at a seat that was a bit further away. Theodore called over a flight attendant and said, "Can you help me change seats?"

The flight attendant recognized Theodore at first glance and quickly responded, "Mr Wold, which seat would you like to switch to? I can ask other passengers for you." Theodore pointed to a seat and the flight attendant quickly agreed.

In no time at all, the other passenger agreed to switch seats with him. When he came over to exchange seats with Theodore, he nervously shook hands with him and expressed how honoured he was to be able to switch seats with him.

Theodore exchanged pleasantries before walking towards his new spot next to Little Bunny, who had been sleeping since boarding the plane wearing an eye mask.

She had just finished filming late last night so she hadn't gotten much rest before boarding her flight today, where she planned on getting some sleep before arriving on set for hair and makeup.

Theodore sat next to her for quite some time without being noticed by her, which made him somewhat annoyed. He thus made some noise intentionally to cause her discomfort.

Little Bunny was not the type who could fall asleep easily anywhere. So she was woken up.

As she took off her eye mask readying herself to tell whoever beside her to be quiet, she froze in shock when she saw Theodore.

“Surprised?” asked Theodore with a smug face.

No... she was more terrified.

Why would he suddenly appear here? And why did he sit right beside her?

She remembered clearly that someone else had been sitting there earlier.

“Are you shocked by my presence?” asked Theodore mischievously.

Chapter 1053 He’s Courting Her

Little Bunny’s frustration and rejection at the moment made her want to slap his self-righteous face. But she told herself not to get impulsive.

She was a public figure, who couldn’t cause a bad influence on society. The important thing was, she couldn’t afford Theodore’s anger. He could crush her with just a flick of his finger.

However, she couldn’t bring herself to comply either. She didn’t know what madness Theodore was going through again, hoping that all of this was just coincidence and not premeditated planning.

Little Bunny was silent. She put on the eye mask again and went to sleep. Her deliberate alienation made Theodore very unhappy. He felt that Little Bunny was supposed to be ecstatic at the moment.

What did it mean to be so calm and even indifferent?

He frowned slightly, “Little Bunny, you’re smart.”

She bitterly regretted not noting putting the earbuds in.

“You have caught my attention,” Theodore said fiercely, “You are still the first person who has rejected me like this.”

Little Bunny endured it. She wanted to shout at him, “Are you crazy?! Have you watched too many CEO dramas?!”

“I decide to have some fun with you,” Theodore smiled wickedly and said confidently, “I will make sure you fall in love with me.”

If she wasn’t wearing an eye mask right now, she might have rolled her eyes in front of him.

She pretended not to hear anything and kept repeating silently in her heart, “You hear nothing. Ignore him...”

She was still unresponsive, while Theodore thought that she must be concealing her feelings for him. So he smiled and leaned back in his seat to sleep.

He felt tired as well. For the upcoming few days off work, he had sacrificed quite a lot. He had worked late every day, so he could take time off work comfortably from now on.

He soon fell asleep.

When Little Bunny realized that Theodore had fallen asleep, she removed her eye mask. His childishness truly left her speechless.

Then she pressed the service button and asked for help from one of the flight attendants. She wanted to sit somewhere else.

But since they were already flying high up in the air, many passengers in the first class were already resting. So after the airline stewardess asked around, no one agreed.

She had no choice but still sat where she was. She thought that was because no one wanted to sit next to Theodore.

It took three hours by plane from the Capital to Hora. Theodore slept for the entire three hours on the plane. Little Bunny knew his habits well. He usually slept a lot. She even wondered how he became the most important person around the commander, with power over everyone else.

Was it luck?

Thanks to his relationship with the commander since childhood?

Anyway, Little Bunny had no good impression of Theodore at all.

The plane landed.

Theodore was still asleep.

When a flight attendant tried to wake him up, Little Bunny stopped her and said that Theodore was too busy with work and needed more rest. The flight attendant nodded in agreement. Of course, Little Bunny just didn't want Theodore bothering her once he woke up. So she left while he was still sleeping.

When Theodore woke up later on, he found that the entire cabin was empty except for a flight attendant who seemed to be waiting for him. She approached him respectfully when she saw him awake and asked, "Mr Wold, are you awake?"

"Where is she?"

"All other passengers have already disembarked."

"Where is Little Bunny?"

"She has already disembarked as well."

"What?!"

The stewardess trembled in fear.

"Why didn't you wake me up?!"

"Miss Little Bunny said you must be too tired due to work so we did not disturb your rest time, which was our mistake. Please forgive us."

"Is that what she said?"

"Yes."

Theodore suddenly laughed again. It turned out that Little Bunny still cared about him. He had been too tired these past few days and indeed needed some rest time now. His mood instantly improved as he stood up and said, "Let's go."

"Yes sir, this way please." The stewardess felt relieved.

Theodore's assistant was about to lose his mind while waiting for him at the airport. Everyone else on the same flight had come out except for Theodore.

Could it be that he had run away with Little Bunny?

As his assistant, he knew Theodore's intention of booking this plane flight. He tried calling Theodore's phone but it was still in aeroplane mode. He even considered contacting the airline company.

At this moment though, he finally saw Theodore slowly walking out of the airport terminal building.

"Sir," the assistant hurriedly approached, "what took you so long? I thought you followed Miss Little Bunny out."

"Just overslept," Theodore stretched lazily. "Let's go to our destination."

"Okay."

He followed Theodore out of the airport. A car was already waiting for them outside. The driver headed straight for their destination, driving further and further away from civilization.

The assistant couldn't help but ask, "Is this place that far?"

"This is the furthest village in Hora because it's more primitive," replied the driver respectfully. "Many film crews come here to shoot because of its natural environment."

“Are the living conditions good there?”

“Not really,” answered the driver. “Although many film crews come to shoot scenes there, due to environmental protection laws, no development is allowed inside so it remains in its most original state. I’m worried if Mr Wold will be able to adapt to living there.”

“I thought you arranged accommodation early on?” The assistant sounded somewhat annoyed.

“I did arrange it but what I could do was limited inside...”

“Enough talking about it, Little Bunny can stay here, Why can’t I stay there too?” Theodore interrupted them impatiently. “How much longer until we arrive?”

“At least another hour. It’s a winding mountain road. People get carsick quite easily. Please try not to look down at the phone too much, Mr Wold. It could make you sick.” Reminded the driver.

Theodore was looking at his phone since it was a long journey in the car. But soon he realized something wasn’t right and handed his phone over to his assistant with urgency.

“Bring me that win, I’m going to throw up.”

He was in a mobile game.

“...” His assistant felt like crying, for he was about to throw up too.

With Theodore’s phone in his hand, he couldn’t help but gag at the phone screen.

The driver quickly stopped and let them take a break outside before they continued on their journey, where they threw up several times along the way before finally arriving at Little Bunny’s filming base camp.

When they arrived, Little Bunny had already finished her makeup preparation for filming.

Upon seeing Theodore appear from afar, she could no more fool herself that it was merely a coincidence.

Chapter 1054 The Shoot

“Miss Little Bunny,” Tanya, her assistant called out to her.

How she wished she was in dreamland!

She turned around and followed Tanya to the filming location.

Just as Theodore finished vomiting, he saw Little Bunny too. As he was about to call out her name, she turned and walked away.

“Women always like to act high and mighty.” Theodore held back his words.

Since his stomach felt uncomfortable, he asked the driver, “Where am I staying?”

“Right there, sir. I’ll take you there.” The driver quickly replied.

Theodore followed him to a homestay, whose environment wasn’t very good. Theodore found it somewhat distasteful but didn’t want to be picky since he had already come all this way. The homestay owner quickly led him into a room, which was clean but still quite simple in design. Theodore couldn’t complain anymore; he collapsed onto the bed, exhausted. He had done so far for Little Bunny, even suffering car sick.

This woman was so lucky, he thought to himself.

With all these in mind, Theodore eventually fell asleep soundly while enduring his discomfort.

When he woke up from his nap later on, it was already quite late in the day with sunset approaching fast outside of his window view. Theodore sat up abruptly upon realizing how late it had gotten.

“Samson!”

He rushed over immediately upon hearing that before putting his pants on.

“What’s wrong? What happened?”

So Samson had been sleeping off some stomach discomforts too.

“What time is it? Why are you still sleeping?”

Samson was a bit wronged since he had slept after Theodore fell asleep.

“5 PM.” Samson checked his watch and said.

“5 PM?! Go to ask someone if she gets off work.”

“Alright.”

Then Samson went back to his room to put on his clothes and headed for the spot, while Theodore washed and brushed himself up unhurriedly. He complained about the awful living conditions here from time to time.

Later, Samson came back and said, “Captain...”

“Call me Mr Wold outside. Stay down.”

“Yes.” Replied Samson. But he didn’t think Theodore would keep a low profile. And he continued, “Mr Wold, I just went to the set and Miss Little Bunny is still filming. She has a lot of scenes and it might take a while longer. I asked around and they said it’ll be at least another hour.”

“Are they not tired?” Theodore muttered.

“... Well, everyone has their job.” Samson thought.

Theodore thought for a moment before saying, “Let’s go check it out.”

“Okay.”

So they got to the filming location on set. Since Samson had already made arrangements beforehand, they weren’t stopped by anyone. Everyone who saw Theodore showed some fear and respect towards him. Theodore was used to these looks and walked confidently in front of the camera crew. When the cameraman saw him, he was surprised but quickly greeted him.

“You do your thing. I’ll just take a look around.” Theodore said nonchalantly before turning his attention elsewhere.

And so he watched as they filmed without any interruptions or distractions from others on set.

“Stop!” The director’s voice suddenly rang out. “Little Bunny, you’re not in character right now!”

If it weren’t for Theodore showing up, she wouldn’t have lost focus. She took a deep breath before apologizing to the director, “I’m sorry.”

“Get ready for this scene. After this one, we still have one more scene where you fall into the water.”

Urged the director. “The sun is setting soon, so time is tight.”

“Got it,” Little Bunny took another deep breath as she prepared herself mentally for what was coming next.

At that moment she glanced over at Theodore, who had been sitting offstage watching her intently all along. It made her shiver with agitation.

Theodore noticed her glance. So he gave her an attractive smile and then threw her an alluring glance, which left Little Bunny speechless. She quickly diverted her gaze away from him.

Meanwhile, Theodore smirked playfully, enjoying every minute of watching Little Bunny act up close like this. At least, he thought so.

Suddenly there came another call, “Three, two, one, action!”

Little Bunny quickly got in character. This was the first time for Theodore to watch a film shoot. He had dated quite a lot of actresses, but no one could make him do this far. He was quite interested in watching them acting at such a close distance. And he thought Little Bunny’s acting skills were not bad; when she was in character, she was someone completely different from herself.

No wonder she was able to pretend to be indifferent to him.

“Cut! Get ready for the next scene.”

Little Bunny returned stage area preparing herself again, while other members of staff began setting up props.

“Is Mr Wold here to see you?” Tanya handed Little Bunny a cup of warm water and asked cautiously.

Little Bunny pursed her lips and didn’t answer.

“I noticed that his gaze has been fixed on you. I heard that he likes female celebrities, but he’s also quite fickle. None of his girlfriends has lasted more than a month, some even just one-night stands...”

“I know,” Little Bunny interrupted her.

She knew that Tanya was trying to warn her not to fall for Theodore’s tricks. Of course, she wasn’t annoyed with what Tanya said; she just knew exactly what kind of person Theodore was and wouldn’t be fooled by him.

She took a moment to compose herself in the lounge before the crew asked her to prepare for filming again.

Little Bunny put down her thermos and walked towards the filming location, where Theodore was still present. The director was chatting with him at the moment, obviously complimenting him on something.

When Little Bunny came out, the director respectfully left them alone as they moved to another location near a pool. She would film a scene where she fell into the water and was rescued by the main man. In this scene, the main man would give artificial respiration after rescuing her from drowning.

In previous movies when there were intimate scenes involved, Little Bunny refused them because of being married. But now since getting divorced, she did not want any negative news about herself so easily attached like “unprofessional” or “difficult”, so she agreed. But with Theodore there, she felt quite embarrassed to film those intimate scenes.

She acted opposite Addison, who had worked with her before. They had been quite familiar with each other. They had great success together in their last movie “The Ballad”, which had higher ratings than any TV series produced over recent years, so it wasn’t surprising when they announced its sequel soon after finishing it.

Today’s shooting involved the first meeting between the male and female lead characters.

“Theodore is here,” Addison said to Little Bunny while they were practising the lines.

“He seems to want something from you.” He added cautiously.

Little Bunny nodded knowingly,

“Be careful.”

“I know.”

She told herself, Theodore was just acting on impulse anyway.

Chapter 1055 A Kissing Scene

Little Bunny and Addison were chatting.

The director came over and asked, “Are you ready?”

“Uh-huh,” Addison replied.

“The kissing scene later, is it okay?” the director confirmed.

Little Bunny pursed her lips and did not answer.

Addison smiled and asked her, “I’m fine. You should be okay too, right?”

She smiled and replied, self-doubt, “Yea.”

“If I’m not mistaken, it was your first on-screen kiss, right?” Addison asked.

Little Bunny nodded, her face slightly flushing.

“Don’t worry, I just rinsed my mouth.” Said he.

Little Bunny tried to hold back her laughter. She had just rinsed her mouth too.

Anyway, nothing could be more uncomfortable than when Theodore kissed her.

First, the scene where the heroine fell into the water was filmed. Little Bunny fell directly into the pool.

Theodore felt a little annoyed when he saw Little Bunny chatting with that pretty boy, Addison, earlier.

These two had even been rumoured to be dating before. And now that he saw Little Bunny fall into the water, he felt even more uncomfortable.

Why bother enduring this hardship?

Since she could have led a carefree life if she had continued to be Mrs Wold, Theodore didn’t understand her.

He just sat there with a sullen face.

After Little Bunny fell into the water, Addison also jumped in. With agile movements, he swiftly swam to Little Bunny’s side. He scooped her up from the water in no time.

Fortunately, both actors were very professional in filming. It passed in one go.

Then, it was a kiss scene, where Little Bunny was lying on the ground, in a state of unconsciousness.

Addison performed the standard post-drowning rescue for her—he pressed her chest a few times, raised her head, and gave mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to her.

Their lips touched.

Little Bunny was still a bit nervous. But when Addison kissed her, it felt utterly different from when Theodore touched her lips. Moreover, Addison was a gentleman. His lips only touched hers lightly without any other invasive actions. The taste on her lips was clean and pure, unlike Theodore’s, which always made her feel dirty. There was not much rejection left.

The shooting was going smoothly as planned.

“Who allowed you to kiss her?!” A furious male voice suddenly echoed in the air.

Addison pulled away from her lips. There was also some emotional turbulence inside him. Little Bunny’s lips were very soft. He had filmed countless kissing scenes, but this was the first time that almost made him lose control.

He turned his head and looked at Theodore. Little Bunny also got up from the ground and looked at Theodore, who appeared furious.

The director and on-site staff hurriedly walked over to him and asked, “Mr Wold, what’s wrong?!”

“Who asked you to film a kissing scene?!” Theodore turned around and questioned the director.

The director was a bit confused.

“It’s not a kissing scene, it’s just necessary for the plot to perform artificial respiration.”

“Necessary?” Theodore’s face darkened.

The director was startled by him. He knew that Theodore came here for Little Bunny. But since he heard that Theodore didn’t care about female celebrities at all and it couldn’t be avoided in filming, he didn’t expect Theodore to get so angry.

The director was a bit at a loss.

“Either change the scene, find a stand-in or rewrite the script! I will not allow anyone to kiss Little Bunny.”

Little Bunny gritted his teeth.

How she wished to let him shut up!

How would she continue to fit in on the set in the future?

Everyone would think that she deliberately asked Theodore to support her.

If Theodore got tired of her and dated some other actress, she would be targeted by others from this crew.

She endured it silently, not knowing what to say. Talking was useless for now. No matter what she said, others would feel that she was being hypocritical.

Theodore didn't seem to have any intention of giving her a chance to explain. He reached out and pulled Little Bunny over, saying, "Let's go."

Little Bunny looked at Theodore and took another glance at the others. She had to follow him to leave in front of everyone's eyes.

The atmosphere on the set was very bad. Being interrupted suddenly was never a good feeling for anyone. The director angrily threw the script in his hand onto the ground. He never thought Little Bunny would act like a diva before. During the filming of "The Ballad", she was so dedicated and he even publicly stated that if he had a suitable script in the future, he would prioritize Little Bunny as the female lead. At this moment, all the goodwill towards her had vanished.

"What should we do now?"

The director said fiercely, "What else can we do? Find a kiss double! Who dares to offend him?"

After saying that, he turned around and left.

Addison was still looking in the direction of Little Bunny and Theodore, feeling frustrated. He couldn't help but lightly purse his lips. There seemed to be the touch of her lips on his.

Somehow, he felt he was supposed to save her from Theodore.

Theodore roughly took Little Bunny's hand and returned to the guesthouse where he was staying. The homestay only accommodated him as a guest, making it even quieter there. He brought Little Bunny back to his room and said, "Why are you so foolish? If you don't want to film, then don't! Who says actors have to film kissing scenes?"

Little Bunny looked at him.

"Why were you so sure that I would reject kissing scenes?" Little Bunny complained inside.

But what surprised her was Theodore did not get angry with her. She thought she would be slapped by him as she saw his angry face a moment ago.

"Even if you want to make me jealous, it shouldn't be like this," Theodore said as if it were obvious.

Little Bunny was wordless as she wanted to deny it.

How clear did she have to be? She didn't like him and didn't want anything to do with him. It was even less likely for her to do something intentionally to make him jealous.

Just as Little Bunny was about to clarify the misunderstanding with him, something unexpected happened.

Theodore was wiping her lips gently, seemingly erasing the traces of just having kissed Addison.

Little Bunny's eyes flickered slightly. Theodore's actions were gentler than she had anticipated. But she still felt repulsed. The deep sense of repulsion from within made her unable to resist the urge to push Theodore away.

But the next second, Theodore lowered his head and kissed her on the lips.

She just felt it disgusting and wanted to vomit.

As Theodore's tongue was about to enter, she clenched her teeth.

Even with all her might, she pushed his tongue out.

Chapter 1056 Persistent Pursuit

Little Bunny pushed him away. He stumbled back several steps, staring at her with surprise. Little Bunny's disgust for him was so conspicuous. She noticed the anger in Theodore's eyes when she pushed him away. She knew he would be upset but she didn't want to submit herself under his control again after their divorce. She never thought they would have any further entanglements between them. She would have insisted on a declaration of hate but for his power.

They both stood there silently for a long time without speaking a word until finally, Theodore broke the silence and threatened her in a cold voice, "Little Bunny, don't push your luck."

She couldn't figure a way out to make it clear that she didn't like his power, money, and him as a person from head to toe, and that she wasn't pretending either. She tried calming herself down and said, "Theodore, we got divorced. Can't we just move on?"

Theodore's eyes narrowed.

"We got married because of Nicholas, there was no love between us then or now. I have no feelings for you either way. Believe it or not, I never intended for anything more than sex that time when I was drugged, if there were another guy, I would have let him help me too. Please, just let me go."

"Little Bunny, don't get too deep into a role. It'll do you no good."

"It's not an act. I'm telling the truth about my feelings towards you." She added firmly, "Mr Wold, if you don't believe me now or later, then wait and see! I swear in my life that I will never come looking for reconciliation with you again! If I do break this promise may lightning strike me dead!"

Little Bunny made it clear in no uncertain terms. She knew Theodore would be incensed but even so, she wanted closure once and for all. She refused to be tied down by him anymore. She still had her pursuits, her good life, and she might even meet someone she liked in the future. She didn't want to fall into Theodore's hands for the rest of her life, even though he could give her wealth beyond measure. She simply wasn't interested.

Theodore was indeed irritated. Little Bunny's words were so final that they angered him. But, Theodore was not one to easily give up on anything or anyone. The more she rejected him, the more it fueled his determination to make her regret what she said.

"Little Bunny, I've never cared about a woman like this before in my entire life, nor have I ever tolerated any woman like this before you."

Little Bunny bit her lip. She didn't want to be the only one in Theodore's eyes and she even disliked being a special existence in his heart.

"The one I set my sights on will never let go!" Theodore emphasized each word without any room for retreat. He was telling her that rejecting him would be futile.

Little Bunny's eyes turned red as she became truly angry with him and didn't know how to express herself at that moment.

Why did she have to encounter such an annoying person?

He just couldn't accept being dumped by the one he liked.

Little Bunny tightly bit down on her lips while trying hard to calm herself down so as not to lose control or show any weakness in front of Theodore. There was no way she would surrender easily when facing him.

She turned around without saying another word. Theodore instinctively reached out, intending to grip her arm. But he clenched his fist instead since he knew that she couldn't escape from his grasp. He wasn't in the mood to cheer her up anyway.

After getting out of his room, Little Bunny couldn't hide the anger inside of herself. She hadn't thought she would hate someone so much. Whenever she thought about this man, she had a sense of foreboding and desperation as if she was facing the ending of the universe.

All along the way, she tried hard to soothe herself until finally arriving at the filming location. Taking a deep breath, she hid everything behind a smile while walking towards where the director was shooting Addison's kissing scene.

Little Bunny walked up to the director and apologized to him with a smile. "Let me handle it, it was just a misunderstanding."

"A misunderstanding?!" The director just ignored her. "Mr Wold came to take you away, everyone here saw that. How could it be a misunderstanding? Your connections were this strong, you should have told me earlier."

Though his sarcasm caused her discomfort, she continued to explain, "I've made it clear with Mr Wold."

"But I wouldn't dare to offend him." The director turned his head towards her. "Why don't you go rest for now? If we finish late tonight and something goes wrong again, who knows what will happen?"

Little Bunny felt a bit disappointed as she wanted to explain further, but the director got up and left without giving her any attention.

Distraught, she had never had any conflicts with anyone in the entertainment industry before. This time she offended the most prominent TV drama director because of Theodore. It was equivalent to offending half of the industry.

"Miss Little Bunny," Tanya hurried over.

As she saw Little Bunny be taken away by Theodore earlier, she dared not to approach her until now after calling their manager for instructions.

Little Bunny snapped out of her thoughts and said, "Help me remove my makeup, please."

There would be no filming tonight anyway. Since it had been a long, arduous journey to get here earlier today, the director had shown his concern for her just now.

But she was still vexed at what happened today-all her good impressions had been ruined by Theodore all at once.

Tanya nodded and said, "Okay, we're done here anyway."

Then they walked towards the makeup room, where they could hear voices coming from next door.

"No wonder Little Bunny had become so popular in the past few years, she has Theodore as her bank.

What a big name, he could affect the whole showbiz with ease." Said a woman, satirical.

"I never have guessed, Little Bunny was always humble and amicable, but she's just pretending. What a creepy woman!" another one echoed.

Chapter 1057 Gossip

The idle gossip in the next room hadn't stopped yet.

"You reminded me, I made a mistake in one of my lines today and took an extra shot. Do you think she will note it down?"

"I don't think so..."

"By the way,"

"What's the matter?"

"Do you still remember? It was during the award ceremony, Valerie Criss came on stage together with her to receive the awards. Valerie spoke quickly and stole a line from her..."

"Now Valerie is banned!" Exclaimed the other woman.

Little Bunny tightly pursed her lip. Valerie Criss did intentionally steal her lines, and it was also exposed in the media and did a small hot search. But the hot search was not bought by Little Bunny, but by Valerie herself, for the sake of exposure. She deemed it a way to get popular anyway but didn't expect that shortly after the hot search came out, she was banned by her agency.

It had nothing to do with Little Bunny. The reason for the ban was only because Valerie Criss was discovered by her agency to be in a romantic relationship. Valerie, as a member of a girl's group, was not allowed to date anyone without permission. However, the brokerage company didn't want to make things bigger, so they hid the news. Thus, only a very few people knew the inside story.

At this moment.

But the outsiders thought it was all Little Bunny's trick. Tanya was about to speak for her, but Little Bunny gave her a look to stop. She knew Tanya wanted to protect her, yet she didn't want to get into another situation. She was afraid to let the gossiping girls know that she had heard their conversation and that if something happened to the two of them, she would be blamed again.

She was just so silent. It wasn't until the two were asked for filming that they stopped chatting.

"Miss Little Bunny, how could you swallow your words so patiently?" Tanya pleaded against injustice, "They are framing you."

"Forget it, Nothing's on blast if the rumours aren't true, right?" Little Bunny said indifferently.

"But..."

"Help me take off the makeup, Tanya."

Due to the remote nature of the place, the makeup artists were too busy to take care of her. So the makeup removal was usually done by the actors' assistants.

"Since you and Captain Wold have a relationship, you cannot hurt yourself, Miss Little Bunny." Tanya was still indignant as she removed her makeup.

"Do you also think he and I have a good relationship?" asked Little Bunny.

"Isn't it obvious?" Tanya said cautiously. She felt like Theodore and Little Bunny had been together for a while now. When Theodore dragged Little Bunny away just now, it seemed like he was still pursuing her. Little Bunny pondered on this. She might be stuck with the reputation of being supported by Theodore for the rest of her life.

Suddenly, her phone rang in silence.

Little Bunny looked at her agent's call and answered it.

"When did you and Theodore get together?" The agent asked straight away.

"I said that there's nothing between me and Theodore, do you believe me?" Little Bunny replied as she looked at herself in the mirror.

"What do you think?"

"I don't want anything to do with him." Little Bunny stated her thoughts without further explanation.

"If you're involved with him, why haven't we gotten back all those endorsements and notices that we lost?!" The agent was angry. He only cared about the interests after all.

"I won't have anything to do with Theodore. I won't ask him for anything," Little Bunny repeated firmly before hanging up on him directly.

For so long, she had never argued with her agent before. Her agent also thought that among all the artists he had brought along, Little Bunny was one of his best ones. But now this sudden rebellion from Little Bunny made him realize that something wasn't simple between her and Theodore.

Little Bunny didn't want to speculate what was going through his mind though; she just felt annoyed.

After removing her makeup, Little Bunny left the dressing room immediately as soon as possible but ran into Addison, who had just finished filming and come back to remove her makeup too. The two met eyes briefly but neither spoke until Addison reached out to grab her hand.

“Little Bunny,” Addison called out softly.

Her eyes flickered slightly,

“Are you okay?” he asked concernedly

Little Bunny was surprised; she never expected Addison would care about how she felt or what happened between herself and Theodore.

She replied, “I’m fine.”

“I don’t know what your relationship is with Theodore exactly but I think he’s not someone easy to deal with so maybe try not getting too involved.”

She looked at him and nodded slowly. Addison smiled slightly at her, revealing his neat white teeth. His fans always said that his smile was very healing. At this moment, Little Bunny finally understood why his fans loved him so much.

“Don’t worry,” Addison said. “As actors, all we need to do is focus on filming well.”

These simple words made Little Bunny feel warm inside.

“Thank you, Addison.”

“Silly girl,” Addison laughed. “We’re friends, no need to be polite. Go back and rest early tonight, see you tomorrow.”

“See you tomorrow.”

Addison left and Little Bunny watched him walk away before turning to leave herself.

“Addison is so nice, handsome with a great body and acting skills too! And he’s so warm-hearted!”

Tanya couldn’t help but say excitedly. “I think I’m becoming his fan!”

Little Bunny listened silently.

“When the rumours about you and Addison dating came out before, how many people shipped you guys?” Tanya asked regretfully.

Tanya’s words reminded her of Theodore-as long as he was around, there would be no rumours about her with anyone else.

Little Bunny and Tanya returned to their inn, which had been rented by the production crew for them to stay in while filming. When they got back there were other people already resting in the inn too.

Everyone seemed a bit awkward around Little Bunny now, for fear of accidentally offending her. But she didn’t say anything about it either way. She took Tanya back to their room only to find someone cleaning up inside it already, which made her frown slightly in confusion

“The director arranged for Caroline’s cameo scene tomorrow, but there is no other room available. He said you won’t stay here so I have to clear out your room. Are you coming back to pick up something?” a staff member explained and asked.

“What do you mean we’re not staying here anymore?!” Tanya immediately flared up angrily.

“The director said that Miss Little Bunny will be staying over at Mr Wold’s place tonight so he asked me to come clean up your room instead.” The staff member stuttered nervously under their angry gaze.

He was just following orders after all.

Chapter 1058 Compromise

Little Bunny was angry. Tanya was even more upset and started cursing, “Who the hell said we were supposed to stay with Mr Wold? We’re staying here tonight and not going anywhere! Take all of Caroline’s things away from here!”

The staff member looked embarrassed and didn’t know how this misunderstanding had occurred. It was the director who had instructed him to do so. Tanya’s outburst left him feeling a bit helpless.

Little Bunny glanced at the staff member and called out to Tanya, "Call the director and tell him that I won't be going anywhere tonight, let him find another room for Caroline."

"Okay," Tanya angrily dialed the director's number, "Who allows you to clean up Little Bunny's room? This is outrageous!"

The director responded with an unpleasant tone, "We have limited options here, there are only two guesthouses in town. Originally we had booked both of them but when Mr Wold arrived unexpectedly, one of them cancelled our reservation, leaving us no choice but to put all our artists into shared rooms."

"What does that have to do with us? Why should she take our room?"

"It has everything to do with you! Can't you see why Mr Wold is coming? She already has a place to stay, why should she take up resources allocated for others?"

"You're being unreasonable! What does Mr Wold have anything got to do with us being kicked out?"

Little Bunny gestured for Tanya to hand over her phone. Tanya reluctantly handed it over. Without hesitation, Little Bunny spoke directly into the phone, "Director, I never said I wanted to stay at Theodore's place. Isn't it a bit much for you guys just go ahead without my consent?"

Upon hearing her voice, the director softened his tone slightly as he explained himself further, "Please understand me. You also know Caroline's position in the entertainment industry right now, we finally convinced her to give us a cameo appearance and that will help to increase exposure rates as well as viewership ratings for our show."

"Just now Caroline's agent called me specifically, requesting that she be given a separate room. I couldn't refuse. Please bear with it since Caroline will only be staying one day before leaving tomorrow."

"That may be your problem," replied Little Bunny firmly without any intention of compromising on this issue.

"Little Bunny, why are you making things difficult for me? Everyone knows about your relationship with Mr Wold, so why bother hiding it? Mr Wold came all this way to see you, and tonight you can't possibly accompany him, right?!" The director didn't want to offend Little Bunny too much. However, what happened in the afternoon still made him a little angry.

"Just for one night. As soon as Caroline leaves tomorrow, I'll immediately clear out the room for you. I promise to keep it reserved for you and no one else will use your room in the future." The director's voice became a little humble.

Little Bunny had never had any grudges against anyone in the entertainment industry before. She hesitated but still didn't want to agree. She couldn't possibly live with Theodore. Nor would she go to his guesthouse either. But no one would believe that nothing was going on between her and Theodore. If she refused the director now, he would have even more bias against her.

"Little Bunny, it's settled then." Without getting a response from her, the director quickly said again. Little Bunny agreed with a sound and hung up the phone. Tanya looked at her anxiously and asked, "What did he say?"

"Take our things out."

"What?!"

Tanya hadn't expected this outcome at all.

"I'll wait outside for you." Little Bunny turned around and left.

Tanya felt a little unhappy inside but eventually packed their luggage together with other crew members. Outside of their guesthouse yard, Little Bunny waited anxiously while thinking about where they could stay tonight.

In their car?

Since it was a very long journey to get here, they couldn't rent a nanny car. They only had an ordinary business car. She wondered if it would be cold at night. As she pondered over these thoughts, she heard some commotion from afar.

Turning around, she saw Caroline walking towards them surrounded by people. The reception was quite grand. Their director personally went to receive her.

Indeed, Caroline had done well in developing herself within these years of being in showbiz.

Before, Little Bunny gave up a hard-won role to Caroline because she had a child with Theodore.

Caroline was quite capable and with that likeable supporting female role, she quickly became loved by most people. Later, she starred in several popular TV dramas and then entered the film industry. She participated in many variety shows and was now considered one of the top stars in the industry, commanding high fees and having great influence.

When Caroline saw Little Bunny, she was pleasantly surprised and rushed over to hug her excitedly saying, "Little Bunny! Long time no see!"

Little Bunny smiled politely but perhaps only she knew how unwilling Caroline was inside. Everyone thought that they had a good relationship.

After filming that drama, during interviews, Caroline always mentioned Little Bunny as her benefactor to whom she was grateful. She said they were very close. Fans thought they had an immortal friendship at that time.

Little Bunny also believed it then. So after making her comeback later on, she went to find Caroline. At that time, Caroline already had a place in the entertainment industry and promised to keep an eye out for any good resources like TV dramas or variety shows for her. After waiting for three months without hearing anything from Caroline's side, she went to ask her for any news. But she happened to hear some sarcastic words from Caroline outside of her makeup room, saying, "Little bunny is too naive. The resources in this circle are so limited, if I gave her all, what do I have? It's just a talk, I didn't expect her to take it seriously. Lydia, find a little supporting role, anything you can get in my name, no need to put a lot of thought into it. Give her an indifferent one so I can send her away."

That was when Little Bunny realized there wasn't any such thing as friendship within this entertainment circle. Afterwards, she never looked for Caroline for help again but fortunately, luck seemed to be on her side later on. When she thought that she could only rely on herself to make it in the entertainment industry, Susan secretly helped her and landed her several major endorsements. This quickly gave her exposure in the industry and caught the attention of directors who provided her with resources. She had always been passionate about acting and approached every role with great seriousness, which eventually led to her success.

However, she was not as famous as Caroline who was more commercially valuable due to being a celebrity beyond just acting. In terms of status in the entertainment industry, Caroline held a higher position than her.

Chapter 1059 The Nasty Side

"I heard that my room was specially cleared out for me by you," Caroline said casually, being affectionate towards Little Bunny. "I knew you were the best to me. If it weren't for you on set, I wouldn't have agreed to guest star in this film. After tomorrow's shoot, I have to rush off to attend an awards ceremony overseas. It's like I'm becoming a flying person."

"You've worked hard," Little Bunny tried to distance herself.

Although there wasn't much genuine emotion, she didn't want to deliberately act.

"I'm a little tired now, so I'll go back to my room first and come over later so we can play together. We haven't seen each other in ages." Caroline warmly invited her.

"Okay," Little Bunny smiled slightly, wanting to end the show as quickly as possible. In such situations, she couldn't let her reputation be ruined by acting difficult with Caroline,

Who knew when a notice saying something like how Little Bunny acted high and mighty in front of Caroline might come out?

She couldn't handle that kind of pressure at all.

"See ya later." Caroline waved goodbye as they all followed her upstairs.

At this moment, Tanya also came down from upstairs and looked at Caroline with disdain inside.

If she weren't Little Bunny's assistant, she would've thought that Caroline was sincere towards Little Bunny and they were close as was rumoured.

Until one time when she undoubtedly heard about Caroline talking with a director about casting roles for a movie, she saw Caroline underneath.

The director said there was a role suitable for Little Bunny and asked if she could participate, Caroline did not hesitate at all and said that Little Bunny was too busy during this period, and recommended someone else right away.

But during that period, there were no notices given out regarding any work engagements for Little Bunny.

Sometimes, you could never know everything about a person.

Tanya walked up beside Little Bunny and said, "Everything is packed up."

"Let's go."

"Where are we going?" Tanya asked. "To Mr Wold's place?"

"To the car."

"...?" Tanya was surprised.

Little Bunny didn't explain either way, since everyone already believed nothing happened between her and Theodore anyway. Tanya followed her onto the business car, which wasn't comfortable at all. It was still cold inside without any extra blankets available. Little Bunny just draped one jacket over herself as cover while sleeping. Tanya sat in the front seat but couldn't fall asleep no matter what.

"The more I think about it, the angrier I get," Tanya couldn't help but complain. "As the lead actress, I can't believe this is how they treat you! Caroline is just a guest star, yet the director acts like her lapdog."

Little Bunny didn't respond. After all, in the entertainment industry, it was not about screen time but status.

"And even if we're talking about giving up rooms to someone else, I refuse to give mine up to that fake-faced Caroline. She talks about being your good friend and even sells your friendship in front of the media with a grandiose display of loyalty and righteousness. But she never gives you any resources and even intentionally ruins yours. I want to expose her!"

"Okay. Let's go to sleep." Little Bunny didn't want to hear anymore. After all, she had no good feelings towards Caroline either. But she couldn't offend everyone in this circle.

With Caroline's current status, whatever she said went.

Caroline settled into her room. In private, without outsiders around, her true colours were exposed instantly.

"What kind of dump is this?! If it wasn't for my paycheck there's no way in hell I'd come here!" Caroline said with a straight face.

Naturally, her agent spoiled her since she was their cash cow so they quickly said, "Look at you, throw tantrums like a child again! I told you, Stord has a big production coming up for his next project, do you still want that female lead role?"

"I already have my place on the movie screen, why would I go back to TV?"

"The movie screen will fade away, what truly captures people's hearts are good TV dramas. Look at how Little Bunny climbed up these past few years, it's because she acted in several well-received TV dramas." The agent advised.

"If it weren't for me leaving TV drama circles, where would Little Bunny be?" Caroline sneered. She openly showed disdain and wariness towards Little Bunny. But she didn't show it outwardly, since she didn't want anyone to know that deep down inside she was worried that Little Bunny might steal her thunder. Before they both trained together under one agency, Caroline knew exactly how hardworking and capable Little Bunny was. She feared one careless mistake could cause Little Bunny to surpass herself. So she would no way letting give her rival any good resources from underfoot.

"In the past saying something like this wouldn't bother me but now... I'm not so sure," The agent spoke up again.

Caroline's face turned livid.

"It's not that I think you're worse than Little Bunny. Your commercial value is naturally better than hers in every aspect, involving more areas and resources. However..." the agent paused, "I just heard the news that Theodore has taken Little Bunny under his wing."

"What?!" Caroline was shocked.

"I'm surprised too. It's well known that Theodore has many women in the entertainment industry, but those who follow him may get some benefits from him but ultimately they are just flashes in the pan and won't make much of a splash." The agent said.

"So what is there to worry about?" Caroline calmed down again.

She knew that Little Bunny had slept her way up these past few years. But she never expected her to hook up with Theodore. She thought Little Bunny didn't even know who to sleep with for advancement. No wonder she had been lukewarm all these years.

"Theodore treats Little Bunny differently."

"What's different?" Caroline sneered.

"Theodore came to see her and he's here now." The agent said, "Do you know how Little Bunny gave you the room? It's because she went over to Theodore's place. He's staying at an inn alone."

Caroline visibly changed expression.

"I am a little worried though," the agent continued, "that with Theodore's help, she might snatch away the female lead role of Stord's next movie."

"Hmph," Caroline scoffed sarcastically mixed with anger brewing inside her as well.

"But don't worry too much. I'll talk to Stord about collaborating on a TV drama tomorrow since he has been wanting it for quite some time now. Let me see what his thoughts are first before we proceed further." The agent advised sternly before adding, "But you have to act well, so don't let her overshadow your performance."

Caroline nodded in agreement while already having other plans forming inside her head. She checked the time and said, "It's still early, I'll go out for a run."

"In this dark place? What kind of running can you do here? Exercise tomorrow instead. One day won't make any difference." The agent replied sceptically.

“My coach says not even one day should be skipped from the training schedule.” Caroline retorted back firmly, “I’ll go change my clothes first.”

Chapter 1060 Honey Trap

Caroline changed into sportswear and left the homestay. The agent was originally supposed to accompany her, but she refused and had the assistant accompany her instead. They ran for a while. Caroline said she didn’t want anyone to follow her and even dismissed her assistant. Now, she was alone. Caroline quickly took out her phone and searched for a location. It was a 5-minute walk.

Grinning evilly, she followed the navigation and soon found another homestay. It was not that she wanted to hook up with Theodore. To be honest, she didn’t think she was stupid enough as Little Bunny to seduce someone who was of little use to her. If she were to engage in such behaviour, it would only be with someone who could provide her with tangible benefits. Otherwise, she wouldn’t have been able to achieve the level of success that she has today based solely on luck and acting skills. She also had a keen eye for identifying people who could be useful to her and could distinguish them at a glance. So now, she was about to set a honey trap for Theodore to teach Little Bunny a lesson and let her quit competing for the female lead willingly.

With a suspicious mind, Caroline arrived at the homestay.

After taking a deep breath, she intentionally twisted her ankle and screamed out for attention.

Someone in the house noticed her voice and walked out. The boss of the homestay came out and saw a slim, graceful lady at the door. Through the dim light at night, he could see her suffering face.

“What’s wrong?”

“I was running and accidentally twisted my ankle. Can I come in and rest for a bit?” Caroline said, her voice choked with emotion.

The boss, who was a middle-aged man, felt it hard to turn such a young lady down. But when he thought about the fact that Theodore lived inside, he didn’t dare to agree easily. He said, “I’m sorry miss, this small place is not serving other outsiders today.”

“I just came in to take a break.”

“Sorry, I can’t...”

“But my legs hurt a lot.”

“Where do you live? Are you here to film next door?” the boss asked, as he didn’t get a good look at Caroline’s appearance and didn’t recognize her right away.

“Yes, but I seem to have gotten lost and ended up here without realizing it. It hurt a lot, I can’t walk anymore.”

“How about I give you a ride there? I’ll drive.” The boss offered warmly.

Caroline felt annoyed inside-she came for Theodore right now. How could she just leave without even meeting him yet?

“I heard Mr Wold is here, I know him. I just want to say hello.”

The boss was taken aback.

“I’m his friend,” Caroline said, lifting her head to face her boss. “I’m Caroline.”

She was well-known everywhere, and of course, the boss knew her. Knowing her name, there was naturally much less guard in him.

“Are you a friend of his?”

“You’ll know as soon as I meet Mr Wold inside.” Caroline smiled faintly.

The boss couldn't refuse in front of her smiling face. He hurried forward to support her and said, "Let me help you inside, be careful."

"Thank you, sir." Caroline smiled sweetly.

The boss's heart softened as she laughed.

"Which room is Mr Wold in?" asked she.

"I'll take you there." The boss didn't hesitate at all.

"Thank you." Caroline knew that the beauty strategy was the best weapon for a woman.

The boss dropped her off at Theodore's doorstep. Caroline said, "I would prefer to meet with Mr Wold alone. Thank you very much, sir."

"It's okay."

As the boss left, he couldn't help but take two more glances at Caroline, finding her figure and appearance so captivating. Although he was smitten by her, he was well aware that he would better not mid others' business. So he left quickly and pretended not to see her.

Caroline knocked on Theodore's door while mentally preparing herself.

"Come in, the door isn't locked." Came Theodore's voice from inside. His voice had a hint of magnetism, which sounded much better than she thought.

Caroline suppressed the excitement inside and pushed open the door slowly.

She didn't see Theodore in the room, but she saw a figure in the bathroom.

Caroline's heart was racing. She didn't even know why she could be so nervous. This was not the first time for her to do this kind of thing. She told herself to stay calm.

At that moment, the bathroom door opened, through which a young man walked out. He didn't wear anything, apart from a bath towel that was wrapped around his waist. His hair was still slightly damp, indicating that it had just been washed or showered.

Theodore's eyes narrowed.

Who was this woman?!

Caroline also stared straight at Theodore. She never expected Theodore to be so handsome, much more than whom she saw on TV. Occasionally on TV, Theodore attended various important occasions. By Commander's side, he was not very prominent in terms of identity or appearance, so he was often overlooked by others. However, at the moment of meeting him in person, all her previous prejudices towards him were completely negated, including those that were mundane and ordinary.

Theodore was also in good shape. His muscle lines were distinct and prominent, especially those abdominal muscles. Though she had seen so many celebrities in showbiz, Theodore's wild appearance caught all her attention at this moment. She even felt that his whole body was very strong. Perhaps he would amaze her in bed.

"Who are you?!" Theodore looked at Caroline, furrowing his brow.

Wasn't he staying in private accommodation alone?!

How came there were idle and miscellaneous people appearing?

Theodore's unfriendly tone quickly snapped her back to reality, and she said, "Hello Mr Wold, I am Caroline."

"Who is Caroline?"

Caroline's face, which was full of smiles, suddenly frozen.

Wasn't it said that Theodore was indiscriminate towards actresses in the entertainment industry?!

She thought Theodore should have known her since she was so popular.

At that moment, Caroline didn't show any signs of surprise and quickly explained, "I am Little Bunny's best friend and I came to find her. I heard she was here with you.”

She was a bit surprised that Little Bunny wasn't there. She had long planned an excuse to flaunt herself in front of Theodore under the guise of Little Bunny.

“Are you her best friend?” Theodore couldn't help but glance at Caroline again.

“Yes,” Caroline nodded quickly.

She could feel that Theodore had a different feeling towards Little Bunny.

“Isn't she in the same room with you?” Caroline asked again while secretly pleased with Little Bunny's absence.