

Reborn 1161

Chapter 1161 Travel (5) Getting Along

Theodore also found that no matter how he wiped, he couldn't wipe it away, feeling a bit annoyed.

"Don't move." Little Bunny decided to help him. She put down her fishing rod and walked over to Theodore. She then bent down and wiped the sunscreen off his face. Little Bunny saw that at least half of the sunscreen had been squeezed out by Theodore, and he applied it all over his face. She wondered if Theodore had negative intelligence.

She wiped Theodore's face very seriously, putting the excess sunscreen in her palm and carefully picking it off his face bit by bit.

Theodore was still restless, but as Little Bunny approached, his body suddenly straightened up. He dared not move or look into her eyes, afraid of making her uncomfortable. Thus he kept his distance from her. As his eyes naturally drooped down, he saw her deep cleavage.

Theodore started to salivate. His Adam's apple kept moving up and down. He thought Little Bunny was a magnificent alluring creature around him.

Theodore started doubting if Hannah said right. Somehow, he suspected that Little Bunny was deliberately seducing him.

Theodore thought a lot.

Suddenly, Little Bunny said, "Finished."

Theodore quickly regained his senses, then he took a deep breath and relaxed as if he just had gone through a great torment. He released his extremely anguished look.

"Does it hurt?" Little Bunny wondered if she had used too much force on his face just now.

"Nope." Theodore quickly replied.

"Lie down then, I'll apply the rest of it on your body."

"Do I still need to apply it to my body?" Theodore wondered.

"You will also get tanned on your body."

"Oh, right. You prefer something fair skin." Theodore seemed to understand immediately.

But she just didn't want to waste the sunscreen. Theodore lowered the chair and lay down straight.

"Lie on your stomach, I'll apply it on your back, but you can do the rest yourself."

"Oh."

Theodore quickly turned over. Little Bunny applied the sunscreen from her palms onto Theodore's back.

Feeling her tender palms on him, Theodore would have pressed Little Bunny against the deck and had a lot of sex but for Hannah's reminder.

“Theodore, Theodore?” Little Bunny called out to him a few times, but he didn’t seem to be asleep. He was conscious but dazed. Suddenly, Theodore snapped out of it and looked at Little Bunny who was observing him up close. At such a close distance, he could even smell her unique scent.

He couldn’t resist any longer and suddenly pressed her down beneath him. Little Bunny was startled and didn’t expect Theodore to lose control like this all of a sudden. These past few days had been peaceful. But then again, Little Bunny wasn’t surprised either because she knew that Theodore wouldn’t be able to hold back for long.

She lay there beneath him without panicking or struggling against his grip. However, she still felt repulsed by his touch, no matter how much her opinion of him might have changed recently.

She just watched as Theodore’s face came closer and closer until the sunlight was completely blocked out by his body above hers. She closed her eyes since there wasn’t anything she could do about it anyway; staying with Theodore meant being prepared for whatever he wanted from her.

However, after some time passed by without any movement from Theodore despite the obvious physical reaction in his body that she felt underneath him. Everything had suddenly frozen in place. Little Bunny opened her eyes, only to see the suppressed discomfort on his face as he tried hard not to give into temptation.

When did he become so patient? Wasn’t satisfying himself always what mattered most?

Little Bunny kept watching as finally after what seemed like an eternity passed by without anything happening between them at all. Eventually, Theodore got up off the top of her and took deep breaths.

If it hadn’t been for seeing the disgust and despair flash across her eyes when they were closed earlier on, Theodore would’ve gone through with everything.

Hannah had been right about one thing though-Little Bunny did hate him now more than ever before. Even if she didn’t refuse whenever they were together physically, inside herself there remained an aversion towards being touched or handled intimately anymore.

Theodore left quietly while she breathed a sigh of relief. They were both silent, feeling awkward now after what just happened moments ago.

“Do you need the rest of it?” Little Bunny asked him and held out the sunscreen in front of his face.

Theodore nodded and said, “Sure.”

“Do as I showed you earlier, apply it to your neck, chest, arms and legs, anywhere.”

“Okay,” Theodore asked again. “Do you need me to help you apply it?”

“I already applied it when I changed into my swimsuit.”

“Oh,” Theodore replied.

Little Bunny gave all the sunscreen on her hands to Theodore and went to wash her hands before sitting back in her chair to continue fishing. Theodore quickly applied the sunscreen on himself, washed his hands and started fishing as well. The two of them sat quietly until Little Bunny suddenly felt some movement on her fishing rod.

“Theodore!” she exclaimed excitedly.

Theodore also noticed the movement and hurried over to help her pull up the rod together. They caught a small fish.

“I’ll go get the grill so we can cook it,” Theodore said enthusiastically.

It took them a while just to catch one fish.

“Do you want me to gut it?”

“Why do we need to gut it?”

“There are many organs inside that cannot be eaten.”

“Really?” Theodore was surprised.

“I’ll do it,” Little Bunny took the fish from his hand and went into the cabin kitchen where she found what she needed. Theodore followed Little Bunny inside the kitchen. He watched as she worked with such gracefulness.

“Little Bunny, I’m curious about something... how come you know how to do everything? Don’t tell me that’s because of our relationship because I don’t believe that.”

“A poor child must grow up fast”

“Is your family really poor?”

“We’re not wealthy either way.”

“Where are you from? What do your parents do? I’ve never seen your parents or any of your relatives.” Theodore suddenly realized that he knew little about her.

“My parents divorced when I was young then both remarried. They have their children. So my grandmother raised me instead. After my grandmother passed away, I came here for work and then became a trainee in the entertainment industry.”

“I never thought you live a difficult life.” Said he, commiserated.

Little Bunny didn’t pity herself for she didn’t think her life was difficult. But since she met Theodore, she had had little hope for her life.

Chapter 1162 Travel (6) Apology

They chatted while grilling. Besides the sea fish they fish for, there was a lot of food on the yacht. Most Theodore was enjoying the food, while Little Bunny was barbecuing for him. Little Bunny got a nice craft of barbecue. Theodore ate a lot.

After fishing on the deck for a while, they were tired from fishing and thus they lay down on chairs and took a nap, listening to the sound of the waves. At the moment, Theodore was genuine in his wish to spend the rest of his life with her.

It was evening. Little Bunny thought it was time to go back after playing all day. The waves at night had noticeably increased, and even on the yacht, they could feel the severe shaking. As she was preparing to suggest going back, there was a sudden power outage on the deck. The lights there all went out. But Theodore was not by her side. Despite the starry sky above, Little Bunny was a bit scared. The moment when she was about to scream. There was a sudden light on the deck.

Theodore appeared in front of her, holding a bouquet of roses with colourful lights in his hand. This was arranged by him, including the power outage. Though a bit confused since Theodore had been abnormal these days, this surprise did even her fear at that moment.

Theodore who was under the colourful lights seemed a bit nervous. He opened his mouth, trying to speak several times. After a while of silence, he took a deep breath and mustered courage before speaking, "Little Bunny,"

"I know you hate me, think I'm dirty. I know I have done a lot of things that annoyed you before, and the worst thing was to use you to bed with other women when you're pregnant. When I think of it now, I feel like I should be ground into..." Theodore was straightforward, accepting her accusation of him and being a bit excited.

But Little Bunny didn't want to reminisce about past events anymore.

"I don't deny that I've slept with many women, I can't even count them, and I can't remember who they were. I regret it my gut is full of regret. Why was I such a jerk before?"

Little Bunny listened without responding.

"I don't know if my change can win you back, but I wanna try. I wanna try and make you accept me again, even though it may be naive. Susan once mocked me and told me to stay away from you so as not to hinder your happiness, but I can't do that. Just the thought of you being with other men in the future, getting married, having sex and children... it tears me apart."

"So I don't want to give up on you and never will! Besides Hannah supports me." Suddenly Theodore seemed confident.

Little Bunny was impressed by Theodore's words. With just a few sentences he managed to drag Susan and Hannah into an unrighteous situation.

But he mentioned Hannah?!

Which Hannah?!

Wasn't she dead?

"You said, Hannah?" Little Bunny couldn't help asking finally.

Theodore also realized that she didn't know that Hannah was still alive yet, and quickly explained everything from beginning to end about why Hannah became Besse, and how Besse became Hannah. He told her everything.

"Damn! Did we get sidetracked?" Suddenly Theodore realized that he had forgotten his intention tonight. They discussed many things including the relationship between Hannah and Oscar. He didn't know where his confidence came from when evaluating others' relationships.

"Let's continue our thing." Said he.

Little Bunny fell silent once more, while earlier when they talked about Oscar and Hannah's relationship, Little Bunny asked many questions.

"When I said I won't give up on you, I meant it. It took so much effort for me just like someone this much, to like someone until sometimes thinking of you makes my heart ache. I cannot accept seeing other men with you. Little Bunny, I will work hard. I will work hard at becoming the kind of man you like."

Still, Little Bunny chose silence as her response. She didn't quite believe Theodore. To be precise, she didn't want to be with him at all, no matter who he became. She had no feelings for him either. She would instead abandon her than make any changes for her.

"I'm not here to confess my love today," Theodore quickly said as he noticed Little Bunny's silence.

"I'm mainly here to apologize to you today, Little Bunny," Theodore said loudly.

"It's okay, it's all in the past. There's no need to apologize." She had never expected an apology from him, since apologizing wouldn't make a difference. And, she never thought about forgiving.

"No, I need to. Hannah said I must apologize sincerely." Theodore was firm, "When I saw you kissing Addison, I slapped you. It must have hurt, right?"

She thought that Theodore was going to apologize for something else before.

The slap was indeed a bit painful, yet she didn't complain, since she felt that she was guilty at that time- when she was with Theodore, having such intimate contact with other men was indeed her fault.

What she couldn't let go of was what Theodore had done in the past. Simply put, she did want to leave him.

"The pian's gone, and you don't need to apologize for slapping me. It's my fault. I didn't blame you." Little Bunny told the truth. This was probably the only thing about which she felt a slight sense of guilt towards Theodore. She kissed Addison outside of work while she had a relationship with Theodore.

"No, no. No matter how angry I was, it's wrong for a man to hit a woman." Theodore said. "I swear I won't hit you again no matter what mistake you make in the future. I'm not saying you can cheat on me, but what I mean is that please don't cheat on me either. And I won't hit you again."

"Okay," Little Bunny agreed readily.

"Have you forgiven me then?"

“Um.” There was no blame for hitting her, so forgiveness came naturally.

Theodore grinned brightly.

Little Bunny thought that if she hadn't experienced so much in the past, perhaps she would be moved by Theodore.

Chapter 1163 Travel (7) Drinking

Theodore gave the bouquet of roses to Little Bunny, and also a necklace for her.

Little Bunny did not refuse either. And then Theodore took her back to the villa on his yacht.

I'm not sure if it was Theodore's words or not, but Little Bunny became less guarded towards Theodore. After that, they spent a lot of time playing together on the island and got along very well. Theodore respected her very much and would not overstep his bounds, while Little Bunny was no longer so averse to him. Besides, they went to the local shopping centre where they spent a lot of money.

Half a month, just like quicksand, passed in an instant. They were going back tomorrow.

Theodore was so reluctant to leave here. He was sincere in his wish to be with Little Bunny here, until the end of time. When he got old, he would live alone with her by the seaside. He now had no interest in the bustling world outside.

After Little Bunny finished taking a bath, she went outside to pour herself a glass of water and then got ready for bed. She had just received her agent's work schedule for her the day before they left. After arranging everything, the agent still insincerely asked if it would be difficult for her.

She replied to the agent, “No problem.”

Then she planned to go to bed early tonight for a good rest. The day after tomorrow, she would have to work again.

Little Bunny walked down to the lobby and looked through the floor-to-ceiling windows outside, where she saw Theodore sitting alone on a chair outside the villa, staring at the sea in a daze. She inexplicably felt that Theodore was a bit sentimental and lonely at the moment.

She brought the cup of water with her while walking out. She saw Theodore smoking.

He saw Little Bunny and quickly extinguished his cigarette butt.

“Ain't you gonna go to sleep?” Theodore asked.

Little Bunny usually slept quite early to take care of her beauty.

“Why are you still up?” asked she.

“I can't sleep, feeling a bit reluctant,” Theodore said softly, then chuckled at himself, “You should be eager to go back early.”

“No.” She said, “I rarely have much free time. It's rare to have this half-month vacation, and I feel very comfortable.”

“Really?”

“Uh-huh.”

“Do you wanna stay a bit longer here? I can talk with your agent.”

Little Bunny did not respond.

“Just kidding,” Theodore said. “I gotta go back, or Oscar will fire me.”

Little Bunny smiled slightly. For some reason, she suddenly felt that Theodore was a little warm as if he wasn't just thinking about himself anymore, instead, he was also considering others and not making things difficult for her.

“Get some rest.” With that said, Little Bunny turned around to leave.

As she left, Theodore suddenly stood up and hugged her from behind. Little Bunny's heart skipped a beat.

“I just wanted to hug you,” Theodore whispered in her ear.

She didn't resist and believed what he said. Theodore had been respectful towards her lately, so she had developed some trust in him. At this moment, she let him hold her tightly in his arms while feeling the sea breeze on their faces and watching the stars twinkle above them. This place was like a vacation paradise.

“Little Bunny, will you like me?” Suddenly asked Theodore near her ear.

She was silent.

Theodore knew she couldn't say anything that would hurt others, which was different from himself. And, the silence was her answer.

He let go of Little Bunny.

“Get some rest, we have a long flight tomorrow.” He said

“You too.” She replied with a polite smile before walking away.

Theodore watched as Little Bunny walked away and felt lost in thought.

Nobody knew how much he wished he could hold onto her forever!

Meanwhile, back in their room, Little Bunny lay down on the bed but unexpectedly found herself unable to sleep. These past few days had been truly relaxing for her since sleep quality had always been good but now all that filled up of mind were thoughts of Theodore asking whether or not she liked him. She was determined to refuse at first, however, now there seemed to be an uncertainty creeping into those thoughts. Maybe it was just because of his deep voice, that romantic environment they were currently surrounded by, or perhaps it could be attributed solely because these past few days spent together with only each other made her guard come down.

"I shouldn't fall in love with him." Little Bunny thought as she sat up in bed. She couldn't sleep and wondered if it was because she had eaten something too salty, making her very thirsty. So, she got up and went downstairs to get some water.

Theodore was still awake when she came down. He wasn't outside enjoying the sea breeze like before; instead, he was sitting at the bar drinking alcohol. When he saw Little Bunny come down suddenly, he was surprised.

"You're not asleep yet?" asked she.

"I don't want to sleep. You can't sleep either?" Theodore replied.

"Well..."

"Would you like a drink?"

"If I drink with you, can you go to bed early?"

"Okay." Theodore answered while thinking that she hated to see him in the living room.

But actually, Little Bunny was just worrying about their schedule tomorrow if he didn't sleep early tonight.

She walked over to him as he poured her a glass of wine. "You have good drinking skills," Theodore commented as he watched her take a sip of wine elegantly.

"In show business, we can handle our liquor pretty well."

"I see." Theodore poured another glass of wine for her and said, "Drink however much you want."

"Two glasses only. You promised me you'll go to bed if I drink with you."

Theodore nodded helplessly since it seemed like there was no arguing with this stubborn woman.

"Alright." Said he.

After finishing their drinks together, Little Bunny urged him again. Theodore listened to her and readied himself for leaving the bar. But he stumbled slightly due to his dizziness from drinking too much alcohol alone earlier without eating anything substantial beforehand. But luckily enough for him, Little Bunny caught him just in time before he fell over completely.

He ended up falling into the embrace of her arms, which felt so warm and comforting that it left an indescribable feeling inside his heart. Theodore hugged her tightly.

Chapter 1164 Travel (8) The Morning

Theodore held Little Bunny in his arms. His body reeked of alcohol. Although Theodore didn't look fat, Little Bunny felt he was as heavy as a ton of bricks in her arms.

He was lost in the warmth of Little Bunny's embrace. He breathed in her unique scent and found it even more intoxicating than the alcohol he had just consumed.

"Come on, let me help you back to your room," said Little Bunny resignedly as she supported him.

Theodore leaned on her as they stumbled up the stairs together. Finally, after much effort, Little Bunny managed to get Theodore into his room and onto his bed. As soon as he lay down on the bed, Theodore felt the warmth of Little Bunny's embrace disappear from him. He felt a sense of loss wash over him instantly.

Despite being under the influence of alcohol, he had flushed cheeks and laboured breathing at this point. However; he did not dare do anything else with her. Little Bunny helped him onto the bed before turning around to leave but then thought better about it before heading towards the bathroom instead. She filled up a basin with warm water and used a warm towel to wash his face clean and wiped down both hands and feet. And then she tucked him into bed properly afterwards before leaving quietly once again without disturbing him any further.

Theodore raised his hand, intending to grab her arm, but his hand froze in the air before touching her. He couldn't do everything he wanted since Little Bunny was nice to him.

Little Bunny came back with a glass of water for him and put it on the nightstand beside him. "It would be easy to get thirsty after drinking. The water is placed next to you, when you wake up in the middle of the night, take a sip of the honey water, it can alleviate the discomfort in your stomach.."

"Little Bunny."

She was looking at him.

"You're too good to me, I'll miss you if you ever leave." Said he.

Little Bunny was just accustomed to taking care of him. However, his words made her start to reflect on herself.

"I'll try my best not to do so anymore." Replied she.

Theodore covered his eyes with one hand while chuckling. He wished she would have replied with another answer like she was treating him well because she liked him.

But he was overthinking it. It was all his wishful thinking.

He tried hard to close his eyes and not look at Little Bunny, afraid that if she said anything that shows she willingly cared for him, he would lose control and pounce on her.

Little Bunny turned around and left.

As she closed the door, she took a deep breath. She couldn't help but touch the position of her heart. It seemed to be faster than usual.

Was it because she was afraid that Theodore wouldn't let her go, or was it because she had a new understanding of Theodore?

But once she thought of the time when Theodore used her to find another woman, any different feelings for him were erased from her mind in an instant.

The following day.

It was 8 a. m.

Theodore hadn't gotten up yet. The plane would leave at 1 PM and would take three hours to get to the airport. If they didn't leave now, they would be cutting it close.

Little Bunny finally went to Theodore's room. She thought Theodore couldn't even get up today since he had drunk so much last night.

She knocked on the door twice.

No one was responding, so she walked straight into the room after opening the door. All she could think was that Theodore was still sleeping. But when she got in the room, she heard a woman's moaning and a man's heavy breathing. Since the room was soundproof, she couldn't hear anything before opening it. The woman's screams were so loud that it made her blush. To her surprise, Little Bunny saw Theodore watching a video on his phone and playing with himself.

When she realized what he was doing, she quickly turned around. Just as she was about to leave, Theodore, in a hurry, got out of bed and took three or four steps to her. He slammed the door shut directly.

Little Bunny was pinned against the door. And she could even feel him.

"Don't get me wrong," Theodore anxiously wanted to explain.

But he didn't know how to explain to her, she had seen what he was doing just now.

Damn it.

It was a dream that made him aroused in the early morning and he got to deal with himself. Little Bunny had had a bad impression of him, and now she might feel more averse against him.

"I I I..." Theodore stuttered and didn't know how to continue.

"I understand." Little Bunny said quickly.

She could still feel his heavy breathing at this point. How long had it been since Theodore had sex last time? It had been half a month since they arrived on this island and they had been together all the time, so naturally, Theodore did not go looking for women. He could have gone out to find women long ago but he had been staying with her all the time.

"I, I..." Theodore was a bit frustrated, "I couldn't help it. I can't do anything to you, so I have to do it myself. You must be disgusted!"

Theodore couldn't tell a lie.

Anyway, it was not the first time.

"No, I am not disgusted." She explained. And she didn't tell a lie. Instead, she thought Theodore had become a bit self-disciplined. At least, he didn't go out to find any random sexual partners, and neither did he force her.

"Are you lying to me?" Theodore asked, seemingly unsure.

"No,"

Theodore breathed a sigh of relief upon hearing her answer. As he was ready to release her, there came the exaggerated moans and groans of a man and woman from the video on his mobile phone.

He got aroused again. Little Bunny was also affected by the sound, feeling agitated and she somehow thought of the scene of the video.

“Little Bunny, can you help me?” Theodore asked in a husky low voice in her ear.

Little Bunny’s body tightened up.

“I won’t get in, I just need your legs.”

With that said, Theodore clung to her body tight.

Little Bunny was wearing a dress, which was light and silky. Theodore easily pulled up her dress. She didn’t dare to move a bit, in case she would provoke Theodore behind her, who was similar to a hungry lion.

Chapter 1165 Return Journey

The room was filled with suppressed voices. After quite a long time, it was over. Theodore buried his head in Little Bunny’s neck. When he watched the video and felt something, it was hard to reach that excitement point. He was also anxious because he needed to catch the flight. Now that Little Bunny was here, he was fully satisfied.

At this moment, Theodore still felt something inside coming out.

“Theodore?!” Little Bunny called out to him. She found he had finished.

“Um.”

“We won’t make it in time for the flight.”

“Um.”

Theodore remained still.

“Theodore,” Little Bunny shifted her body, urging him to leave. But her moves turned him on again. Theodore gritted his teeth and said, “Don’t move.”

Little Bunny could feel his desire from his tone of voice. She didn’t move anymore.

“Right now, I’m counting down ten seconds and then I’m leaving,” Theodore gasped.

“Ten, nine, eight, seven... three, two, one!”

As he finished counting, Theodore immediately leave her as if Little Bunny was A hot potato.

Little Bunny had finally gained freedom. And she opened the door quickly in the next second and ran away. When she returned to her room, she slammed the door shut and locked it.

Then she lowered her head and saw sticky liquid on her legs. She needed to take a shower now.

9:00 AM.

They got into the car heading to the airport. Inside the car, it was quiet. Theodore even dared not look Little Bunny in the eye. He now regretted it. What happened in the morning had no difference from having sex with her.

He was genuinely upset and remorseful.

Theodore took out his phone to distract himself from those painful thoughts. He sent a message to Hannah and told her about what happened in the early morning. He chatted a lot with Hannah recently. And he thought Hannah was somewhat scary but he believed that Hannah was the only person in this world who supported him. Even his father didn't support him in pursuing Little Bunny. Oscar and Manuel also had a negative attitude.

After he sent the message, he received several laughing emojis from Hannah. Without a doubt, Hannah must be laughing so hard that she was doubled over.

But in fact, Hannah couldn't laugh, since she had done the facial surgery and the cosmetic surgeon advised her to avoid any facial expressions as much as possible. She was also able to endure the pain in her liver.

Theodore was simply a bundle of joy, Hannah thought to herself. She shouldn't have checked his messages and replied to him every day.

Hannah tried to keep calm before replying to his message.

"It's okay. Little Bunny probably won't mind too much."

"Why? Did I offend her again?"

"Not really. You are pushing yourself to the edge. She knows you would rather do it yourself than force her. In a woman's mind, she would think you respect her. Although what you did... well, it's a bit too much. But it should be fine."

"Really?" Theodore asked persistently.

"Really," Hannah replied affirmatively, "what's most important now is to ease the awkwardness between you two. With that, you're embarrassed and so is she. If both of you continue to feel this way, your relationship won't progress. Actually, from what you've told me these past few days, I think she has changed her opinion of you. Her kindness towards you isn't just because she fears your power, some of it comes from her heart but she just doesn't want to admit it."

"Hannah, you are truly my saviour. If I can retrieve Little Bunny, I will bow down and offer thanks to you."

"..."

"Then I gotta talk with her."

"Don't make it too greasy."

"I know."

Theodore put down his phone. After being comforted by Hannah, his mood improved a lot. He turned his head to look at Little Bunny, who could also feel his gaze and turned her head to meet his eyes.

Suddenly, they flushed a bit, though they had slept in the bed hundreds of times.

“Um, would you like some water?” asked Theodore.

“No, thanks.”

“Oh, that thing this morning,” Theodore hesitated and stuttered.

Little Bunny shifted his gaze and said, “I already told you that I understand.”

“Aren’t you angry?”

“No.”

“Then you should just drink some water.”

“Hmm?”

“It proves you’re not angry.”

Little Bunny took the water from his hand and had a sip. Theodore breathed a sigh of relief as he watched her drink.

The car ride seemed to return to normal after that. Theodore occasionally found topics to chat with her about, and the awkwardness between them dissipated. Later, they arrived at the airport and checked in for their flight. The long-haul flight would take eight hours.

When they arrived in the Capital, it was still light outside due to the time difference. They left the airport and got into a waiting car. Little Bunny opened her phone and saw several missed calls from her agent.

She was quite confused but curious about the calls since her work would start tomorrow but not now.

Before she could speak, her agent urgently said, “Addison is in trouble!”

“What?!” Little Bunny’s face visibly changed at this news.

Theodore also sensed something was wrong now too.

“I heard that he was doing drugs with some people at a bar recently, and now it’s been exposed. The police are investigating him, and they announced this morning that there is evidence of drug use. He has been detained by the police.”

“That can’t be true!” Little Bunny couldn’t believe Addison would do such a thing; he had always been an exemplary figure in entertainment circles.

“Now that it’s official news, it must be true,” warned her agent urgently. “I’m calling you just to let you know. Since you’re coming back today, if any media interviews you about this matter later on, just say that you’re just one of his friends but don’t know much about his personal life beyond what everyone else knows through rumours or gossip.”

Little Bunny had no choice but to agree, “Okay.”

“Fortunately for you,” continued her agent, “you didn’t have too deep of a relationship with Addison before all this happened, otherwise... thank God nothing happened. Did you come home?” “I just got off the plane.”

“I’ll pick you up tomorrow. Are you at home or Mr Wold’s place?”

“Mr Wold’s place.”

“Alright, see you at 7 AM downstairs.”

“Um.”

Chapter 1166 Drug Scandal

“What’s wrong?” Theodore asked.

Little Bunny didn’t say anything, or more accurately, she didn’t even hear him. Her mind was completely consumed with Addison and she couldn’t believe he would do something like this. If he did do it, then someone must have set him up. With Addison being so popular right now, some people might be jealous and try to smear his name by any means necessary.

“Little Bunny!” Theodore suppressed his anger but still raised his voice a bit.

She snapped out of her thoughts and turned to look at him.

“What happened?” Theodore was getting impatient and on the verge of exploding. What could have happened that made her so helpless?

She looked at Theodore and suddenly thought that he could help Addison get out of trouble safely. But as soon as the thought came to her mind, she was shocked by it because there was no way that Theodore would help Addison. If anything bad happened to him, Theodore might even think it was well-deserved punishment for him.

The words were about to come out of Little Bunny’s mouth but she swallowed them back down again before saying, “Nothing. My agent just told me to prepare for work tomorrow.”

“Are you sure that’s all she said?” The doubt in Theodore’s eyes was obvious.

“Yeah,” Little Bunny replied without elaborating further before turning her head towards the window outside without any intention of speaking anymore. Her mood was very upset right now. All she could think about was what would happen to Addison next instead of doing anything else productive.

Theodore felt her indifferent attitude toward him and held back his temper after a momentary pause. He had said before that he didn’t want to go back home because as they returned home, she would change into someone different from who she used to be when they were on the island together. She was not exactly cold-hearted like this though. He lowered his head looking at his phone screen, where news app notifications popped up one after another, regarding Addison’s incident. Now, he realized why Little Bunny acted like this. It turned out something bad had happened with Addison. She became so panicky over something related to Addison.

Theodore trembled while holding onto the phone tightly in hand but took a deep breath telling himself repeatedly to calm down. He must remain calm.

“Addison got into trouble?” asked he. His voice sounded very calm despite everything going on inside him.

Little Bunny hesitated for a while before turning around and answering, “Um.”

“Drug use?” There seemed some sarcasm behind his tone when asking such a question.

“That’s not something he would do.” Little Bunny blurted out. After saying it, she tried to explain, “I’ve never seen him do drugs before.”

Theodore sneered.

Little Bunny didn’t bother explaining further.

“I’m a little tired. I’ll sleep for a while.” Said she.

It was obvious she didn’t want to talk to Theodore. Theodore’s face darkened, but he kept his anger to himself.

How could Little Bunny care so much about Addison? If he got into trouble, she wouldn’t even bat an eye and might even celebrate with champagne.

The car ride was silent until they arrived at Theodore’s upscale residence. They entered one after the other. Little Bunny went straight to her room and said she had work tomorrow and needed rest today before closing the door behind her.

Theodore looked at the closed door to her room, seething with anger. He knew she was just unwilling to ask him for help. Though furious, Theodore made a phone call, “Find out more about Addison’s drug use and what kind of punishment he’ll get in the end.”

“Yes, Captain.”

Theodore hung up, feeling like an idiot. He should have just watched Addison crash and burn.

In her room, Little Bunny lay in bed, unable to sleep as thoughts of Addison filled her mind. If this drug scandal stuck with him, it would ruin his career when he was at his peak. It wasn’t just because of how she felt about him. Anyone in his shoes deserved better treatment than this.

Suddenly her phone rang. It was Addison’s agent calling.

Because of the new TV series and movie including her and Addison, Little Bunny met Addison’s agent quite a lot recently, so they exchanged their phone numbers.

“Hello?” She answered.

“Miss Little Bunny? This is Yuna Kim from Addison’s agency.”

“I know who you are, Miss Kim.”

“I think you probably know by now that Addison has been arrested for drug use.”

“Yes, I heard it on the news just now.”

“Addison wouldn’t do something like this, he was set up,” said Yuna, sounding frustrated. As a prominent agent in the industry, she seemed exhausted. “He hasn’t been feeling great lately and has been going to bars with friends to drink occasionally. While he was drunk, someone injected him with drugs and the police arrived shortly after. They found that he tested positive for drugs but it’s all a misunderstanding!”

“Do you know who did this?” Little Bunny asked.

“We have no idea. The police don’t believe us and say we’re making excuses. The bar’s surveillance footage is also broken so I’m at my wits’ end here! You know if Addison is caught using drugs, not only will his career be over but his life will be ruined too! He’s such a hardworking guy. It’s unfair that someone would frame him like this.” Yuna choked up as she spoke.

“I came to you today not just to tell you about Addison but also because I need your help,” Yuna said after calming down.

“I don’t know how I can help you though. Even if I come forward and say that I believe Addison didn’t use drugs, there’s still concrete evidence against him which makes me look bad too as his agent.” Little Bunny replied helplessly.

“I’ve thought of that already. What I mean is can you ask Mr Wold for some assistance?” Yuna asked directly.

Little Bunny fell silent as she couldn’t promise anything.

“I know about your situation with Addison too,” continued Yuna softly. “Addison told me everything. Under immense pressure from the company he still confessed his feelings towards you in hopes of giving you a status. It was difficult for him to convince the company but they finally agreed on letting him date you. But then suddenly things ended between both of you. If not for the breakup causing so much pain on his part then maybe none of this would have happened.”

Hearing what Yuna had said made Little Bunny feel guilty. She could imagine just how painful and difficult things must have been for Addison before.

Chapter 1167 Another Conflict

“Little Bunny, I’m not trying to put you in a difficult position by asking you to clear Addison’s name in front of the public. It could affect your reputation. What I’m asking is for you to help save him through Theodore and give him his innocence back,” pleaded Yuna sincerely. “I’ve heard about your relationship with Theodore from Addison himself, and I can’t think of anyone else who can help us now.”

“Since you know about my relationship with Theodore, then you should also know that it’s not a legitimate one. There’s no guarantee that he’ll be able to help me out even if I ask him. Plus, he has a lot of animosity towards me and Addison’s relationship.” Little Bunny replied hesitantly.

“I understand that it might be difficult for him to agree, but please try anyway,” Yuna said helplessly. “I wouldn’t have come directly to bother you if there were any other options available. Even though things might not work out as we hope, at least we tried our best for Addison.”

Little Bunny wanted nothing more than to help Addison but was hesitant when she thought about involving Theodore.

“Just give it a shot, okay, Little Bunny? Even if it doesn’t work out, I won’t blame you for anything.” Yuna continued persuading her.

“Okay fine... but don’t get your hopes up too high.”

“Thank you so much! If there’s anything else that comes up in the future where I can assist later on down the line, just let me know!” Yuna exclaimed gratefully before hanging up the phone.

After ending the call herself as well, Little Bunny felt anxious inside because she didn’t believe that Theodore would lend her any assistance at all. She could already imagine how angry he would become upon hearing her request. She feared that instead of helping Addison clear his name, things could potentially become worse than they already were.

She couldn’t take such risks, but she had promised Yuna. However, she had another option in mind—Theodore’s father, Laird Wold.

During their divorce proceedings years ago, Laird had told her explicitly, “If ever anything is troubling or bothering you, feel free to reach out.”

Despite all this time passing since then and despite how poorly things had gone for her within the entertainment industry over these past few years, never once did she consider reaching out or calling upon Laird’s offer. After all, why should someone noble like him owe her any favours?

But now, other than Laird, no one would help her. Laird’s help was an ace-in-the-hole type backup plan for herself since she thought when Theodore pushed her to the limit and she couldn’t take it anymore, she would go to ask Laird for help. She didn’t expect that it was for Addison. She knew deep down that asking Laird for help was a one-time opportunity. She didn’t want to trouble him too much.

Little Bunny took a deep breath and picked up the phone to call him. Laird answered quickly, his tone gentle as he said, “Hello, Little Bunny.”

“Hello, Mr Wold.”

Laird sighed since she wasn’t his daughter-in-law anymore.

“It’s late. Do you need something from me or do you want to talk with Nicholas?” His attitude towards her was completely different from Theodore’s.

“I have something I need your help with.” Little Bunny said hesitantly.

“Tell me. I’m listening.” He replied kindly.

Little Bunny finally gathered the courage to tell him about Addison’s situation and their relationship with Theodore. She didn’t want to hide anything from Laird.

After hearing everything, Laird couldn’t help but sigh again, “Theodore not only doesn’t respect you but also prevents you from pursuing your happiness.”

Little Bunny didn’t know how to respond properly.

“Alright then, I’ll find out more about Addison and give you my answer later.” Laird agreed decisively.

“Thank you, Mr Wold.” Little Bunny breathed a sigh of relief as they hung up the phone.

Laird had always been easygoing. Little Bunny just didn’t want to bother him unnecessarily.

In her room, Little Bunny watched news reports on Addison’s scandal, which seemed like it was getting worse by the minute in showbiz circles. So many people were criticizing Addison online that it made her angry.

Suddenly there came a knock on the door outside of her room.

When Little Bunny opened it up, there stood Theodore who asked, “Did you ask my father for help investigating Addison?”

A little panicked, she forgot to let Laird not tell Theodore yet.

“My dad has connections, but it’s me who’s in charge now and I have more people. He didn’t tell me, someone came to report to me.”

Little Bunny had also considered that Theodore might agree.

“You believe my dad over me?” Theodore asked her sarcastically.

“I just don’t want to cause trouble for you.” She told a lie.

“So you’d rather cause trouble for my dad?”

Little Bunny fell silent at his cold remark.

“When are you going, to be honest with me?!” Theodore asked coldly.

“This is the information on Addison that you wanted. Look at it yourself.” Theodore threw the file he had just received from someone at her and left without another word. He was angry but didn’t express it fully.

At this moment, there was no way for Little Bunny to apologize to him. She was more concerned about Addison’s situation instead. She quickly opened the file and read its contents.

It was clear from multiple witnesses’ testimonies that Addison had been caught using drugs by the police and was currently under administrative detention. The testimony unanimously stated that Addison voluntarily used drugs without being forced or framed while drunk; he did so while conscious of his actions. If this were true, then Addison would be guilty of drug use.

As she read through the document, she became visibly upset. She couldn’t believe this result.

Holding onto the file tightly in her hand, she walked straight into the living room where Theodore sat smoking a cigarette and said firmly, “It can’t be true! These witnesses must have colluded together against him. Addison is being set up!”

“Do you believe him?” Theodore asked as he extinguished his cigarette slowly.

“Absolutely.”

Theodore extinguished the cigarette and continued calmly, "Do you think Northfield police are all pushovers? Their investigation skills are far superior than most people think, they have extensive experience and expertise in anti-investigation techniques too. Do you think they wouldn't know if these witness statements were genuine or not?"

Chapter 1168 Argument

Little Bunny was left speechless by Theodore's words.

Yes, police officers didn't take things lightly and they investigated everything thoroughly. But was it possible that these people were all in cahoots with each other? Little Bunny thought to herself that maybe the police had been bought off. Of course, she didn't voice her thoughts out loud. To do so would be to contradict Theodore, who was part of the system after all.

Instead, she said, "From what I know about Addison, I'm certain he's not capable of doing something like this. That's why I hope you or your father can help me look into this matter further. Addison's agent told me that no one is willing to listen to his side of the story anymore. So my only hope lies with you."

Theodore couldn't help but sneer at her words.

"I've already looked into it and what you see now is the result." He said.

"Can results come so quickly? Or did someone just give you an answer and you decided to believe it?"

"Little Bunny, I may be a bit careless when it comes to women but when it comes down to matters like these, rest assured that fairness and justice will always prevail. Do you think I relied on the relationship between Oscar and me to get where I am?"

"Or what?" she blurted out. Indeed, it was also because of Addison that she became so anxious that she had been unable to think logically.

Theodore looked coldly at her. He knew he was nothing in her eyes, and he had gotten used to it.

"Theodore, I don't want us to argue over this matter. That's why I went to your father for help instead of coming to you. But please understand that I have doubts about whether or not you'll handle Addison's case fairly."

"Little Bunny, I'm not as worse as you thought!" Theodore couldn't control his anger anymore, being suspected by her.

He helped her with the matter of Addison since he knew that she must be worried about that guy. So, before she said anything, he investigated everything thoroughly. But the result was that she found someone else to help and she didn't believe he would handle it fairly. If Addison Chasey had any grievances, even if it was not for the sake of Little Bunny, he would be fair and just. He treated his work without favouritism.

"Theodore, I don't want to argue with you anymore. I know what I said today will make you angry, and I can't even guarantee that what I said later won't make you even more angry. So, I hope you can stay away from this matter."

“Little Bunny, I must be crazy to care about you so much, I care about your feelings. And I’m trying to please you!” Theodore was exasperated beyond his control. “Fine, it has nothing to do with me. I want to see how you gonna save him out.”

“Theodore, I hope you do what you say. You can’t do anything related.” She confirmed again.

So did she think that he will block it anyway, right?

Hannah had told him not to get angry with Little Bunny and respect her. He felt that his current passion was extinguished by a pot of cold water from Little Bunny, leaving no spark left.

Theodore turned around and left, and then he stormed out of the house directly. When he left, I slammed the door down with great force, venting his anger.

Little Bunny felt a little guilty when she saw him leave as if she truly wronged him. But she was indeed afraid now that Theodore would do something bad in this matter. So, for now, she could only use this kind of provocation to achieve her goal.

She decided to settle Addison’s issue first and apologize to Theodore.

The phone rang at this moment.

“Little Bunny, I just had someone give me a preliminary understanding of the situation with Addison Chasey, and it may differ greatly from what you told me. I have already instructed them to question the witnesses again to see what the results will be. I am worried that there may be some shady dealings involved in this matter, so I have also sent some people whom I trust the most to assist in handling it.”

“Mr Wold, thank you very much.”

“No problems. You are Nicholas’s mother, and we will still be relatives in the future.”

Little Bunny didn’t know how to express her gratitude.

“I will call you when there is news.”

“Okay.”

With that said, she hung up the phone. Laird had made it clear that there was a discrepancy between what she had said and what happened. And then she remembered what Theodore had said earlier, that the police weren’t pushovers. But she didn’t believe that Addison would do drugs. He was such an upstanding man, he couldn’t have made such a mistake. She felt like Addison was being set up.

Little Bunny sat on her couch at home, waiting for four hours. It was already late at night and she didn’t know where Theodore went after he left. He never came back.

But she didn’t feel like calling Theodore. She knew they would probably argue if they met now and she didn’t want to continue their conflict any longer.

Suddenly, the phone rang again.

She felt sorry to let Laird stay up so late with her since he was much older than her. But with all the media attention on Addison's case growing by the minute, time was of the essence in clearing his name as soon as possible.

She answered the phone quickly.

"Little Bunny, our investigation results are similar to what I told you earlier. There is evidence that shows Addison actively using drugs..."

"But..." Little Bunny bit down hard on her lip.

She wasn't sure whether or not she truly believed in Addison or if it was just too difficult for her to accept this outcome.

"I know you can't accept it right now but we're still investigating whether there's anything fishy going on here. I've arranged for someone to pick you up so you can meet with Addison face-to-face and ask him about his situation directly. After getting all your questions answered clearly, we'll figure out how we can minimize his charges."

Little Bunny agreed without hesitation. She indeed wanted to meet Addison herself. Besides asking about his situation, she also wanted to see how he was doing inside prison.

She just couldn't let go of him. Deep down inside, she still held onto a place for him. Therefore, it was hard for her just sit idly by.

Chapter 1169 Meeting Addison, the Truth

Little Bunny waited for half an hour at Theodore's upscale residence. Laird sent someone to pick her up and take her to the detention centre. In the car, Little Bunny was on pins and needles.

She received a call from Yuna when it was past 2 AM.

"Little Bunny, how is it going? How is the investigation?" Yuna asked, anxious.

"The results are not much different from the results given by the police now. But don't worry, I will go to the detention centre to see Addison first and tell you about the situation after he comes out."

"Thank you so much."

Little Bunny didn't feel like talking to her too much at the moment so she hung up the phone and looked out the window with a heavy heart. Fortunately, the speed of the car was quite fast and they arrived at the detention centre soon. She went straight in. She walked into a separate cell and saw Addison, who looked completely dejected, with a scruffy beard around his lips and no energy.

As he saw Little Bunny, he was also surprised. He didn't expect that she would come to see him so late. And he couldn't face Little Bunny.

"Miss Little Bunny, we are waiting for you outside." The prison guard respectfully said.

"Okay, thank you."

The prison door closed shut.

Addison looked at her but remained silent. They were looking at each other like this.

Just as Little Bunny was about to speak, Addison suddenly stepped forward and scooped Little Bunny into his arms. He held her tight. Little Bunny's heart skipped a beat. She didn't expect Addison to suddenly hug her. She let Addison hold her for a long time like this. After a long silence, she finally spoke up, "Addison, let go of me. I came here to talk to you about something."

Addison reluctantly let go. When he saw Little Bunny standing right in front of him, he couldn't resist and broke down. There was no way to control himself. His eyes were becoming teary. Little Bunny looked at his eyes and her own eyes turned red with tears as well.

She tried to remain calm and asked, "Are you okay here? Have you been abused?"

"No," Addison answered, "it's just a lot of mental pressure. The media reporting on my situation must have gone crazy by now."

Addison was silent. He didn't want to lie to her. Even though his agent had told him to stick to the story of being set up, he couldn't bring himself to deceive her.

"Addison?" Little Bunny called out again when he remained quiet.

"I'm sorry." Addison suddenly apologized.

With that apology, Little Bunny understood everything. She felt a mix of emotions she couldn't quite put into words. She didn't want to believe that Addison could do something like this.

"It was my idea," Addison admitted. "That day, I was feeling down and my friends suggested drugs as a way for me to forget about everything bothering me. I was depressed because of missing you and work had been stopped by my agent due to my poor physical condition. So when they suggested it that night, I agreed just so I could experience what it's like. If drugs can make you forget all your troubles and even forget about you. But then everything went wrong." He continued with regret in his voice. "My agent told me to stick with the story of being set up so we can protect my reputation but now I'm scared because I don't know how things will end."

Little Bunny didn't know how she could comfort him or herself for that matter. After all, wasn't it her who caused him harm?

"I can't go confessing now because if they find out about the lies before they catch whoever framed me then things will only get worse for me," Addison said painfully.

Little Bunny watched him suffer and felt uneasy herself. His bright future would be ruined just because he made one mistake in judgment.

"Don't worry about me anymore." He suddenly said nervously as if reading her thoughts. "I don't want you getting involved in anything illegal either or even seeing Theodore on account of saving me."

Little Bunny didn't know how she should respond, feeling conflicted inside as she knew that it was partly her fault that he resorted to using drugs but at the same time, she knew deep down inside that what he did was still wrong regardless of what led him there.

“Little Bunny, it’s getting late. You should go back now. When you leave, ask the prison guard to check if there are any paparazzi around. I’m afraid you’ll be caught on camera and become a news story.”

Little Bunny nodded her head. She knew that staying here wouldn’t solve anything.

“Addison, take care of yourself and don’t falsely accuse yourself. As for whether or not you should admit to the police that you lied, wait for my message.”

“Little Bunny,”

“Don’t worry, I won’t implicate myself.” She reassured him.

Addison nodded heavily in agreement as she left.

Sitting in the car on her way home, Little Bunny thought about many things. She couldn’t bring herself to request Laird to forcefully pull Addison out from inside, which was breaking the law. That was something she had never even considered before in her life. But just thinking about how Addison might suffer because of her, she felt guilty.

She thought about all this during the ride home until they finally arrived at her house. As soon as she opened the door, a strong smell of alcohol hit her nose. Theodore was passed out drunk on the couch.

She knew he had gone drinking tonight but didn’t expect him back so soon. She thought he wouldn’t come back tonight.

After walking over towards Theodore’s side, she said softly, “Theodore, let me help you get back to your room, okay?”

Theodore was barely conscious but managed to open his eyes. He saw her, the woman he loved so much, who doubted him and snapped at him because of another man.

He suddenly got up and pinned down Little Bunny beneath himself. He now just wanted to have her, instead of her heart. That should be enough for him since winning her heart was too difficult.

He didn’t want to try anymore because he had hurt too much inside.

Chapter 1170 In His Room

Little Bunny was pinned down by Theodore with great force. Before she could even react, Theodore had covered her lips with his.

“Um...” Little Bunny widened her eyes.

She thought he had changed since he hadn’t forced her during this period.

Unfortunately, Theodore was too strong so she had no way to resist. No matter how hard she struggled under him, Theodore didn’t loose his grip on her a bit. He almost smothered her with the kiss. And, kisses failed to feed his desire at this moment. He reached out and strip off her clothes. With a light tug, Little Bunny’s clothes were taken off easily. His hand wandered around her without any discipline.

“Um... Theodore...”

She was still trying to resist. Despite her resistance, Theodore still lay on top of her and did as he pleased. Little Bunny's tears slid down from the corner of her eyes. Actually, being with Theodore, she had prepared everything well. But she didn't know why, at this moment, she couldn't help but cry.

Was it because Theodore had been too respectful to her lately? It made her start to expect more. She hoped that Theodore would always respect her in the future.

At the thought of it, she was inwardly sarcastic. One should not be too greedy.

If she had adopted such an attitude towards Theodore from the beginning, there would have been no discomfort at all. She wouldn't feel so hurt when Theodore did this to her.

Little Bunny no longer resisted, enduring everything, enduring his madness.

Theodore let go of her lips, staring at her with a burning desire in his eyes. Just as he took off his pants, he saw Little Bunny crying beneath him. She looked so fragile and helpless. He could also feel the despair in her eyes.

Was she disappointed with him again?

He was the kind of person who did whatever he wanted regardless of others' feelings.

Theodore's eyes were fixed on Little Bunny. He was looking at her while tears filled her eyes and kept flowing down her cheeks.

He wanted to ask her whether she hated him so much and felt so disgusted while being touched by him.

Was she that reluctant to have sex with him? If he were Addison, would she refuse like this?

She probably wouldn't refuse.

She only showed her disgust against him.

With all these voices in his mind, his heart was in agony. It felt like it was about to explode from the pain. He almost broke down.

Theodore put his pants back on and left her side. She still looked at him with tears in her eyes, but there was something different in her gaze now. She watched as Theodore put on his pants and left her behind without doing anything else.

He just walked away.

Little Bunny felt Theodore's desire and physical reaction earlier. She never imagined that he would just let her go like this. She couldn't describe the feeling of hurting Theodore for the first time ever.

Was she hurting his pride?

Theodore never let anyone mistreat him, but he had been restraining himself around her lately.

The door slammed shut as Theodore closed it heavily behind him.

At that moment, Little Bunny's chest suddenly hurt without warning or reason. There was a sharp pang of pain in her heart too clear to ignore.

She sat up from the couch and began straightening out her clothes while occasionally touching herself where Theodore had touched before, feeling the heat still lingering on her skin even though he wasn't there anymore.

After that, she still decided to return to the room next door.

Theodore remained inside the bathroom washing himself over and over again with cold water until he could no longer feel anything except for an overwhelming sense of pain deep within his soul. As he saw her tears, he was not interested in sex right away. He needed to calm down. He couldn't make it not to hurt her anymore.

He had been kept in contact with Hannah recently. Actually, he gave himself a reason not to touch Little Bunny or force her to make her unhappy, rather than he followed Hannah's advice.

He was dishonest in terms of love.

And so Theodore stood under cold water. Perhaps without even realizing it himself, his scorching tears slid down along with the cold water.

It had been a while. Theodore finally walked out of the cold bathroom. He worked hard to restore himself to the calmest state and then walked out.

As soon as he came out, he saw Little Bunny sitting in his room.

She had changed into clean pyjamas at the moment and must have taken a shower as well.

Theodore remained calm and composed. He didn't dare to hold any hope for her who waited for him in his room so late at night. As he wiped his damp hair, he said, "I was drunk just now and not thinking clearly. I offended you."

"I'm not angry," Little Bunny quickly replied. "I came over to explain because I was afraid you might misunderstand something. I know you were just drunk earlier."

Theodore looked at her in a daze, since her words made him feel flattered. He thought that Little Bunny must hate him again.

"I cried, but I didn't hate you to touch me. I cried because you scared me when you were out of control."

Theodore's heart began racing again.

"Actually, I don't dislike you as much anymore." Little Bunny stood up from the sofa in the room.

Step by step, she walked up to Theodore. Theodore's hand gripping the towel was trembling with nervousness.

"I also know that you have been enduring a lot during this period, whether it was during the trip or now that you're back. Theodore, if you really want to, I can do it." Little Bunny said slowly and clearly.

Theodore simply looked at her, who was standing right in front of him, within arm's reach.

Her fair skin and slender neck...

He couldn't resist temptation. Besides, he always got an intense desire for sex.

“Are you sure?” he asked in a hoarse and low voice.