

Reborn 1607

Chapter 1607

"Take me to the Burton residence!" Mia demanded emotionlessly.

Hayes clenched his fists, and after a long pause, he finally sighed. "Turn around, head to the Burton residence."

Within the grounds of the Burton residence, Jensen stood with one foot on Kendall's lifeless body, his cold gaze fixed on the surrounding Burton family guards. All the men who had come with him had been sacrificed, leaving him alone. Jensen was injured in several places, covered in blood, but luckily none of the wounds were fatal. He had found the woman Hayes had sent, but she was not Mia. While angered, Jensen was also secretly relieved.

'If Hayes wanted us to eliminate Kendall, he could have directly ordered us. But he deliberately used Mia to make me fight harder and face death.'

Jensen had a fairly good idea of the various reasons behind it all. At that moment, he knew there was no escape. Besides anger, his heart was filled with intense regret. He had not returned to the Kooper family to take revenge, nor had he seen Kisa again. To die like this was something he could not accept.

His knife was covered in blood, dripping drop by drop. He had initially planned to capture Kendall and break out with his men, but Kendall, as dimwitted and cowardly as he was, had panicked at the sight of the knife. Tripping over a vine, Kendall had accidentally impaled himself on the blade. With Kendall dead, the Burton family guards had rushed in and began hacking indiscriminately. Jensen's men had all been killed by the chaos of flashing blades. Glancing at his fallen comrades, Jensen felt a chill in his heart.

'Am I going to die like this too?'

The surrounding guards, knives in hand, slowly closed in. Jensen tightened his grip on his weapon, his entire body tensed, ready for battle.

Suddenly, two guards charged at him, slashing their blades. Jensen swiftly countered one of the attackers with a twist of his knife but was stabbed in the shoulder by another. The Burton family guards were numerous, and Jensen found himself surrounded. As they all advanced on him, a car suddenly burst onto the scene.

The car sped straight toward the guards, who scattered in all directions. It came to a halt beside Jensen. Mia urgently called out to him, "Get in the car!"

Jensen, too surprised to react, quickly opened the door and jumped in. But just as the car was turning around to make its escape, another vehicle came barreling toward them, crashing into their car head-on. Their vehicle spun around in place before stalling. The driver hurriedly tried to restart it, but it was too late, as the other car rammed into them again, this time hitting the side. Their car rolled over, the shattered glass from the windows scattering on the ground. The surrounding guards closed in on them.

Mia's face turned pale. "What do we do?"

Hayes responded coldly. "We have no choice but to fight."

Jensen glanced at Hayes, feeling a mix of emotions.