

Reborn: Another Chance to Leave U by Hazel Ramirez

Chapter 461

Chapter 461

Chapter 461 A Sudden Change in Reina's Attitude

Reina knew most of the things that Lacey had done in the past except for the blackmail.

"Did she ask you for money?"

Jaylon said in a low voice, "Yes."

"Did you send her to prison because of this?"

"Yes."

After answering, Jaylon observed Reina's expression carefully, waiting for her to lose her temper.

However, unexpectedly, Reina was calm after knowing about Lacey's imprisonment. Reina only said lightly, "How much did she take from you? I will find a way to return it to you."

Jaylon lied, "The court has already asked her to return all the money to me."

Lacey got more than 500 thousand dollars from Jaylon. Most of the money had been squandered by Lacey.

Jaylon had no intention of asking Reina to return it.

Reina believed his words and asked, "You suddenly mentioned her. Did something happen to her again?"

"The prison called me today. They said that she wanted to contact you. So, they asked me to send them your contact information. Do you want to call your mother?"

Reina replied without hesitation. "I don't want to."

Lacey didn't know about Reina's fake death. Yet, Lacey never cared about whether Reina was safe with Jaylon. Lacey paid no attention to what happened between Reina and Jaylon or why Reina didn't go home.

When Reina first left Canada, she always kept the old phone card.

Reina deleted the contact information of everyone else but Lacey.

However, Reina waited for a month, and Lacey did not call Reina.

Reina even thought that Lacey might have changed her phone number, so Reina could not receive Lacey's call.

In order to eliminate this possibility, Reina also asked Anaya to help check.

In the end, Reina found that Lacey did not change her number.

Lacey led a good life during that time. She went to upscale places every day and enjoyed a life of luxury.

However, Lacey forgot that she had a daughter.

Reina had wanted to break up with Lacey before, but Reina could make up her mind.

Lacey's actions this time disappointed Reina completely. It was good for Reina to break up with Lacey.

Seeing her like this, Jaylon did not mention this matter again.

After a while, Reina suddenly remembered something. "My mom must have used the money immediately after you gave it to her. How did she return the money to you?"

"Maybe she borrowed it from her friend. I'm not sure."

Reina silently looked at Jaylon for a while and did not continue to ask him.

The next morning, Jaylon went out again.

There was no one in the sick room. Only Trenton and a few people were guarding outside.

Reina took the opportunity to check the contact information on Boston Prison on the Internet. Then, she made a call.

After a few rounds, Reina finally got in touch with Lacey.

Lacey picked up the phone and cried. "Reina, didn't you go out with Mr. Malpas to have fun?"

"Anyway, I can be considered Mr. Malpas' mother-in-law. I just asked him for some money. How can he do this to me?"

"Ask him to find a way to get me out."

Reina ignored Lacey's words and asked, "Did you return the money you took from Jaylon?"

Lacey said without feeling ashamed, "I've already spent it all. How can I return it? Anyway, this amount of money is not much for him. Isn't it the same?"

"Reina, let's not talk about this anymore. Tell me honestly, are you having a conflict with Mr. Malpas recently? Is that why he is targeting me? You can quarrel with him, but don't put me into trouble..."

Reina interrupted Lacey. "How much did you take from him before?"

"How can I remember that? About 500 thousand dollars. What? Does he want you to return it now?" Lacey complained, "It's not cheap to find a prostitute now. Since he wants to raise you, how can he be so stingy..."

Lacey's words hurt Reina. Then, Reina said, "Do you think your daughter is the same as those women?"

Lacey wanted to say that Reina was almost the same as those women. Yet, Lacey needed Reina's help now, so Lacey said a few nice words, "I didn't mean that. I just said it casually.

"You are my precious daughter. I still expect you to support me for the rest of my life. How can I think that you are improper?"

"Why don't you ask Mr. Malpas to let me go first? I have been here for so many days. I'll almost go crazy..."

Reina replied, "You committed so many crimes in the past. You should be redeemed in prison. No one will let you out."

Hearing this, Lacey suddenly became excited. "Damn girl, what did you say?"

"I gave birth to you and raised you. How could you repay me like this? You lead a happy life with Jaylon now. Do you want to break up with me?"

"Didn't I just ask Jaylon for some money? Is it really necessary?"

"Since Jaylon is willing to spend money buying you branded clothes and bags, what's wrong with giving me some money?"

"Just because the person sleeping with him is you and not me, he is so stingy to me..."

Without waiting for Lacey to finish, Reina directly hung up the phone.

Reina was afraid that if she continued to listen, those memories of the past that she tried to forget would occur to her like a nightmare again.

It was not easy for Reina to step out of that past.

Even just thinking of a little of the pressure that almost suffocated her,

Reina felt so uncomfortable that she wanted to die.

Lacey's words hurt Reina and made Reina sober at the same time.

These two days, Jaylon was careful and gentle, almost making Reina forget the humiliation she had suffered in the past.

She absolutely could not lose her current calm and return to hell.

Jaylon finished his work and entered the door with Charles.

Reina heard the noise and slowly turned her head.

Jaylon didn't know if it was an illusion. Yet, he felt that Reina looked at him the same way she had done when he and Nadia were engaged a few months ago.

Reina's gaze was extremely cold.

Jaylon slowly walked in. Reina's cold and distant voice rang out, "I will return the money my mother owes you as soon as possible."

The purchasing power of this country's currency where Reina lived was lower than that of US dollars.

With her current salary, it might take several decades for Reina to pay off the money.

But no matter how long it took, Reina would pay it back.

The deal between Reina and Jaylon had already ended. Reina did not want to accept any more of his charity.

Jaylon stopped walking and stared straight at her with his dark eyes.

Although Reina's attitude toward Jaylon yesterday was not very good, it was obvious that she had softened.

But today, her attitude returned to the starting point.

Jaylon thought for a moment and came up with an answer. "What did Lacey say to you?"

Reina replied coldly, "Nothing."

"Reina." Jaylon's voice softened. "Are you angry that I lied to you last night that she had already returned the money?"

Other than this matter, Jaylon couldn't think of anything else that would make Reina angry.

Reina's tone was still cold. "No, I'm not angry with you."

"Your condition today is not right."

"I always treat you with this attitude."

No matter what Jaylon asked, Reina was still cold. Jaylon didn't know what to do.

"Reina, if anything happens, just tell me directly, okay?"

Chapter 462

Chapter 462

Chapter 462 They Won't Get Married

In the face of his questioning, Reina remained her cold attitude. "It's fine."

Jaylon saw that he couldn't get any results, so he didn't continue to ask.

Reina refused to say. Jaylon would contact Lacey.

Only by figuring out the reason for Reina's change in attitude would Jaylon be able to find the right solution.

Charles came up to the bed and put down his bag. "Reina, don't be angry. Let's eat first."

Reina refused, "I'll order some takeout."

Charles didn't know how to persuade Reina. He looked back at Jaylon for help.

Jaylon lightly opened his thin lips, "It's fine if she doesn't want to eat. You can take the food back."

Reina rejected the food brought by Charles today. She probably guessed that Jaylon was the one who made it.

Since Reina knew it, Jaylon no longer needed to communicate with Charles behind Reina's back.

Charles nodded and carried his school bag. "Reina, I need to go. Take care of yourself."

"Okay." Reina's expression softened when she saw Charles' concern.

Soon after, Charles was sent back by Jaylon's people. Reina ordered takeout for lunch.

For the next day, Reina didn't talk much to Jaylon.

After the discharge procedures were completed the next day, Reina went to the transportation station alone. She had no intention of going back with Jaylon at all.

Jaylon did not dare to force Reina. He could only drive behind the bus and watch her from afar.

When Reina got home, she found that all the flowers in the yard had been dug out and replaced with green plants.

Reina returned to her room and answered a few emails. She then asked someone to help her contact more employers and got some work.

If she wanted to return Jaylon's money, she had to work harder.

Reina worked until 7 p.m. before going downstairs to find something to eat.

In the corridor at the corner of the stairs, Reina saw someone downstairs through the window.

It was not Jaylon, but Argus.

Argus stood there firmly as if he had been standing there for a long time.

Reina went downstairs and opened the door.

"Why didn't you ring the doorbell?"

Argus' clothes had a faint fishy smell. He probably came after he finished his work in the afternoon.

"I did, but you didn't come down."

As soon as Argus had just returned to the port, he heard that Reina was back and immediately rushed over.

However, after ringing the doorbell for a long time, Argus found no one came down to open the door.

Argus thought that Reina did not want to see him, so she did not open the door.

But judging from the current situation, Argus thought Reina probably did not hear the doorbell at all.

"I played music when I was working, so I did not hear any noise downstairs. What's the matter?" Reina blocked the door and did not let him in.

"Nothing. I just heard that you were discharged from the hospital and wanted to see you."

"You have seen me."

The implication was that Argus could leave.

Argus did not want to leave. He looked around and said, "The groceries at home are finished, right? Do you want me to go to the supermarket with you? I can help you with bags."

"I have food at home. I don't need to shop today."

Argus could not find a reason to stay. Finally, he struggled and said, "I will take a day off tomorrow. Do you want to go out with me tomorrow afternoon?"

"You haven't gone to the sea since you came here. Ruby and her husband will go to the island nearby tomorrow. We can go together.

"We can go to the sea by sunset."

Reina was about to refuse when she saw Jaylon appear by the door that was connected to the wall. He leisurely passed the bluestone path and walked towards them.

Argus also noticed Jaylon and deliberately raised his voice to repeat his invitation.

Argus knew that in front of Jaylon, Reina would not refuse him.

Because before the baby was born, Reina needed to use Argus to drive Jaylon away.

Although everyone thought that the father of Reina's baby was likely to be Jaylon, it was not sure. So, it would be difficult for Jaylon to keep Reina around.

Sure enough, after a short hesitation, Reina agreed.

When Jaylon stopped, he just happened to hear Reina's reply.

Jaylon was far away just now and could only vaguely hear that Argus seemed to be inviting Reina out.

Reina agreed.

Today, Reina was not even willing to let Jaylon send her home. She was now having a hot time with Argus.

Jaylon stared at Reina with a gloomy gaze. His thin lips were pursed into a straight line, giving off a strong sense of oppression.

"Where are you going?"

No one answered Jaylon.

Argus was worried that Reina would change her mind if he stayed for too long, so he said, "I'll go back first. I'll come to pick you up tomorrow."

Reina nodded. After Argus left, she planned to return to the house.

Jaylon took a few steps forward and blocked her way. He lowered his eyes and looked at Reina deeply. "Answer my question just now."

Jaylon's tone was stiff, and it was a sharp and forceful tone that had not been heard for a long time.

Reina looked up at him. "If I don't tell you, are you going to lock me up at home tomorrow?"

Because of Reina's provocation, Jaylon's attitude softened a little. "I'm just asking. There's no other meaning."

Reina didn't say anything and bypassed him into the house.

Before Reina closed the door, Jaylon stuffed the food box he was carrying into the house through the crack in the door.

"I just learned to make food for pregnant women today. You can eat it tonight."

After stuffing the food, Jaylon turned around and left.

Reina carried the things back to the house and casually put the things

Jaylon sent on the table before entering the kitchen.

When the water was about to boil, Reina looked back at the milky white food box on the table. After hesitating for a moment, she turned off the fire and went to the dining table to eat the things in the box.

Jaylon learned things quickly. His cooking skill showed how smart he was.

Reina didn't have a good appetite in the past few days, but today, she ate all things on the plate.

Reina cleaned up the tableware and returned to the study to continue working.

After looking at the computer for a long time, Reina felt so sleepy, and she fell asleep at some point.

When Reina woke up the next morning, she was ready to go out for a walk as usual. When she went out, she noticed that there was breakfast hanging on the door.

Reina did not touch the breakfast, but when she came back, she found that it was gone.

Reina ignored it and went back to work.

Around two p.m., Argus went to her house and took her to the port.

This place was not far from the port, so Argus did not drive. He walked over with Reina slowly.

Argus did not mention making up again and told Reina some local funeral customs. He also talked about the supernatural stories his grandmother told him when he was a child.

Reina liked to watch horror movies. When she first came here, she liked to listen to Argus tell some folk ghost stories about this country.

Reina quietly listened to Argus with admiration.

It had to be said that Argus had the talent to tell stories. In some important parts, he was good at keeping people in suspense. After raising Reina's interest, he would slowly tell the truth.

As Argus narrated several climaxes, even in the daytime, Reina felt a chill on her back.

They walked to the port. Reina's mood was much better than when she first went out, at least she would smile at Argus.

Reina's change

Argus notice I was a little happy. He giggled. When Ruby saw Argus smiling, she also smiled and said, "Argus, you are smiling so happily. It seems that your wedding is coming soon." Argus blushed a little and wanted to say that there might be a while before Jaylon's voice came from behind. "They are not going to get married."

Chapter 463

Chapter 463

Chapter 463 He Is Aroused

Upon hearing Jaylon's voice, Argus immediately protected Reina behind him and looked at Jaylon warily. "Why are you here?"

Ruby answered the question on behalf of Jaylon. "He also participated in this trip. He provided the food and wine on our ship."

Hearing this, Argus frowned.

Ruby finally noticed the unusual atmosphere between them and asked, "Is there any conflict between you?"

Jaylon said indifferently, "No. I just met them a few times."

Argus' deep blue eyes were filled with hostility, and he did not speak.

Reina did not have any intention of greeting Jaylon. "Argus, it's time to board the ship."

Argus nodded and followed behind Reina to board the ship. Like a wolf cub protecting its food, he was always on guard against Jaylon.

Jaylon's eyes were cold as he followed behind them to board the ship.

Ruby and her husband's ship was not big and could only take on a dozen or so people.

Apart from the few local people, the rest were tourists from other places.

It was a sunny day. The clouds coincidentally blocked the scorching sunlight, but there was no sign of rain.

There were a few sets of white European tables and chairs on the deck. Reina picked the closest one and sat down.

Argus sat next to her for a while and prepared to go down to get cold drinks.

Before leaving, Argus took a glance at Jaylon, who was facing him, and showed his fist to Jaylon.

In the natural world, in the face of a male who tried to compete with him for a female, the males would act more aggressively than usual.

Argus was like this now.

Jaylon glanced at Argus' slender arms and legs, and a hint of ridicule flashed in his eyes. Jaylon looked down and gently shook the transparent ice and green drink in the glass.

The water and ice crashed into the glass wall, making a crisp and pleasant sound. It felt like summer.

Argus saw that Jaylon had retracted his gaze and walked into the cabin.

Reina sat for a while and walked to the railing to enjoy the wind.

A blond, blue-eyed, bearded man came over with a camera.

"Miss, are you willing to be my model? I will pay you."

There were a few tourists from other places on the ship today. After the ship left the port, they took photos at the bow of the ship.

Just now, the man inadvertently noticed the slender and cold beautiful

Reina. His eyes lit up, and he walked over with his camera.

Reina wanted to refuse, but after thinking for a while, she asked, "How much will you pay?"

The man offered his price, and Reina was a little tempted.

This was about her income for nearly a week.

"What exactly should I do?"

Seeing that Reina agreed, the photographer seemed a little excited. He took the prop for the photo and picked a blooming white lily before telling Reina a few positions.

Reina followed the photographer's instructions and casually leaned against the railing. The white lily flower covered half of her face.

Reina's eyelids were lowered. Her long and curly eyelashes were as thick as raven feathers, and the faint melancholy in her eyes was half-covered. There was a kind of fragile beauty.

The photographer stood for a while and took a lot of photos from different angles.

Jaylon watched from not far away and took out his mobile phone to take a few photos of Reina.

Jaylon was a little far away from Reina. His slender index finger and thumb tightened and opened on the screen, slowly zooming in on the picture. He was trying to take Reina's every detail.

They had known each other for more than two years, and this was the first time Jaylon looked at Reina so carefully.

Reina was indeed beautiful.

It was no wonder that at first glance, Jaylon had the urge to bring her back and have sex with her.

As Jaylon recalled the longing that once filled him, his eyes unconsciously became focused and hot. He was hot and impatient.

Ever since Reina faked her death, it had been several months, and Jaylon had been celibate.

It was daytime, but Jaylon was aroused.

Jaylon wished he could throw all the people around into the sea, pull Reina over to the deck, and make her cry under him.

Perhaps it was because Jaylon's eyes were too explicit, Reina noticed it and met his gaze.

Jaylon moved his fingers and took a picture of Reina's face.

Jaylon set it as the wallpaper of his phone.

Reina and Jaylon had known each other for two years. They had sex with each other many times.

Jaylon's eyes were so aggressive that Reina could clearly see what he was thinking.

Reina felt a little uncomfortable and turned around, leaving her back to Jaylon.

When Argus came back, the photographer was guiding Reina in her second pose.

The photographer tried several times, but he was a little dissatisfied.

The photographer's eyes lit up when he saw Argus. "Reina, this is your boyfriend, right?"

The photographer had been following behind Reina when they boarded the boat. He did not see their faces at that time, but he vaguely remembered who they were.

Jaylon was listening not far away. Reina did not answer, while Argus nodded directly. "Yes."

The photographer asked, "Can I ask you to pose with this young lady? I will pay you half of the reward more."

"Okay," Argus readily agreed.

Argus was suffering from the fact that there was no way to get close to Reina, so the excuse of taking photos together was just right. Doing one thing together would increase the tacit understanding and intimacy between each other.

Since Argus was so obliging, the photographer smiled with satisfaction and showed them a photo on his mobile phone.

"Sir, hold Reina's waist like this, put your hand here, and focus your gentle eyes on her."

The photographer explained seriously and let them begin to pose.

Before touching Reina, Argus asked politely, "Can I hold your waist?"

"Yes," Reina replied.

Reina was not a rigid and conservative person, so it was fine that Argus would hold her waist when taking photos.

Reina approached Argus openly, waiting for his action.

Seeing her so naturally, Argus became a little nervous.

Although they had been in a relationship during this period, in reality, Argus had never even held Reina's hand before, let alone any further actions.

Now that Reina was so close to Argus, he could almost smell the faint fragrance of her body. His desire was aroused.

Argus cleared his throat and looked down at Reina, his voice hoarse as he impoliteness."

said, "Sorry for

After saying that, Argus raised his hand to grab her waist.

However, before his hand could reach Reina, Jaylon grabbed his wrist.

Argus frowned and looked up, meeting Jaylon's grim gaze.

"I'll take photos with her." Jaylon's voice was low and gloomy.

Chapter 464

Chapter 464

Chapter 464 Argus Is a Good Person

Before Argus could say anything, the photographer said, "Sir, I didn't invite you. Please don't cause trouble."

Jaylon looked at the photographer with his dark and calm eyes. "I'll shoot for free. I don't need any reward."

The photographer glanced at Jaylon.

Jaylon was handsome, but he was not the type the photographer wanted.

The photographer replied, "No need. Please step aside."

Jaylon continued, "How much are your photos? I'll buy them. Take photos of me."

Jaylon refused to give in. The photographer was a little annoyed. "This is art! You're humiliating me by giving me money!"

The photographer's reaction was beyond Jaylon's expectations.

The word "humiliation" reminded Jaylon of what Reina said at the engagement banquet.

Jaylon was born in a high position and was used to using the wealth and power he had in his hands to make people weaker than him.

Jaylon used to be surrounded by people who flattered him. He never felt that there was any problem with his way of living, and it was natural for him to suppress everything.

It was not until something happened to Reina that Jaylon realized how hurtful the way he was used to was.

When they met for the first time, Reina was confident and shining. But Jaylon dug out her inferior and timid side, allowing those emotions to spread rapidly like cancer cells in her heart. They nibbled away at the light in her eyes and finally forced her to the corner.

After their reunion, Jaylon promised Reina that he would change, but sometimes, he habitually used the money to pressure people.

Jaylon fell silent. His voice was tense and a little low. "Sorry."

Hearing his apology, everyone present was stunned.

After all, Jaylon had always been proud. He was used to being overbearing. It was truly unprecedented for him to bow down so easily to others.

The photographer did not know Jaylon's personality. Just now, he felt that Jaylon was frightening, like a suited thug who would kill others at any time in a gang movie.

Jaylon apologized, and the photographer only thought that he was wrong and became more confident. He continued to chase Jaylon away. "Go away. Don't delay my work."

Jaylon turned around and looked at Reina. "Do you want to take photos with Argus or me?"

Reina recovered from her shock and said lightly, "I agree with the photographer."

Jaylon's lips were pursed, and he was unhappy.

Just as Reina thought that Jaylon would forcefully replace Argus as before,

Jaylon took a step forward and walked away.

Reina was a little stunned and gave Jaylon a few looks.

Only when Argus leaned over and repeated the previous question in her ear did Reina take back her gaze and say, "Yes."

After getting permission, Argus raised his hand to hold her waist.

Almost the moment when Argus touched Reina, a cold gaze fell on his hand.

Argus did not care. His attention was all on Reina, and he was extremely nervous.

The photographer saw Argus' stiffness and said, "Argus, relax. Isn't Reina your girlfriend? Think about how you used to feel when you were intimate. Just pretend that the camera and I don't exist."

Although the photographer said so, Argus and Reina had never been intimate. Argus couldn't imagine what the photographer wanted him to do.

Seeing Argus like this, Reina whispered in his ear, "Just treat me like Sally.

Be natural. Just take it as a family photo."

Argus was shocked.

Argus tried to imagine Reina as his mother.

Forget it. He couldn't.

Although Argus couldn't imagine it, this episode made Argus relax and expel the inappropriate thoughts in his mind. He just took photos.

During the entire process of them taking photos, Jaylon sat not far away and watched them quietly. There was no expression on his handsome face. He was quiet and calm, making it impossible to guess what he was thinking.

The shooting lasted for about an hour. The photographer said that he would invite Argus and Reina to take a few more photos after boarding the island.

Of course, the reward would be raised.

Just from the generous reward, it could be seen that the photographer was not short of money.

The photographer loved photography, and Jaylon's presumptuous behavior was annoying.

After boarding the island, the photographer left with Argus and Reina to take photos. At dusk, he returned to the beach and took a few more sets.

Reina and Argus had been following the photographer all day. The others had gone to the sea to catch fish and gained a lot.

On the way back, only those few who left the team and Jaylon's people were empty-handed.

After getting off the boat, Ruby gave some fish to Reina and Argus.

Reina did not like to eat fish, so she did not accept it.

The photographer asked Reina if she wanted the final product. Reina said no. She received the reward and left first.

Argus and the photographer friended each other. Argus asked the latter to send a copy of the final product to him.

After things were done, Argus wanted to chase after Reina. But when he turned around, he found that Reina had disappeared.

Reina left so quickly to avoid Jaylon.

However, she forgot that Jaylon had a car. No matter how fast she walked, she was caught up.

In the afternoon, the sun peeked out from behind the clouds. Only half of the sun was hanging at the end of the sea.

The afterglow was warm orange. Jaylon got out of the car, and his figure was outlined. He was tall and straight, appearing to be quiet and cold.

Jaylon bent down to open the car door for Reina. "I will send you back." Reina refused without hesitation. "No need."

Jaylon looked at Reina deeply, and his voice was hoarse. "Reina, I shouldn't have made you angry today. Why do you always reject my good intentions?"

Reina said, "Your existence is the reason why I am angry."

Jaylon pursed his thin lips tightly and said slowly, "If you are dissatisfied with me, I will try my best to change myself."

"At least you should give me a chance."

Reina's expression was indifferent. Her eyes were distant. "I have no obligation to give you a chance."

Reina was so stubborn. Jaylon softened his voice. "Reina, it was my fault. I am willing to marry you. Let's start over, okay?"

"That Argus guy is not worthy of you. Why are you wasting your time on him?"

"Argus is a very good person. You have no right to judge him," Reina said in a serious tone.

She did not like the expression and the tone Jaylon used when he belittled others.

Reina and Argus had the same status. When Jaylon talked about Argus, Jaylon would hurt Reina's pride and make her feel uncomfortable.

Jaylon knew that Reina refused to accept him partly because of the difference in status between them.

In the past, because of the difference in status between them, Reina was bullied and humiliated by the people around Jaylon. She suffered a lot.

Jaylon's slightly arrogant tone just now undoubtedly annoyed Reina.

"I didn't mean to belittle him."

Reina was noncommittal to Jaylon's explanation.

Reina was ready to leave, but Jaylon grabbed her hand. "Reina, leave Argus.

He is not someone you can entrust to.

"The engagement between Nadia and I has been annulled. As long as you go back, you will be my wife. I will not let anyone bully you again."

Chapter 465

Chapter 465

Chapter 465 You Say You Like Me

Reina stopped and turned back to look at Jaylon. Her voice was terrifyingly calm. "Even if they don't bully me, will the things that happened in the past disappear? Your friends know what my relationship with you was.

"You have never experienced my life, and you don't even know how difficult it was for me during that period. What right do you have to ask me to forgive you?

"I was shameless before and wanted to be your lover. Now, can you be good and let me go?"

"Reina, I said that you were different from that kind of person." Jaylon felt depressed after hearing what Reina said.

"How is it different? Because I only sell myself to you?" Reina smiled.

"Because I like you, and you have feelings for me."

"I don't like you."

"You are lying."

"I didn't."

Jaylon focused his gloomy eyes on Reina's face. He said in a husky voice, "I heard you say that you liked me.

"You told me about that at the summit in Ohio."

It was not the first time that Reina appeared in public with Jaylon, but she looked nervous.

After the summit, Jaylon and a few friends went out for a drink.

A friend saw that Reina was nervous and reserved, so he deliberately teased her. Reina drank a lot of wine.

Jaylon sat quietly beside Reina, watching her with interest as she was teased by his friends.

Reina could not drink a lot, and she was drunk that night.

Jaylon was not interested in the drunk Reina. After sending her back to the hotel, he was ready to leave.

However, Reina suddenly grabbed his hand, threw him on the soft bed, and forcefully kissed him.

Reina giggled as she kissed Jaylon, muttering some sincere words.

Jaylon could no longer remember what exactly Reina said at that time, but he clearly remembered that she said she no longer wanted to be his lover. She wanted to officially date him and marry him.

After that, Jaylon had been cold to Reina for a few days.

What Jaylon wanted was a well-behaved and obedient lover, not an ambitious woman who coveted being his wife.

And during the few days, Jaylon didn't contact Reina, her father died.

After dealing with her father's funeral, Reina claimed that she fell in love with someone and wanted to end their relationship.

Jaylon had been considering whether he should drive Reina away to find other obedient women, so he agreed.

Unexpectedly, after the relationship between them ended, Reina returned to her normal campus life and worked hard to improve herself. She did well.

On the contrary, Jaylon's heart seemed to be missing a piece, and his temper became more and more unpredictable.

Jaylon did not have the mood to find the so-called obedient woman.

It was not until Jaylon reunited with Reina one year later and experienced so much that he gradually understood that Reina was the only one he wanted.

Reina vaguely remembered what Jaylon was talking about.

That night, Reina was not drunk. Those young rich guys teased her. To end it as soon as possible, she pretended to be drunk.

When Reina went back at night, emboldened by alcohol, she told Jaylon her feelings.

When Reina was with Jaylon, she was just a student. She yearned for love, so even though the days she spent with him were difficult, she kept holding on, hoping that one day her love would be rewarded.

But too many bad things happened at that time, and Reina's love for Jaylon was slowly worn out.

That night, Reina pretended to be drunk and confessed to Jaylon to make herself completely give up.

Reina thought that Jaylon had forgotten about that matter, but she did not expect him to remember it all the time.

Seeing that Reina did not speak, Jaylon continued, "Reina, since you have feelings for me, why don't you give me one more chance?"

Reina looked at Jaylon for a while and suddenly smiled lightly, "Okay."

Reina answered so readily that Jaylon was stunned for a moment before he was overjoyed.

However, before Jaylon could go further, he heard Reina continue, "But I want to marry Argus."

The joy on Jaylon's face instantly disappeared. He could vaguely guess what Reina would say next, but he asked, "What do you mean?" Reina explained, "Mr. Malpas, if you are willing, the three of us can live happily together.

"In any case, Argus will not affect our relationship. I will marry him and then secretly have an affair with you. In this way, I will have you both.

"I will be with Argus on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, and with you on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. It is perfect to be alone on Sunday."

Jaylon was speechless.

What Reina said now was similar to what Jaylon said to her before.

"Aren't you willing? If you are not, please leave." The smile on Reina's face gradually faded.

"I will marry Argus."

Jaylon knew that she was just deliberately provoking him, but even so, he was angry.

Just thinking about sharing Reina with other men upset Jaylon a lot.

After Reina finished speaking, she wrenched free of Jaylon's hand and left.

Jaylon watched her walk away. After a long while, he got into the car and followed her far behind, sending her home.

When Reina came near her home, she saw Sally, who was waiting for her at the door.

Reina walked over and greeted Sally lightly.

With a serious expression, Sally looked around and did not see Argus. She then asked, "Where is Argus?"

"He went home," Reina answered.

Sally asked again, "I heard that you went out to sea together today."

"Yes."

"Reina, Argus hasn't married yet. He's only twenty-five years old. Do you understand what I mean?"

Reina paused. "Yes."

Reina's attitude was gentle, and Sally's expression was softened. Sally complained, "It's your fault. You haven't cut off your ex, but you agree to date Argus. Now, Argus loses his judgment because of you. His whole life has been about you as if he were poisoned."

Like other middle-aged women, Sally was nagging and could not stop once she complained.

Reina had received quite a bit of favor from Argus recently. Since Sally was his mother, Reina couldn't talk back. She could only listen in silence.

Probably because Reina looked like she was a soft touch, Sally unconsciously had gone too far. "You are pregnant, and it's not good for you to be with Argus all day long. You can't keep him around just because he likes you.

"You are not suitable for Argus. I hope you won't see him again. If you hang out with him all day, it will be difficult for him to find a girlfriend."

"It's your son who has been pestering Reina."

Jaylon's cold voice came from behind Reina. Reina turned her head.

Jaylon's tall and handsome figure flashed past Reina's eyes and stopped in front of her. Like a solid city wall, he protected her well.

Jaylon was tall, and with his distant look, as he stood there, one would feel extremely pressured.

When Sally saw Jaylon, her voice weakened. "If Reina didn't tease Argus, why would Argus come to her all day? She is pregnant after all."

Chapter 466

Chapter 466

Chapter 466 Reina, It's Time to Go Home

The more Sally spoke, the softer her voice became. In the end, she was still afraid of Jaylon. Before Sally finished speaking, she hurriedly left.

After Sally left, Reina looked at Jaylon. "Thank you."

If not for Jaylon just now, who knew how long Sally would have been fussing around here?

Jaylon lightly responded. Just as he was about to say something, Reina's phone rang.

The caller was from Boston. Reina picked up the call and heard a young man's voice on the phone.

Jaylon couldn't hear what the person on the phone said to Reina. He only saw her dull expression.

A few minutes later, the call ended.

Jaylon asked, "Who's that?"

Judging from Reina's current state, the conversation did not seem to be anything pleasant.

Reina said, "Someone working in the prison told me that my mother died in the prison tonight.

"They asked me to go back and get some paperwork done."

Jaylon's eyes flashed, and his voice was very soft. "Reina."

"Huh?"

Reina responded. Jaylon's warm fingers landed on her right cheek.

The cold tears formed a sharp contrast with the hot temperature of Jaylon's fingertips. Only then did Reina realize that her tears were all over her face. Reina hated Lacey.

Because of Lacey, Reina's life suffered countless hardships.

But when Reina heard the news of Lacey's death, Reina still could not suppress the pain.

"I will arrange for someone to send us back now." Jaylon's face was tense.

Jaylon took out his phone. Before he could dial the number, Reina held his hand. She lowered her eyelids and tried her best to suppress her trembling voice, saying, "Forget it.

"My grandmother is still alive. Let her go through the formalities.

"I don't care whether that woman is dead or not."

Jaylon stared at Reina, calm and deep as if he could see through her. "Lacey's the only family you have."

Reina lowered her head and said in a low voice, "She is not."

Reina had already decided to cut off her relationship with Lacey a long time ago. Now, she and Lacey were just two strangers.

Jaylon grabbed her wrist and gently pulled her into his arms. His voice was deep and soft. "Reina, don't do this to yourself.

"Or you will regret it.

"No matter how bad Lacey is, she is still your mother. You should go back and see her."

Jaylon did not care about how Lacey was doing, but he did not want Reina to be sad.

Reina was silent in his arms for a long time. Finally, she asked in a hoarse voice, "Can we set off now?"

Jaylon's low and steady voice sounded above Reina's head. "Anytime you want."

On the flight back to America, Reina had been quiet.

Jaylon didn't disturb her and asked someone to find out the cause of Lacey's death.

According to the prison guard, Lacey was pushed down by someone during activity time, and the back of her head hit a sharp object.

The woman who had killed Lacey was someone Lacey had met when she was outside.

It was said that Lacey had previously sold illegal goods and had made this woman the scapegoat.

Not long ago, Lacey had been in prison, and this woman had quarreled with her many times. Today, the woman couldn't hold back and killed her by accident.

After returning to Boston, Reina went to the hospital's morgue to claim

Lacey's body.

When Lacey was alive, everyone left her. After she died, other than Reina, no one came to see her.

Reina did not throw Lacey a funeral. Reina just asked the worker to cremate Lacey's body, and then she buried Lacey, the simplest procedure a dead person could get.

During the entire process, Jaylon followed Reina closely and helped her with Lacey's funeral.

For the past few days, Reina did not shed a single tear. She just did everything woodenly.

It was said that when one was sad to the extreme, one would not be able to cry.

Reina was probably like this.

On the day of the burial, the sun was as warm and dazzling as the previous years.

However, no matter how warm the light was, it could not shine into the cold and silent cemetery, and it could not dispel the haze that had been lingering in the hearts of people for the past few days.

In the past days when Reina had a conflict with Lacey, Reina prayed every day that Lacey could leave her forever.

Now that Lacey had really left, Reina's heart seemed to have cracked a hole. It was empty, distant, and lonely.

It was like an almost dying tree had been uprooted.

From then on, there was no place to return.

Reina stood in place for a long time.

When the sky turned dark, Jaylon's wide palm held her hand tightly. He said, "Reina, it's time to go home."

When she heard the word "home", Reina suddenly felt a lump in her throat.

She lowered her head, asking, "How can I still have a home?"

Reina had been holding back her feelings for a few days, but in the end, her emotions still exploded.

She had once seen her father's bright eyes turn deathly black.

Now, Reina had the same experience as her mother.

Reina had sent her father to be buried and now her mother.

She had fought for two years, but in the end, she had failed to keep things around, both she favored and hated.

Jaylon hugged her tightly from behind and said in a low voice, "You still have me and the child.

"I can give you a home."

Jaylon had heard most of the conversation between Sally and Reina last time. Naturally, he also heard that Sally disliked Reina as a pregnant woman.

Jaylon originally wanted to directly talk to Reina that day, but after what happened to Lacey, he did not want to pressure her anymore, so he held it and did not say anything.

Reina turned around and looked up at him.

Her vision was blurry, and she could only vaguely see the outline of his face.

Reina's voice was hoarse as she said, "But I don't want..."

Before she could finish, Jaylon pressed his index finger against her lips and looked down at her, saying, "Don't make up your mind so quickly.

"You always say that you hate Lacey, but the truth is, you can't let her go at all.

"Think about it seriously. What are you thinking about me?"

"Think about it. If I die like Lacey..."

"Impossible," Reina interrupted Jaylon's assumption. "You have good skills, and there are so many people protecting you. You can't be in trouble."

Jaylon looked straight at Reina with his deep, black eyes. He said, "You don't want anything to happen to me?" Reina replied, "I am just stating the facts."

Jaylon looked away and said lightly, "Come back with me. I will get someone to prepare dinner."

Reina refused, "I'll go back and eat by myself."

She had been living in a motel for the past few days, and she usually ate with the owner and his family.

Reina turned to leave, but Jaylon bent down and directly picked her up. He said with no room for resistance, "Come home with me."

Reina did not eat much these days, and her body and mind were in a state of exhaustion.

Reina struggled a few times, like a soft balloon. She said, "Jaylon, you said that you would not force me again." "Special circumstances, special treatment."

Reina no longer did useless work and closed her eyes in silence.

It was already seven o'clock in the evening when they returned to the villa.

Jaylon carried Reina through the door and noticed a woman sitting on the sofa in the living room.

A maid came over, saying, "Mr. Malpas, I was just about to call you to say that Ms. Dutt is here."

The maid seemed to be worried that Jaylon would blame her. She was a little nervous when she spoke.

Jaylon suggested the maid leave first. He carefully put Reina back on the ground and led her to Anaya.

Chapter 467

Chapter 467

Chapter 467 Mr. Helms, Don't Be Angry

Anaya saw that Reina's eyes were red and didn't know what to say to comfort her.

Today, Anaya knew about Lacey's death and was worried that Jaylon would do something to provoke Reina.

However, based on Jaylon's nervousness and Reina's quiet attitude, the two should have gotten along well these days.

Reina was the same as before, her face expressionless and silent to the extreme.

Jaylon pulled Reina to sit down on the sofa and looked up at Anaya. "Why did Jared let you come alone?"

Anaya was six months pregnant, and she started to show.

When Jaylon and Carlee were talking on the phone a while ago, Carlee kept praising Hearst, saying how good Hearst was to Anaya. Carlee told Jaylon to learn a little bit from Hearst.

Now it seemed that Carlee's words were not just a little exaggerated.

"Jared worked overtime today. He didn't know I went out," Anaya responded casually, then turned her attention to Reina. Anaya's voice also softened a lot as she said, "Reina, do you want to stay here for a few days?"

Reina didn't want to bother Anaya anymore. Reina slowly opened her mouth and wanted to refuse, but then she heard Anaya continue, "If you come here, I can guarantee that my brother won't have the chance to come to my house and harass you."

Hearing this, Reina paused for a second and immediately nodded.

"Anaya, I am your brother." Jaylon's face darkened.

"Don't you think it's rude to use the word 'harass' on me?"

Anaya looked indifferent. She said, "Don't get too personal. Just focusing on the fact."

Jaylon's eyes were gloomy.

If it was someone else who said this to him and wanted to take Reina away from him, that person would definitely not be able to walk out of here completely tonight.

However, Anaya was Jaylon's younger sister.

Jaylon couldn't hit or scold her.

Moreover, Reina had also promised to leave, so he had no way to keep her.

Reina hadn't eaten dinner yet, so Anaya wasn't in a hurry to leave. Anaya waited for Reina to finish dinner before leaving.

The two of them returned to the place where Anaya and Hearst lived.

The villa was on a mountain. It had a very simple modern decoration style with a wide area of lawn that occupied the entire mountain top.

A while ago, Anaya officially retired from the highest position in the Riven Group. Hearst bought her such a quiet place to take care of her fetus.

When the two were still on the way, Anaya received a call from Hearst.

When they got home, Hearst was waiting in the parking lot.

As soon as Anaya got out of the car, Hearst came over and supported her.

His black eyes swept over her body a few times. After confirming that she was safe and sound, he said with a cold face, "Why didn't you tell me when you went out?"

"You worked overtime, and I didn't want to disturb you. Are you angry?" Anaya looked at Hearst's handsome and tense side profile with a smile.

Hearst did not speak, and his eyes were cold.

Anaya smiled and tiptoed to kiss the corner of his lips, saying, "Mr. Helms, don't be angry. I was wrong."

Hearst's expression eased a little. He said, "Remember to tell me when you go out next time."

"Yes." Then Anaya continued, "By the way, Reina should be staying at our house for a while."

"Okay."

"I plan to sleep with her tonight."

Hearst paused in confusion.

Hearst tightened his jaw and did not speak.

Reina said, "Ana, I'm more used to sleeping alone."

Lacey had only passed away a few days ago. Anaya was a little worried about Reina. Anaya said, "But..."

Hearst grabbed Anaya's shoulder and pulled her into his arms, saying, "Don't force her. Let her be alone."

Anaya hesitated for a moment and nodded. She said, "If you need anything, just tell me. I will try my best to satisfy you."

Reina thanked them and followed the maid to the guest room.

When she got to the room, she came out after washing up and received a call from Argus.

"Reina, I went to find you today. Why are you not there? Is it because my mother went to look for you that day and said something bad, so you left with Jaylon?"

Argus today learned from Reina's neighbor that his mother had gone to look for Reina a few days ago.

After his mother left Reina's house that day, Reina also left very quickly.

And until today, Reina never appeared again.

Reina was now tired and did not want to explain anything to him. She nestled into the soft sofa and gave a perfunctory "Hmm", wanting to end the topic.

However, her response made Argus excited. He said, "Did my mother tell you that I was getting close to you for your money?"

"Reina, I did chase you for money at first, but I really fell in love with you later."

"You chased me for money in the first place?"

Reina interrupted Argus. Her voice was still weak, but she was calm and stern.

Previously, Reina had felt that Argus' obsession and love for her were inexplicable. It turned out that it was for the sake of money...

She had thought that Argus was a pure young boy.

Who would have thought that such a sunny and clean man would also have selfish interests in his heart?

"You didn't know?" Argus choked when he heard her words.

Was Argus exposing himself?

"I didn't know." Reina lifted her foot, curled up into a ball, and dove deeper into the sofa.

She was not angry about the matter of Argus and returned to her usual cold and distant attitude, saying, "Argus, I have already returned to America. I might not return to the small town.

"You are not young anymore. If you want to get married, you should meet some girls of your age."

Argus' purpose of getting close to Reina was not pure, but Reina had indeed received a lot of help from him during this period of time, so she was not too angry.

Or perhaps Reina did not care too much about Argus, so she did not care about the fact that she had been deceived.

Argus' throat was dry, and he spoke with difficulty, "But I only want you."

"I'm sure you can live without me. Time will heal everything, and by then you'll forget about me," Reina said calmly.

Argus asked, "Then are you and Jaylon getting back together now?"

"No."

"Then I..."

"Argus," Reina interrupted him again and said in a tired tone, "don't contact me again."

"Good night."

After hanging up the phone, Reina turned off her phone and got up to go back to bed to rest.

After turning off the light, the surroundings were dark.

The emotions that had been deliberately hidden during the day brewed into surging, boundless loneliness swept over. In the dark, there seemed to be some kind of monster hiding, biting at her nerves bit by bit.

Reina lay quietly and curled up bit by bit.

Her mind was filled with images of Lacey's body in the morgue that day.

That was the second time Reina saw someone die.

After her father died, Lacey also died.

Now, she was the only one left.

Suddenly, Reina remembered what Jaylon said in the cemetery today.

"I can give you a home."

Reina suddenly became a bit clingy about Jaylon's words.

Chapter 468

Chapter 468

Chapter 468 The Sign of Miscarriage

Today, Anaya was going to the hospital for pregnancy check-ups. Hearst didn't go to work today. So after breakfast, they went out together.

Before leaving the room, Anaya asked Reina, "Have you done all the preliminary checks?"

Reina nodded and said, "I did it when I was abroad. There is no problem for the time being.

"You can walk around by yourself in the morning. I will come back in the afternoon to accompany you."

"Okay."

Hearst took the previous check-up record and helped Anaya leave.

Reina watched the two leave and walked into the garden. Finally, she sat down in a pavilion and rested.

Today's weather was very good. The sun was warm, and the sun made people sleepy.

Because of Lacey's death, Reina suffered from severe insomnia these days. She started to feel sleepy after sitting for a short while and fell asleep unconsciously.

When she woke up, it was already twelve o'clock.

Anaya stood beside Reina and called her. Seeing that Reina had woken up, Anaya said, "It's time for lunch. Let's go in."

Reina nodded, stood up, and walked out of the pavilion. She casually asked, "Ana, how did it go with your examination?"

"The doctor said that the fetus is well developed and there is no problem." Anaya followed behind Reina. Anaya inadvertently caught a glimpse of the bright red color on her white dress and stopped to ask, "Reina, does your stomach hurt?"

Reina stopped and looked back at Anaya doubtfully.

Anaya said, "There is blood on your dress."

Reina looked down and went shockingly silent.

Anaya had been pregnant for six months, and her baby bump was obviously big. Anaya would be a burden following Reina to the hospital, so she asked her family's servant to accompany Reina to the hospital. Then she called Aracely and asked her to go over to take a look.

When Aracely rushed to the hospital, Reina had just come out of the doctor's office.

"Ms. Harward, how are you?"

Reina's face was pale. She was already thin, and now she looked even more haggard.

"I don't feel any pain, but there has always been a slight amount of blood there. The doctor said that there was a sign of a miscarriage and asked me to do a check-up later. I may have to be hospitalized later to keep the baby."

Aracely breathed a sigh of relief and said, "Have you brought your credentials? I will help you with the hospitalization procedures."

"Thank you."

After settling the formalities and waiting for Reina to settle down, Aracely told Anaya about the situation here and then asked, "Do you want to tell your brother about this?"

"What does Reina think about it?"

"I didn't ask. I feel that if I asked, she would definitely tell me no." Aracely didn't know what happened between Reina and Jaylon, but she had heard a bit from Anaya and knew that Reina was having a conflict with Jaylon.

Anaya hesitated for a few seconds and quickly made a decision. "Help me look after her for a while. I will contact my brother."

The child was both Reina's and Jaylon's. If something happened to Reina, Jaylon should be on the side of the bed.

After talking to Aracely, Anaya immediately called Jaylon.

After hearing that Reina had a sign of miscarriage, Jaylon was quiet for a few seconds. He asked for the address and then hung up the phone without waiting for Anaya to speak.

Aracely had just given Reina a check-up list and was about to take her to the check-up room when the door of the ward was suddenly pushed open.

Jaylon opened the door. He was wearing a tailored suit, tall and handsome.

His hair was a little messy, and his tie was crooked. Although there was nothing unusual in his expression, it still made people faintly feel that he was tight and anxious.

Jaylon straightened his tie and strode over to Reina, his voice low and urgent. "What is the result of the examination?"

When Reina was in trouble today, she had guessed that Jaylon might come over. Thus, when she saw him appear now, she did not reveal too much emotion.

"It's just a sign of miscarriage. I'll be checked to see if there are other problems later."

Reina's expression was a little cold. She obviously didn't want to talk to Jaylon.

"Where are you going now?" Jaylon shifted his gaze to Aracely.

Aracely replied, "To the third floor for an examination."

Just as she finished speaking, she saw Jaylon bend over and directly pick up Reina.

Reina suddenly lost her balance and raised her hand to grab his shoulder, her eyebrows slightly wrinkled. Reina shouted, "Jaylon, what are you doing?"

Put me down."

Jaylon said, "Ana said on the phone that you are bleeding."

The place where the blood flowed was a little awkward. Reina felt a little uncomfortable when Jaylon said it without changing his expression.

"I don't feel any pain. I can walk on my own. Put me down."

"What if there is blood again?"

Reina rarely felt shy, and now she could not help but blush.

In fact, her blood had not stopped. It was still coming out intermittently. It was just that when Reina came, she had used the tampon, so the dress that she had just changed into was fine.

"It won't come out anymore. Put me down!"

Jaylon ignored her words and asked Aracely, "Where is the examination room?"

Aracely was in a daze. When she heard his question, she came back to her senses and said, "Come with me."

Aracely had heard that Jaylon was a tough person, but she didn't expect him to be this tough.

Aracely led the two to the examination room. Jaylon carried Reina in and then returned to wait outside.

Jaylon glanced at Aracely and said calmly, "You can go now."

"Okay."

Aracely responded and secretly ridiculed him for being impolite.

Aracely thought, no wonder Reina doesn't like him.

Other than money and face, Jaylon really has nothing left.

After complaining, Aracely felt that money and face were already very effective.

Aracely kept thinking about it...

Forget it, Aracely needed to stop now.

Or Winston was gonna fuss around with her tonight.

Although Aracely liked rich nightlife, she could easily get hurt from too much sex.

Reina's examination results came out very quickly. The doctor said that she had been under too much pressure recently. She stayed up late, and her diet was irregular. That was why she had a slight symptom. She would be fine after she went home and recuperated for a while.

Jaylon was worried and said, "Get her hospitalized."

The doctor smiled kindly and said, "The expectant father, you don't have to worry too much. Your wife's condition is not serious. She just needs to be taken care of a bit. It is the same as staying at home in the hospital."

Jaylon insisted, "Get hospitalized."

Reina said lightly, "Forget it. The doctor said it was not serious." Jaylon looked down at her. His eyes were as dark as ink. He was serious as he said, "I'll listen to you in terms of other things. But you have to listen to me on this matter."

Reina looked into Jaylon's concerned eyes, and her heart trembled slightly. She lowered her head and did not speak.

Jaylon thought that his tone just now was heavy and made her unhappy so that she suddenly fell silent.

After hesitating for a few seconds, Jaylon changed his words, "It's fine if you don't stay in the hospital, but you must stay in Ana's house recently. I will find a nutritionist to help you recuperate."

Jaylon knew better than anyone that Reina was unwilling to get close to him, so he did not mention letting her go home with him. Instead, he asked her to go to Anaya's place.

Reina still wanted to refuse. Jaylon said, "If you don't agree, go back to my place."

Reina was silent for a long time but finally agreed.

Chapter 469

Chapter 469

Chapter 469 Be Honest

The doctor prescribed some medicine for Reina and asked her to take a drip in the hospital. After confirming that she was much better, the doctor let her and Jaylon go back.

Jaylon sent Reina back to the place where Anaya lived.

The car stopped. He walked to the other side of the car and was about to open the door for Reina, but Reina had gotten out of the car.

He did not speak and silently followed her into the house.

Anaya did not go to the hospital today, but she had been asking about Reina's situation on social media.

Seeing them enter the door, she hurried over.

Hearst was worried that she would fall, so he strode forward to hold her. "Slow down."

Anaya stopped and took his hand off her waist with dissatisfaction.

After six months of pregnancy, her belly grew bigger and bigger.

Anaya's stomach was much bigger and her waist was thick. Hearst could only hold half of her waist.

Every time he rested his hand on her waist, she would realize that she had grown fat, so she was somewhat unhappy.

"I already said not to touch my waist."

Hearst smiled and said in a low and hoarse voice, "It's OK. I don't mind."

"It's great that you gained some weight. There will be fewer people who love you."

Anaya was lost for words.

In other words, she had become ugly.

Seeing that she was angry, Hearst chuckled softly. "I was just kidding."

While they were talking, Reina and Jaylon walked over.

Anaya shifted her attention back to Reina and pulled her toward the sofa. "Are you still feeling unwell?"

Reina said, "No, I took a drip today. I feel much better."

Anaya pulled Reina to sit down on the sofa. She asked some other things and looked up at Jaylon. "Jaylon, have you found a nutritionist for Reina?"

Jaylon stood straight beside Reina. His deep and handsome face had no expression. He was as solemn as ever. "I have contacted him. He will come over tomorrow."

Anaya said, "OK, then you can go. We are going to have dinner."

Jaylon was speechless.

"I haven't had dinner yet."

"So what?" Anaya asked.

Jaylon didn't know what to say.

"I want to stay for dinner," he said, trying to calm down. He was panting out of anger.

"Reina is here alone. I'm worried about her."

If not for Reina's disagreement, he wanted to stay there tonight.

He heard from the doctor that she might suffer a miscarriage. It was a great deal for him.

He did not want anything to happen to Reina and the child.

He always felt uneasy when he was not by her side.

Anaya understood his worry and looked at Reina hesitantly. "Reina, can I?"

She wanted Jaylon to leave because she was concerned about Reina's emotions.

Reina pursed her lips and said, "You own this place. It's up to you."

It meant that she agreed.

After they had dinner together, Anaya was not in a hurry to drive Jaylon away. Instead, she had someone clean up a guest room for him.

Reina did not say anything. After dinner, she went back to her room.

After Jaylon confirmed where Reina's room was, he moved next door to her and then sent a message to Reina, telling her to call him whenever she needed him at night.

Reina looked at the message and did not know how to reply. She put down the phone and went to sleep.

Anaya was thinking about what happened to Reina today. She tossed and turned on the bed and could not fall asleep. She rubbed her waist and got up. She took her phone to look at the things she noted when she was pregnant for three months. She sorted them into notes and sent them to Reina.

Hearst came back from the study room and saw that Anaya was still looking at her phone on the sofa on the balcony. He asked, "Who are you chatting with?"

"Reina! She just had an accident today. She must be feeling uneasy. I am sharing my experience with her."

Once women had a common topic, they could chat for several hours.

Reina was not a talkative person. When she saw Anaya's messages, she could not help but reply and tell Anaya about the problems she had encountered during her pregnancy.

They chatted for more than an hour and it was not over yet. Hearst was lying on the bed alone, silently looking at the woman on the balcony who was looking at her phone seriously.

After waiting for a long time, she finally put down her phone and returned to the room from the balcony.

He was about to help her go back to bed when he saw her take a bottle of water from the makeup table and drink it. Then she went back to the balcony again.

She didn't even look at him as if she didn't notice that a person was lying on the bed.

Hearst pursed his lips. He got off the bed, put on his slippers, and walked to the balcony.

Anaya was complaining about her figure when her phone was suddenly taken away by a big hand from her side.

She frowned and raised her head. Before she could see Hearst's face clearly, a soft kiss landed on her lips.

She pushed him and said unhappily, "Give me my phone back."

Hearst casually placed the phone on the round table in front of the sofa.

Anaya reached for it.

Just as she reached out her hand, Hearst caught her hand.

He sat down on the single sofa with her. He held her in his arms and rubbed his cheek against her forehead. His magnetic voice was mixed with a slight complaint. "It's time to sleep. If you have anything to say, you can chat with her tomorrow."

Anaya turned in his arms, "Reina and I still have something important to talk about."

Hearst hugged her tightly and did not let her move. "Be honest. Don't hurt your belly."

"If you don't hug me, my belly won't get hurt." Anaya glared at him fiercely.

Hearst calmly replied, "If you don't get away, why would I hug you?"

Anaya was lost for words.

It was a silly question. She didn't bother to argue with him.

"I'm going to sleep. I'm not in the mood anymore. Let me go," she said, patting his hand.

Hearst let go of her. Anaya took the phone from the table and replied to Reina's last few messages before walking into the room.

After returning to bed, she slept at the edge of the bed and did not say a word to Hearst.

They had been together for so long, and Hearst was clear about her habits.

She was dissatisfied with his domineering attitude and was angry with him.

Anaya didn't want to talk to him, so he took the initiative to lie down a little bit behind her. He reached his palm under her nightdress.

Anaya lay down for a while, and her breathing suddenly became a little heavy. She raised her leg and kicked the man behind her. "Take your hand back."

Ever since he used this method to please her in bed and asked for her forgiveness once, he often used this method to make her happy.

The pleasure of the body could spread to the spiritual world. Although it was shameful, she did enjoy his comprehensive service.

She was now pregnant and could not do intense exercise. So, Hearst could only use his hand and mouth.

"You're not angry anymore, right?" He rubbed her neck intimately.

"I'm not angry. It's time to go to sleep." Anaya took his hand away with a flush.

"I don't want to sleep yet." He turned his head and kissed her neck. His voice was low and hoarse. "I have pleased you. Now it's your turn to help me."

"Jerk."

He was unwilling to suffer any losses.

Chapter 470

Chapter 470

Chapter 470 Let Us Go Home

On the dining table the next morning, Reina did not see Jaylon.

She did not ask Anaya where he went. She picked up the spoon and silently drank the soup.

When she took a sip, her hand that was holding the spoon stopped in the air.

The soup was slightly salty, but it was not bad.

The nutritionist Jaylon hired was a professional who had worked for more than ten years. But if the soup was made by a nutritionist, it wouldn't be salty. It was such a stupid mistake.

She looked at Anaya and wanted to ask if Jaylon made the soup, but she didn't ask.

It didn't matter. After all, she had eaten it.

Let it be.

After breakfast, Anaya helped Hearst adjust his bow tie and sent him out.

After sending Hearst out, Anaya was going to take Sammo out for a walk with Reina.

After Reina got pregnant, she always took a walk in the morning and went out with Anaya.

Anaya rarely went out after getting pregnant. Sammo hadn't gone out for a long time either. After going out of the gate, it ran wildly on the road and almost dragged Anaya away.

It was inconvenient for Anaya to take a walk with Sammo because of her baby bump, so Reina took the leash and walked slowly on the sidewalk beside the lake.

After walking around the lake for half a round, Anaya was a little tired, so she asked Reina to sit down and take a rest.

There was a leash, so the dog couldn't run far away. It circled the two people, and the leash almost tied them up.

Anaya was just about to grab the leash to let the dog stay down when she saw Sammo bump into a tall and thin middle-aged man.

Sammo was dizzy. It shook its head and took a few steps back before finally sitting on the ground.

The man also staggered a few steps and barely managed to regain his balance.

Anaya saw it and was slightly shocked. Just as she was about to apologize, the middle-aged man raised his leg and kicked Sammo fiercely. He scolded, "You blind bastard. Didn't you see me?"

Sammo barked in pain and was so scared that it hid behind Anaya. Then it barked a few times at the man.

Anaya frowned and looked at the middle-aged man, dissatisfied with his rude behavior toward Sammo.

But this matter was caused by Sammo. This man was angry, so Anaya had no right to blame him. She could only calm down and say, "Sorry, it didn't hit you on purpose."

The middle-aged man bent down and patted his pants. He was still complaining, "Do you know how to lead a dog? If this little bastard bites someone... Reina?"

The man fixed his eyes on Reina. His eyes were full of surprise. "I heard that your mother died not long ago. I thought no one would hold a funeral for her. I didn't expect you to come back."

Anaya whispered in Reina's ear, "Do you know him?"

"He is my uncle, Edward Zeiss," Reina said after a few seconds.

Before Lacey's funeral, Reina called her grandmother. She wanted to hold a simple funeral for Lacey.

But her grandmother had blacklisted Lacey, so Lacey couldn't reach her at all.

When Lacey went to the place where her grandmother lived before, she heard from the neighbors that her grandmother had moved away several months ago.

She thought that she would never meet her mother's family again in this life, but she did not expect to meet her uncle today.

Lacey hadn't been a good girl since she was a child because of Edward.

The children of the Zeiss family were a disappointment, but because Edward was a boy, the elders doted on him more. They ended their relationship with Lacey and continued to keep Edward with a comfortable life, treating him as a treasure.

Edward sized Reina up and finally fixed his eyes on her big belly. "Reina, are you pregnant?"

Reina subconsciously raised her hand to cover her belly and bit her lower lip, not saying a word.

It was a little awkward in front of her family.

Edward stared at her for a while and suddenly laughed.

There was too much contempt and sarcasm in his laugh, which made her feel uncomfortable.

"I remember that you are not married yet, right? You are pregnant before getting married."

Reina clenched her fingers and felt embarrassed. She subconsciously retorted, "No."

Edward didn't believe it and sneered. "You are lying. I have never heard of you getting married. Maybe you don't even know who the child's father is, right?"

"Sure enough, you are like your mother. Shame on you. You must be fooling around with men all day!"

Reina's nails dug deep into her palms. She bit her lips and didn't speak.

Hearing him belittle Reina, Anaya got angry.

Before she could say anything, someone suddenly grabbed Edward's shoulder from behind.

That man's hand seemed to be made of iron. Edward couldn't move at all.

That man clenched his hand hard as if he was going to break Edward's shoulder.

Edward gasped in pain and almost cursed.

Without waiting for Edward to speak, the man coldly warned him from behind, "Sir, when talking to my wife, please watch your tongue."

Without waiting for Edward to respond, the man passed by him and walked in front of Reina.

Jaylon stood beside Reina. He was tall and had long legs. His eyes were indifferent. His eyes were dark and deep. There was a dangerous aura in his eyes.

"Reina, who is this?"

"My uncle."

Jaylon's cold eyes were still fixed on Edward as if he was threatening Edward.

He lowered his voice and asked Reina, "You still haven't told your uncle that we are married, right?"

Reina did not reply to him, nor did she refute him. She sat there quietly.

Edward looked at the man in front of him, who was half a head taller than him. Edward suddenly felt he was even shorter.

It was not about the height. He felt that he was much humbler than Jaylon.

Edward asked suspiciously, "Are you married? Why didn't you tell me?"

Jaylon said calmly, "We didn't tell you about her mother's death. Why should we tell you about our marriage?"

Edward had long blacklisted Reina. He did not know if it was because Reina really did not inform them or if she couldn't reach them. However, he couldn't argue with it.

"Reina, let's go home." Jaylon reached his hand to Reina without looking at Edward.

Reina recovered from the shock and didn't know if she should hold his hand.

She raised her hand and quickly retracted it.

Jaylon's eyes flashed. He stretched out his arm and grabbed her wrist. His other hand held her shoulder. He pulled her into his arms. His voice was hoarse and magnetic. "Let's go home."

Reina pursed her lower lip and nodded softly. Then she left with him.

Anaya stood up with the dog. Edward didn't dare to call Jaylon, so he planned to grab Anaya's arm and ask for an explanation.

Before Edward could touch Anaya, someone grabbed his shoulder, covered his mouth, and dragged him into a grove on the side.

Reina heard the movement. She turned around, only to see the trees shaking. Edward was gone.

She took the leash in Anaya's hand and led Sammo for her. She asked doubtfully, "Ana, did you see my uncle?"