

Billionaire's Reborn Baby

Chapter 1075 Roxy Cooper Twelve (3)

Eight years passed...

Collin finally understood her gaze. There was fear, loneliness, hesitation, and despair in the pupils.

Roxanne gave him a very shallow smile. Behind the smile, her sensitive and timid love was hidden.

Collin took a few steps forward and firmly held her hand.

"What are you talking about? You don't look good," she asked softly.

"Do I look unattractive?" Collin bantered. "Didn't you say that I am the most handsome among the group of doctors?"

Roxanne pursed her lips and didn't say anything because Cora was by her side, but Cora butted in, "What's the use of being good-looking? Will it bring a man fortune and luck? Am I right? Roxanne?"

The corners of Roxanne's mouth slowly curved up. "... Yes."

Cora took her hand and continued walking forward, "Why don't we go shopping after dinner. I haven't bought clothes for a long time. What type of clothes do you like? I will buy you a few..."

Roxanne replied with a smile.

"Livia is a good name. Grandma will buy you... clothes for spring, summer, autumn, and winter. I must buy you a hundred pieces..."

"That's too many..." Livia raised her head to look at Roxanne, and she didn't know if she should refuse.

Roxanne just smiled and let her decide for herself.

If you are not reading this book from the website: novel5s.com then you are reading a pirated version with incomplete content. Please visit novel5s.com and search the book title to read the entire book for free

"How about this? Whatever you like, grandma will buy for you." Cora gave in. "Girls should wear clothes in bright colors. Your black dress looks good too. Grandma just wants to buy some beautiful dresses of other colors for you..."

"I only like black." Livia shook her head.

"Why? Young girls at your age all like red and pink dresses. Why do you like black only?" Cora continued.

"Because this is my mother's favorite color. I want to be like my mother," Livia said.

"It's good to be like your mom. Black looks good too. It looks steady and magnanimous," Cora said.

Cora was a good talker who was good at people. In short, Livia had only stayed with her for less than a day before she had a good impression of her.

At first, Livia was too embarrassed to call her grandma. When she returned home at night, she picked up her phone and called Cora. "Grandma, we're home..."

Collin whispered to Roxanne, "Look at our daughter, then look at you. You have never called me affectionately..."

"Darling," Roxanne called expressionlessly.

Collin was speechless.

Although she had no expression on her face, Collin was still shocked by her hoarse voice which seemed to carry an electric current.

Roxanne saw that his expression was not right and smiled, "Darling?"

Just a heads up: novel5s.com is the only place to read the complete version of this book for free. Don't miss out on the next chapter—visit us now and continue your journey!

Collin did not show it, but he was on the edge of exploding.

Roxanne walked to the bathroom and was about to take off her skirt to take a shower when she thought of something. She pulled her skirt and revealed one side of her shoulder. She leaned against the door frame of the bathroom and said in a hoarse voice, "Darling?"

Collin pounced like a wild beast out of a cage.

The date of the marriage was finally set for May 20th.

Collin announced the news when he went to work and invited his colleagues in the city hospital to participate when the time came. The nurses were eager to know the background of the woman who won over Doctor Mueller.

All they knew was that she was beautiful.

And Roxanne came over one night.

The nurses did not know who she was and asked if she had an appointment when Collin appeared.

"She is my wife." Collin introduced.

Roxanne smiled at the nurses.

The entire nurse station was suddenly bursting with talk, and all the nurses rushed to Collin's office to satisfy their curiosity.

Collin was on duty tonight, and Roxanne made some food for him. She had intended to leave after sending him the food, but Collin asked her to stay and wait for him to finish before leaving.

Just a heads up: novel5s.com is the only place to read the complete version of this book for free. Don't miss out on the next chapter—visit us now and continue your journey!

He even deliberately opened the door of the office.

From time to time, a group of nurses would pass by, and from time to time, a group of doctors would pass by. Later, even the dean and the director passed by his office. At a glance, they saw Collin smiling brightly. Only then did everyone believe that Collin, the wealthy bachelor, had fallen into love.

Everyone looked at Roxanne once more.

She looked ordinary. They couldn't understand why Collin was attracted.

"You guys don't understand. I made them a couple," the bespectacled doctor said merrily.

"What?" One nurse asked.

"This is a long story." The doctor adjusted his glasses with his fingers. "This story started eleven years ago... One day, we had coffee in the coffee shop. Our Doctor Collin fell in love with her at one sight back then. Under my encouragement, he bravely took the first step and asked her the telephone number..."

"Impossible! It must be you who took a fancy to her and wanted to contact her. Collin stopped you and then she took a fancy to our gentlemanly Doctor Collin..."

The bespectacled doctor defended, "... No, how can you change the script? That's how the story went."

"What script? I think you are the one who made it up!"

The bespectacled doctor was speechless. "Fuck. I become the scapegoat. I don't even have a name in the whole story. But I did have any complaints. Shit!"

There was no one else in the corridor except him.

They were still affectionate with each other in the office as if no one was there.

The doctor took out his phone and examined himself in the camera and signed, "Good-looking people are enviable!"