

Billionaire's Reborn Baby novel Chapter 1081

When Collin came back to the table, Roxanne and Mike were drinking and using sign language. Collin couldn't understand, but he stood in the distance and watched them for a while.

He knew that Roxanne had a tough life when she was pregnant. Collin was shocked when the incident happened. At that time, her baby wasn't born.

The skin of his cheeks tautened and his eyes turned red. Roxanne stood up and walked to Collin, "What's wrong?"

"I'm sorry." Collin hugged her.

Everyone at the table looked at them.

Local people were not very open, and no one would hug others in public.

Roxanne tried to refuse him, but she couldn't make it. Collin hugged her tightly, "I'm sorry."

"Are you drunk?" Roxanne asked.

Collin let go of her and touched her chin. Suddenly, Collin gave her a big kiss.

The village women felt bashful, but they couldn't help but peep. Some people mumbled and cursed in low voices, but more of them were jealous.

Collin was not gentle that night and Roxanne shouted herself hoarsely. They cuddled up and stayed closer.

It seemed that only in this way could Collin allay his regret.

The group packed their luggage and planned to go back to City Y. Collin had a long conversation with Mike, but Mike was unwilling to go to City Y with them. Mike waved his hand and wanted to refuse.

Collin had no choice but let Roxanne and Livia say goodbye to Mike.

Livia kissed Mike before leaving.

Mike cried and waved his hand. He made sounds as if saying goodbye.

"I will come back to see you. I will look after you when you are old."
Livia said.

Mike shook his head and waved his hand as if saying something.

Livia cried, "He told me not to come back. It's not a comfortable place and the locals are not friendly. Just leave and never come back."

Collin rubbed her head.

Roxanne walked to and hugged Mike, "I gave the principal money every month. You can come to his place to have meals." Roxanne said it in sign language.

Mike wanted to refuse, but Roxanne held his hand. After a long time, he nodded and made sounds. It meant agreement.

After the conversation, Roxanne stood by Livia and stared at the house she had lived in for nearly ten years. Then she turned around and left with Collin.

The principal brought a group of children to send them off at the intersection. Livia kept waving her hand and drawing in her head until the car drove them out of the mountain and no one was in her sight.

Livia kept mom's words in mind, "When someone stays in a place for a long time, he or she has been accustomed to it and tends to rely on it. So, when you leave your comfort zone and enter an unfamiliar area, you will reject and fear. But after a while, you can adapt to it, because pursuing comfort is out of human instinct."

"I have many friends in City Y. Their children are almost the same age as you. You will be good friends. Don't worry." Collin smiled and touched her head.

Livia nodded.

She did not want any friends.

During these years, Livia lived in the village, but she didn't have any sincere friends. Therefore, Livia thought that it was not easy to make friends.

Mom was right. All relationships needed to be cautious, no matter romantic love or friendship.

At eleven o'clock in the evening, the car stopped.

It was Livia's first time traveling long distances. Although she felt uncomfortable after sitting for a long time, she was still in high spirits when she got out of the car. As a kid, she was not naughty and overcautious at all.

When they arrived in City Y, Livia looked at the strange city and behaved herself.

Collin took them back to their residence first. It was the house Roxy lived in before.

Roxanne stopped for a moment at the door.

"What's wrong?" Collin asked.

Roxanne shook his head. When she entered the house, she realized that Collin seemed to live in this place.

"I used to rely on it to fall asleep." Collin adjusted the electronic clock to the point and listened to the hoarse voice inside, "When I am with you, insomnia has never bothered me."

He put the clock on the bedside table and hugged Roxanne, "So, you can't leave me in the future, or I will have insomnia."

"Are you tired?" Roxanne wiped her hair.

Collin shook his head. "I'm not tired. What's the matter?"

Roxanne put the towel in his hand and pulled him into the bathroom.

As soon as the door closed, she tiptoed to kiss Collin.

Collin gained the initiative instantly.

They enjoyed warm water under the shower.

"Do you remember?" Roxanne whispered.

Of course, Collin remembered. They made a promise that only after Collin married could Roxanne leave.

And then, he was not married.

But she left.

He bit her neck gently and held her hands. "Roxanne..."

"What?" Roxanne asked.

"When did you fall in love with me?" Collin's face was full of warm water, similar to tears.

Warm water flew down from the showerhead.

The room was filled with mist. Roxanne muttered,

"It was longer than you..."

Before Collin took Roxanne and Livia to Cora's house, he told her, "Prepare the fast-acting heart-saving pill."

Cora scolded him.

When Collin introduced Livia to Cora that she was her granddaughter, Cora collapsed on the sofa, and Mike hurriedly went to the room to look for the fast-acting heart-saving pill.

Cora was just shocked. She did not need to take the medicine, but her hands and feet were so feeble that they couldn't support her. She looked at Livia in disbelief, but her son did not look like he was joking. She began to look at Livia seriously and could vaguely see that Collin and she bore a little resemblance.

"Granddaughter?" Cora didn't believe him. "How could she be my granddaughter? Collin, are you lying to me?"

Collin took Roxanne to Cora's front and said, "You don't believe me, but you should at least believe her."

It was only now that Cora saw Roxanne whom she felt slightly familiar.

The name sounded familiar at first, and Collin reminded her, "You asked me to rent the wedding room. At that time, a girl came to rent the room..."

Cora finally remembered. It seemed that Roxanne was the little girl that rented the house back then. Indeed, her voice matched as well. Cora looked at Livia and found that she was at least eight or nine years old.

In other words, since Collin had ruined the girl, he left her to bring up the child alone.

Cora was the same age as the girl when she gave birth to Collin, and she felt tired though she had a nanny at that time. Moreover, based on how Roxanne was dressed, she was obviously a simple girl.

Cora slapped Collin on the shoulder. "Good! You did a good job at that time! The child is already at such an age. You brought her back now! Do you have any conscience?"

Collin did not expect the plot to go this way.

Roxanne was stunned as well, and she hurriedly stretched out her hand to stop Cora. "Madam, no, it's not his fault..."

"Don't stop me! I'll help you get back at the injustice you've suffered!" Cora was worthy of being a model example of being swift and decisive in taking action. As soon as she finished speaking, she didn't stop slapping Collin more than ten times until her palm became red. Only then did she pull Roxanne over to apologize. "Roxanne, I'm sorry. I am a bad mother. You've suffered so much outside for so many years, right?"

"Girl, you must have suffered a lot too, right?" Cora asked while looking at Livia seriously.

Livia shook her head.

"But you didn't tell me that you had a child!" Cora was trying to recall something. "Are you sure that she's your child? No, you didn't lie to me, right?"

"Collin, this matter concerns the two families. Tell me, is that child yours?" Mike also asked in a low voice.

"Yes." Collin took out a certificate from his pocket and said, "I was afraid you won't believe me. So I went to the hospital to do a DNA report the next day after I came back. Take a look."

He showed the report before them.

Cora was overjoyed when she saw it, but after that, she asked nervously, "Roxanne doesn't know it, right?"

"No." Collin said frankly, "She suggested I do it."

Mike raised his eyebrows and nodded thoughtfully. He exchanged a look with Cora.

Cora nodded as well, and she had a slightly better impression of Roxanne. "This child..." Suddenly she thought of something serious and asked Collin immediately, "What exactly happened between the two of you? How could you hide it from me for so long? Your child is already at such an age, but mom still arranges blind dates for you every day. If you brought her here earlier, there wouldn't be so many unnecessary things to do."

Billionaire's Reborn Baby novel Chapter 1083

"To tell you the truth, I do not know either." Collin sighed, "At that time, I was afraid that you would not agree with me being with her, so I went on blind dates. I was going to marry Jade at that time. But Roxanne knew it and left me for so many years. She was pregnant when she left. If I hadn't met her, I might have..." Collin spread his hands. "That's the story."

"God bless you. Fortunately, you met..." Cora quickly put her hands together and prayed. After she finished praying, she told Collin, "Roxanne looks very quiet, but she couldn't accept any disloyalty. You must treat her well, understand?"

"Yes." Collin smiled and agreed. "I will treat her well."

Cora thought of something and quickly reached out her hand to Mike, "Give me some money."

"Money? I don't know if I have enough money..." Mike took out his wallet and was about to take out his cash when he was mercilessly interrupted by Cora. "I don't need any cash. That card, I need your card."

Mike was stunned. "Isn't the money left to cover the expenses we need after our retirement?"

"We don't need it. Give me the card." Cora snatched his wallet, found the card, and took it out.

Mike was speechless.

Collin held back his laughter. When he washed the fruit and carried it out, Roxanne already had the card in her hand. Cora was asking Livia what she liked to eat.

Collin sat beside Roxanne and said, "The money is all my parents have now."

"Really?" Roxanne was surprised.

Cora immediately said, "He lied to you. We still have some money left. Take it, it's just a greeting gift. I don't know what to buy. Do take it."

Roxanne nodded.

Cora finished chatting with Livia. She liked this well-behaved and obedient child very much. Moreover, she didn't have any strange accent like the people in the mountains. She was very good at speaking standard English.

The child was already at such an age, but the two adults were not married yet.

Cora thought before saying, "Look at the wedding room first. Tell me which one you like. I'll buy it."

"I like the one we live in now," Collin replied.

"Isn't that the one you..." Cora hadn't finished speaking when she thought of something. 'Maybe the house witnesses Collin and Roxanne's love,' wondered she. Then she immediately said, "Alright, tell me if you need to renovate it. What about the wedding? Have you decided the date of the wedding?"

Collin tilted his head to look at Roxanne who said, "Anytime."

Roxanne shook her head.

Mike came out of the kitchen and said, "The private room has been booked. Let's go out to eat."

"Let's go." After Cora left, she held Roxanne with one hand and Livia with the other.

Collin walked behind and looked at them, feeling funny.

Mike walked over and gently patted Collin on the shoulder. "When you build up a career and have a family, you have to bear the responsibility."

There was something in his words that Collin could understand. "I have already reported to the dean. I will be going back to my job next month."

Mike nodded. "You've always been reliable. It's just that your marriage has been dragged on for too long. Your mother urged you earlier because she didn't want to see you being too lonely by yourself. Now that you have a wife and a child, the two of you should get along well. Although dad and mom are old, we can still take care of your child. You must treat Roxanne well. When dad saw her, I knew that she must have suffered a lot. Since you chose her, you have to treat her well."

"Yes."

Collin raised his head to look ahead, and Roxanne just happened to turn around.

Eight years passed...

Collin finally understood her gaze. There was fear, loneliness, hesitation, and despair in the pupils.

Roxanne gave him a very shallow smile. Behind the smile, her sensitive and timid love was hidden.

Collin took a few steps forward and firmly held her hand.

"What are you talking about? You don't look good," she asked softly.

"Do I look unattractive?" Collin bantered. "Didn't you say that I am the most handsome among the group of doctors?"

Roxanne pursed her lips and didn't say anything because Cora was by her side, but Cora butted in, "What's the use of being good-looking? Will it bring a man fortune and luck? Am I right? Roxanne?"

The corners of Roxanne's mouth slowly curved up. "... Yes."

Cora took her hand and continued walking forward, "Why don't we go shopping after dinner. I haven't bought clothes for a long time. What type of clothes do you like? I will buy you a few..."

Roxanne replied with a smile.

"Livia is a good name. Grandma will buy you... clothes for spring, summer, autumn, and winter. I must buy you a hundred pieces..."

"That's too many..." Livia raised her head to look at Roxanne, and she didn't know if she should refuse.

Roxanne just smiled and let her decide for herself.

"How about this? Whatever you like, grandma will buy for you." Cora gave in. "Girls should wear clothes in bright colors. Your black dress looks good too. Grandma just wants to buy some beautiful dresses of other colors for you..."

"I only like black." Livia shook her head.

"Why? Young girls at your age all like red and pink dresses. Why do you like black only?" Cora continued.

"Because this is my mother's favorite color. I want to be like my mother," Livia said.

"It's good to be like your mom. Black looks good too. It looks steady and magnanimous," Cora said.

Cora was a good talker who was good at people. In short, Livia had only stayed with her for less than a day before she had a good impression of her.

At first, Livia was too embarrassed to call her grandma. When she returned home at night, she picked up her phone and called Cora. "Grandma, we're home..."

Collin whispered to Roxanne, "Look at our daughter, then look at you. You have never called me affectionately..."

"Darling," Roxanne called expressionlessly.

Collin was speechless.

Although she had no expression on her face, Collin was still shocked by her hoarse voice which seemed to carry an electric current.

Roxanne saw that his expression was not right and smiled, "Darling?"

Everyone looked at Roxanne once more.

She looked ordinary. They couldn't understand why Collin was attracted.

"You guys don't understand. I made them a couple," the bespectacled doctor said merrily.

"What?" One nurse asked.

"This is a long story." The doctor adjusted his glasses with his fingers.

"This story started eleven years ago... One day, we had coffee in the coffee shop. Our Doctor Collin fell in love with her at one sight back then. Under my encouragement, he bravely took the first step and asked her the telephone number..."

"Impossible! It must be you who took a fancy to her and wanted to contact her. Collin stopped you and then she took a fancy to our gentlemanly Doctor Collin..."

The bespectacled doctor defended, "... No, how can you change the script? That's how the story went."

"What script? I think you are the one who made it up!"

The bespectacled doctor was speechless. "Fuck. I become the scapegoat. I don't even have a name in the whole story. But I did have any complaints. Shit!"

There was no one else in the corridor except him.

They were still affectionate with each other in the office as if no one was there.

The doctor took out his phone and examined himself in the camera and signed, "Good-looking people are enviable!"

On May 20th, it was sunny and warm, and there were no clouds in the sky.

Roxanne sat in the bride's break room, and the makeup artist went out after finishing her makeup.

"Mom, are you nervous?" Livia asked when she saw that everyone in the room had left.

Roxanne shook her head.

Glancing at Livia's teasing gaze in the mirror, Roxanne smiled and said softly, "A little bit."

"Mom, you're very beautiful today. Really," Livia said with a smile.

She gave her a thumbs up.

Both of them thought of Mike at that moment.

Livia took out her phone and took a picture of Roxanne. "It doesn't matter. I'll send it to Mike. He can see how beautiful you are today."

Roxanne chuckled.

There was a knock on the door, and Livia replied, "Please come in."

Roxanne raised her head to look and was slightly surprised, but there was obvious happiness in her eyes. "Vivian?"

Vivian came in unexpectedly. "Rag! You broke my heart! You didn't even tell me your wedding date! If it weren't for Doctor Collin informing me in advance, I wouldn't have been able to make it here at all! I took a plane and took a bus and jolted for more than ten hours here for you! Who is this?" He turned his gaze to Livia. "Flower girl?"

Roxanne stood up. The pure white wedding dress was as simple as a long dress. She did not wear any jewelry, except for a pair of elk-shaped ear studs on her ears. When she was close, he could smell the perfume on her body. The smell was indescribably confusing and sexy.

"She's my daughter, Livia Copley." Roxanne looked at Livia and said, "This is Vivian Brown. Mom mentioned him to you. Call him Vivian."

"Hello, Vivian." Livia greeted politely.

"Oh, your daughter..." Vivian was about to sit down when he suddenly shivered, "What? Your, your daughter?"

Since Roxanne left and did not keep in touch with anyone, Vivian naturally did not know where she lived these years and how her life was. To be honest, if not for Collin still remembering to send him the message, he would have thought that Roxanne must have married another man.

Who knew that the two were suddenly married, and now they had such a big daughter!

"Oh my god!" Vivian opened his eyes wide, "You shocked me. We have been apart for a long time, so you prepare such a big surprise for me!"

"How about you? How are you recently?" Roxanne asked with a smile.

It had to be said that Collin understood Roxanne the most. Perhaps if it was someone else, Roxanne might not necessarily be able to chat frankly with others to eliminate her nervousness before marriage. But Vivian was different. During the most difficult period of Roxanne's life, Vivian accompanied her. He was a companion, a superior, and a friend. Only he witnessed how she worked hard to live and desperately integrate into this world...

"Doctor Collin guessed it right," Vivian said angrily.

Roxanne smiled faintly but did not ask.

"I asked him why you didn't contact me. He said that you might find it troublesome for me, so you probably wouldn't contact me." Vivian said though he tried not to tell her.

Collin said, "I don't understand."

Vivian was speechless.

Collin walked in and helped Roxanne comb her hair before saying, "I'll introduce a few friends to you later."

"OK."

Just as he finished speaking, a group of people rushed in from the door.

Roxanne saw Janessa, Emma, and Christy standing in the front with Armando, Jaquan, and Trevor behind them.

Jaquan exposed his head and smiled awkwardly, "They... can't wait to see the bride..."

Janessa gazed at Roxanne attentively as soon as she entered, and then she grabbed Roxanne's hand. "Heroine, I never expected that it would be you who subdued this rich bachelor in the end. I thought that Doctor Collin would be lonely for the rest of his life. I must propose a toast to you later!" As soon as she finished speaking, she stuffed a red envelope into Roxanne's hand in a very unrestrained manner. "The few of us don't have anything else except money. It's a bit vulgar. But please take it."

Roxanne said, "... I like money."

Janessa laughed out loud and said to Collin, "Doctor Collin! You have good taste. I like your wife."

Words failed Collin.

Emma took out a gift box from behind and passed it to Roxanne, "A greeting gift. We might have to come and disturb you frequently in the future."

Billionaire's Reborn Baby novel Chapter 1086

Roxanne thanked her for her gift and then said, "I am a very boring person. If you don't mind, you can come and have fun with me at any time."

"No problem." Christy smiled and said, "I knew you are an interesting person the moment I saw you." She took out a red envelope and a gift from behind. The money was given to Roxanne, and the gift was given to Livia. "Your daughter is so beautiful. I don't know what to buy, but I picked this. Do you like it?"

Livia thanked her. After opening it, she found that it was a pair of night running glasses. It was a high-tech gift. After wearing it, one could see anything in the dark.

"Thank you." Livia thanked her again.

"The wedding is about to begin. The groom, get ready!" Someone outside shouted.

Collin responded and said to Roxanne, "I'll go first."

Roxanne nodded.

As soon as Collin left, Janessa and the others surrounded Roxanne. Vivian, as the only male present, stood before Roxanne extremely bravely. "You, what are you going to do?"

"What did you say?" Janessa laughed sinisterly and winked at Christy who immediately subdued him. He shouted, "Help!"

Christy thought he was too noisy and stuffed a towel into his mouth.

Jaquan, Armando, and Trevor stood at the door, keeping a guard.

Janessa took out her phone and said to Roxanne, "Come, scan the code and join our group chat."

Roxanne was speechless.

So was Vivian.

Was there a need to mobilize so many people just to make her join a group chat?

Roxanne took out her old-fashioned phone from her bag.

Everyone was silent.

Janessa looked at the old machine in confusion and asked Roxanne, "May I ask, when were you born?"

"I don't play WeChat," Roxanne smiled.

"The bride, get ready!" Shouts came from the outside.

Roxanne stood up and smiled at the few of them, then looked at Janessa and said, "I'll go back and change my phone. When the time comes, you can invite me to join the group."

Janessa waved her hand, "Hurry up and go. We're expecting the exciting part tonight."

Roxanne nodded and stood up slightly, then walked out with a firm smile on her face.

Roxanne had been staring at the man for a long time, and Collin asked from the side, "Don't you recognize him?"

Only now did Roxanne turn around and ask uncertainly, "My father?"

Collin nodded.

Before they got married, Cora discussed with Roxanne about finding a friend of Mike as her godfather. On the day of the wedding, he was expected to hold Roxanne's hand and gave it to Collin.

But Roxanne refused.

She wanted to walk to Collin alone.

Meeting Collin until getting to know him and then falling in love with him, she was alone.

On the road to the future, she also hoped that she could put aside all her past and only have Collin in her eyes.

And at this moment, Collin invited her parents and sat below the stage, looking at her.

Roxanne understood what he was thinking.

He wanted her parents to see that from now on, she, Roxanne, would be his girl, and he would marry her. But it had nothing to do with Ann and Eden Copper.

Billionaire's Reborn Baby novel Chapter 1087

"I heard that the bride lives a hard life. Her parents passed away very early, so she has always been alone. She is very independent and powerful. It is said that it took our groom one year to win her heart." The host teased.

Collin tilted his head.

The host handed the microphone to him. "Our groom seems to have something to say, right?"

Collin chuckled and said, "To correct your statement: it is not a year."

The host asked him with a smile, "How long is that? It seems that the groom cares a lot about the time he has spent on the girl."

"Nine years," Collin said. There was an uproar below the stage.

Roxanne only smiled lightly.

She had an aloof and refined temperament. The guests did not feel it at first. When they saw her and Collin standing together, they realized that the bride had an indescribable beauty.

This beauty had nothing to do with appearance. Just by standing there, others would feel her beauty.

Emily and Kaden arrived late. They didn't join Janessa and other partners until the wedding ceremony between Roxanne and Collin ended.

Kaden immediately ran away on hearing that Emily would join Janessa soon.

Therefore, Emily went to Janessa and the others alone.

"Doctor Mueller's daughter is very good-looking. Did you see her?" Janessa asked Emily.

Emily took out a red packet and a gift. "Not yet. I haven't had the time to see her yet. Which one is?"

"That one, the one in the black dress," Janessa said, pointing at Livia.

Emily nodded. "She is indeed beautiful."

"What's inside the small gift box? It can't be a ring, right? Are you looking for a wife for your son?" Janessa raised her brow.

Emily refused to tell her frankly. "It's just a small gift."

Emily first went to Collin and greeted Roxanne. After sending out the red packet, Emily walked to Livia and handed the gift to Livia.

"What's inside the box? She is so mysterious." Since Livia didn't show the gift to Janessa, Janessa grew very curious. Emily refused to tell her either, so Janessa wanted to ask Livia.

"Just a piece of jade." Emily said, "Doctor Mueller sent it to me and asked me to paint on it. In the end, he asked a craftsman to carve it before sending it to me."

"Ah? Why?" Janessa asked, "Aren't those which have already been curved in grocery stores better?"

Emily explained, "Doctor Mueller said that his daughter only likes presents that are carefully selected. She doesn't like presents from common stores."

"No wonder she liked the gift I gave her." Christy agreed.

"Then I screwed it. She probably doesn't like me the most." Janessa shrugged. "Well, when I first saw her, I was thinking of establishing a marriage tie with Doctor Mueller."

"In-laws?" Christy chuckled. "Your son is still young. Why are you in a hurry to find a wife for him?"

Kaden dragged Emily away.

"Chase." Chase turned to Livia.

Livia was slightly stunned. "Why does your voice sound like a boy's?"

Chase said, fiddling his hair. "Because I am a man."

Livia froze in shock.

"Mom, I don't want to make friends anymore," Livia said to Roxanne when she returned to Roxanne.

Roxanne asked, "What's wrong?"

Livia thought for a moment and said, "There is a boy wearing a girl's clothes. I thought he was a girl."

Chen Xi understood. "Some people in women's clothes are boys, and some are girls in men's clothes. You'll be able to distinguish them when you're older."

"Mom, which girls are wearing men's clothing?" Livia asked.

Roxanne pointed to the editor who was checking the phone. "Here it is."

The dumbfounded editor looked up in confusion.

What was it?

Was he missing something?

Happisland University was built later.

Because of the money donated by many rich people in Happisland City, this university looked more imposing than the other universities. The teachers hired at Happisland University were well-known professors at home and abroad as well as some famous figures on TV. In recent years, many young promising people had graduated from Happisland University, increasing the reputation of this university.

And the most outstanding of the promising youths was Jacky.

"Jacky!" Christy called. As soon as Christy got out of the car, she saw Jacky surrounded by many students and teachers at the school gate.

Jacky was very good-looking. He was slightly different from his father, who looked clean and delicate. Jacky took more after Christy. With this kind of beauty, even if Jacky just stood there without saying anything, he could still attract the attention of many people.

Not to mention the other titles Jacky had, including a genius, a prodigy, and an inventor.

Jacky handed the flowers in his hand to Christy.

"Why did you buy me flowers?" Christy asked excitedly.

Jacky pointed at the students behind him, and said, "The flowers are from those classmates."

Christy went speechless.

Ferne burst into laughter, and then Noah pulled him into the school by the collar.

Levin was still sitting in the corner of the campus. When Noah passed by, Levin was staring at a flower in the garden.

"What's so special about this flower?" Noah sat beside Levin and asked.

"Congratulations on your graduation." Ferne took out a gift from his chest and handed it to Levin.

Levin took the gift with a smile and said, "Thank you, Mom."

"No! Call me Dad!" Ferne slapped Levin.

Levin ignored what Ferne said and opened the gift instead. It was a very delicate pocket flashlight the size of a pinky. It was very textured and heavy. "Do you like it?" asked Noah.

"Yes, I like it," Levin said. Levin turned on the flashlight. Although the flashlight was very small, the beam could reach far away. Levin tested it in his palms for a moment, then put the flashlight into his pocket and asked Noah, "Dad, you picked it, right?"

Noah raised his eyebrows.

"I was the one who picked the gift," said Ferne.

Noah pointed to the flower in the garden and asked, "What's wrong with the flower you were just looking at?"

Levin looked over and asked, "Can you see any difference in that flower?"

"No," Ferne moved closer.

Noah carefully compared that flower with the other flowers for a while, and then said, "It has fewer leaves than other flowers."

Levin was stunned for a moment. "You can see that?"

Because otherwise, Levin wouldn't have been isolated from the moment he became mature.

"People are all visual animals. They will naturally like beautiful things and people. But Levin, you have to know," Noah said, holding Levin's shoulder, "Those who love you and care about you, don't care what you look like. And even if you become old and ugly in the future, they will still love you."

"Are you touched? Noah never said anything so sentimental to me in his life, and I'm about to cry," said Ferne as he handed a tissue to Levin.

Levin went speechless.

The graduation ceremony began in the auditorium.

Noah met up with Christy and the others and sat together in the hall. The principal was giving his speech on the stage, while Jacky, the most outstanding student in the whole school, was about to speak on the stage.

"Jacky shouldn't be nervous, right?" Christy asked from below the stage.

Trevor nodded.

"Jacky needs to just read it after he has memorized the manuscript. What's there to be nervous about?" Ferne said.

Christy took a deep breath and said, "I don't know why, but I'm a little nervous,"

"Maybe when your son expresses his thanks to his parents later, the lights will come to us..." Ferne coughed a little and straightened his collar, "Smile for the camera, Noah. We're gonna be the best-looking parents."

"Alright," Christy said with a poker face.

Billionaire's Reborn Baby novel Chapter 1089

The principal finished his speech and invited Jacky to speak on behalf of all the students.

There was continuous applause below the stage.

Christy clapped until her palms were red. Finally, she took out her phone and started recording.

Jacky stood on the platform, holding a speech script in his hands. A moment later, Jacky put the speech script on the table, looked at the crowd below the stage with a slight frown, and said, "Before going on stage, the principal asked me to share my experience in getting these patents as well as the difficulties and obstacles in the process of inventing with you."

Below the stage, tens of thousands of eyes were focused on Jacky.

However, Jacky then said, "It's too simple. There are no difficulties or obstacles."

The crowd below the stage was speechless.

"As for things I've learned from that," Jacky thought about it, "It takes brains to invent. It's a waste of time for those with low intelligence to try it."

Christy almost smashed her phone onto the stage.

The principal got both speechless and furious.

Jacky glanced at the speech draft, looked up, and said, "As for the suggestion for future juniors," he thought about it and said, "Since college is quite boring, and the courses are too simple, I think it's better for you to take time to play games." Speaking of games, Jacky paused for a second and went on, "Games are also too simple. Forget it."

Everyone below the stage was shocked.

The graduation ceremony came to an end.

Christy drank an entire bottle of water before she managed to suppress the anger in her heart.

As for Trevor, he ran away as soon as the graduation ceremony ended. It was said that Trevor went to City Y to look for Kaden.

Ferne laughed as he watched the video, "How could Jacky be so arrogant? He must be like his uncle."

Noah looked at Ferne with a blank expression.

Ferne shut his mouth but burst into laughter after a moment.

Christy rested her arm on Ferne's shoulder and said, "Mr. Ferne, let's go and have a drink."

Ferne replied fearfully, "OK! I'm not afraid of you!"

"Hey, Janessa, did you hear that? Mr. Ferne just challenged you," Christy said into her phone.

Janessa's voice came from the other end of the phone, "How arrogant, Ferne! I'll be there soon."

Ferne was startled.

Jacky was in a good relationship with Kaden, and Kaden got on well with Levin and Chase. As a result, when Jacky went to Kaden, it would result in a large group of people gathering together.

However, Kaden was busy chasing after Livia and had no time to play with Jacky at all.

"Dame it!" The girl hung up the phone with a snap, and then stared at Jacky incredulously, "Is there anything wrong with you?"

Jacky took out the IQ detector from his backpack and scanned the girl's forehead.

Jacky got the result immediately.

Jacky found the girl's IQ was only eighty-five.

Jacky showed the girl the result and said, "Your IQ is too low. Don't talk to me.

"Fuck! Where the hell are you from? Why are you so arrogant?" the girl asked as she ruffled her hair and exhaled, "Where are you going?"

Jacky closed his eyes and ignored the girl.

The girl was so angry that she grabbed Jacky's collar. Jacky was wearing a white shirt today and his collar was deformed after that. Jacky opened his eyes and only saw a face with heavy makeup. The fake eyelashes almost poked into his nostrils.

"My IQ is too low?" the girl sneered, "How about yours? Let me see."

Jacky took the detector and scanned his forehead.

The result showed his IQ was 145.

The girl went speechless.

The girl picked up the detector and looked at it, asking, "What is this?"

"As you can see, an IQ detector," Jacky said as he revealed his wrist and there was a transparent watch on it. Jacky then grabbed the girl's index finger and placed it on the watch. A fingerprint detection was carried out. After the fingerprint was magnified, a projection screen popped up above the watch with all the girl's information.

All the girl's information, including her name, height, weight, BWH, as well as her educational background, and grades in all subjects, was shown.

"Fuck!" The girl reached out to cover the watch in shock, but she could not turn it off.

"Got kicked out of high school for fighting?" Jacky read the girl's information expressionlessly, "Got 200 marks for SAT? For you, it is quite a high score."

The girl glared at Jacky, "Are you out of your mind? Lock it up!"

Jacky turned off his watch.

Jacky looked out the window and suddenly looked back at the girl's chest.

Zoey slapped Jacky on the face and said, "Shame on you! What are you looking at?"

Jacky covered his face in disbelief, "How dare you hit me?"

"Then how dare you peek at me" Zoey pointed at her chest, "Just now, you were staring straight here."

Jacky pointed at Zoey and said, "That's because I suspect the data is wrong."

"What do you mean?" Zoey asked.

"The data shows that you are of C cup. But I don't think so."

Zoey got too furious to say anything.

Before Jacky arrived at Happisland City, he was dragged out by Zoey.

"Hey! I haven't arrived yet!" Jacky shouted as he was pulled out of the bus by Zoey.

"Shut up!" Zoey glared at Jacky fiercely, "Be obedient, and I'll let you go. If you don't follow my words, you'll..." She threatened, "You will be doomed, got it?"

Jacky did not say anything.

When Jacky got off the bus, he noticed that it was City Y.

Jacky had never been to City Y before. The streets were different from those in Happisland City. The area of greenery here was larger than that of Happisland City, so it looked more spacious. There were fewer cars and not many pedestrians on the road.

The lights were on and the night was just falling. The street lamps were lit up one by one, and there were many light bulbs wrapped around the trees, which seemed to flash when people looked far away.

The environment in City Y was very good.

Jacky looked around and then noticed a few men walking over not far away.

The man in the lead was about the same as the girl beside Jacky. They both seemed to be from an alternative world. The man's hair was dyed in various colors. Then the man looked at Jacky with disdain and asked, "New boyfriend?"

Zoey took Jacky and said, "Yes, my new boyfriend. He adores me so much."

"Damn it! A bunch of idiots." Zoey cursed, and then she helped Jacky up and ran out with him.

Jacky asked as he ran, "Why did the man hit me?"

"Because you are an idiot!" Zoey cursed.

Jacky seemed to have heard something ridiculous. He said in disbelief, "It's Impossible! My IQ is 145."

"I really want to ask your parents how they managed to raise a fool like you!" Zoey kicked Jacky into a narrow alley while panting, and then followed him into hiding.

The man and the others followed closely.

Zoey quickly reached out her hand and covered Jacky's mouth, with her whole body almost sticking to him.

After the man and the others ran far away, Zoey let out a sigh of relief and withdrew her hand.

Jacky suddenly said, "The data is correct."

Zoey said, "What?"

"You are really of C cup," Jacky said with his eyes full of excitement because of his new discovery.

"What the fuck! Shut up!" Zoey slapped Jacky on the head.

"Is he dead?" Someone in the dark asked.

"Not yet. He's still breathing." A man came over and kicked the boy on the ground.

The boy's body was kicked over and the face exposed was full of blood.

"What did you do to his face?" The man in the dark came over and looked down, "Those two guests wanted him. How am I going to explain it to them?"

"It won't matter after the boy takes a bath," the other man said.

"But..." The man who had spoken before hooked his hand around the boy's face, and the corner of his mouth curved up, revealing a bloodthirsty smile, "Some people just like this style."

The man walked out.

The remaining man raised his hand and grabbed the boy's hair. The boy opened his eyes painfully. His eyes were bloodshot and filled with dense hatred and the intent to kill.

"How dare you glare at me?" The man snorted disdainfully, "I'll let you know what the saying 'to live is no better than to die' means."

The boy was taken to have a bath, and there were boys and girls of the same age everywhere.

A girl came to ask the boy if he knew what would happen next.

The boy only glanced at the girl before lowering his head.

'What will happen?

What else could happen?' the boy thought.

The boy was taken to a room.

The two beasts showed up again.

The boy pounced on one of the men angrily, biting at the neck of the man with his teeth, and refusing to let go until the man stopped breathing and struggling.

The boy wiped the blood from the corner of his mouth and turned to look at the other man.

"Help! Help!" The other man shouted and ran to the door, "Help!"

"Noah!" said Ferne, patting Noah on his face. "What happened to you? Why are you sweating so much?"

Noah was stiff all over with his teeth tightly clenched. He opened his eyes, which were suffused with a bloody red color.

"This is the first time you are drunk," said Ferne, looking at Noah in surprise, "Are you dreaming?"

Noah pressed his temples and stood up. He staggered with his mind full of bright red blood. His hands and feet were still stiff, but his body was hot, and his heart was beating violently.

"Aren't you going to take a shower?" Ferne asked while supporting Noah.

Noah entered the room without a word.

"I'm going to get you a glass of water," Ferne said and was about to leave, but Noah pulled him over.

Trevor gently hugged Christy's shoulder.

Christy turned around and smiled at Trevor. Then, Christy looked at everyone and said, "It's all over. Forget about it. Cheers."

Janessa and Stephanie also stood up, saying, "Cheers!"

"Levin has been out shopping for a long time." Janessa looked at her phone and said, "Did he go to City Y to shop?"

"Levin is not like Jacky, who goes to City Y every day. If I had known that, I would have signed Jacky up for a university in City Y," Christy mocked herself.

"No. Levin will be lonelier if you do that." Janessa picked up her glass and clinked it against Christy's. "Of course, even if Jacky is here, Levin is still lonely and helpless. Damn it, Levin deserves it."

"Where is our daughter?" Stephanie suddenly looked at Harold.

Harold was making tea for Stephanie. When he heard what Stephanie said, he looked at his watch and said, "She has been out for fifteen minutes."

"I see." Stephanie continued drinking with relief.

"Are you sure it's OK for your daughter to be out alone?" Janessa asked.

"Of course." Stephanie thought of something, and put on a strange look, "I think no one dares to provoke my daughter. The students of the school call her the Lord of Poison."

Janessa went speechless.

Billionaire's Reborn Baby novel Chapter 1092

"Look at what you did. She was a little princess." Janessa clicked her tongue.

"Don't say that to me. Your son is going to leave you," Stephanie retorted.

Christy laughed.

Janessa and Stephanie turned to look at her at the same time. "What are you laughing at? Your son is mediocre other than being a little smart."

Christy was speechless.

"Do you want to fight?" Christy lifted her gown and was about to fight.

"Darling! She wants to hit me!" Janessa shouted.

Armando stood up from his seat.

Trevor also stood in front of Christy.

Stephanie didn't need to shout and Harold was already standing next to her.

The six stared at each other.

After staring for a few seconds, Ferne's shouts came from the room.

Everyone turned around and looked at the room with strange expressions.

Then the voice became higher. All the men present lower their heads silently.

On the other hand, Stephanie and Janessa simultaneously took out their phones and recorded a video.

The other side.

Levin had just come out of the bar. His arm was a little injured, so he was about to go to the pharmacy to buy something to bandage it. Then, he saw a girl standing in front of him.

She was dressed in a white shirt with a small bag on her shoulder.

"Levin, you are injured," she said with a sleepy smile.

Zaid didn't look like Stephanie. She was more beautiful than Stephanie, but she was too young to show her dazzling charm.

Zaid was three years younger than Levin but was smarter.

Perhaps because she had stayed by Spencer's side since she was a child, she was more mature than her peers. Zaid had a liberal attitude to life and death.

"It doesn't matter. Why are you here?" Levin walked over.

"Waiting for you." Zaid smiled and raised Levin's arm to look at it. "Let me bandage your wound."

Levin seldom had contact with girls, including Livia and Zaid.

However, Noah and Ferne stayed at the Delton Hotel all year round. Janessa, Armando, Stephanie, Harold, and the others would come to drink sometimes. Thus, Levin had met Zaid many times, but they did not talk much.

Levin did not know why Zaid suddenly followed him out today.

She was still smiling when she spoke, but Levin knew that they had the same nature. She was not a busybody.

Levin thought it was strange.

Stephanie was simple, while her daughter was cunning.

"Hey, I bandaged your wound. It's fine if you don't say thanks, but you can't criticize me in your heart." Zaid blinked at him.

Levin put on his shirt again. "Thank you."

"Your shirt is stained with blood. I've already asked the owner to get you some clothes." Zaid packed her things and put them in her bag. She stood up and waved at him. "Then I'll go first."

Levin nodded.

He sat there with his upper body bare. He had a muscular and strong body.

Zaid opened the door, and then she suddenly turned her head and said, "Levin, I really didn't like you in the past."

Levin tilted his head slightly, revealing only half of his face.

He had a plain face. But after he took off his clothes, Zaid found that his silent body was filled with power and secrets.

Zaid gave him a thumbs up. "Now, I find that you are so handsome!"

Levin fell silent again.
