

Billionaire's Reborn Baby novel Chapter 1133

Once Bart left, all the work was left to Haiden alone.

He was busy during the day and had to work overtime at night.

Recently, there was a collaboration. He had to talk about the cooperation with clients on weekends. He was busy with work and social activities every day and had not rested for a long time.

Emma even came to talk to him a few days ago and asked him if he wanted to rest. If so, he could tell his family, and then he could have a long vacation. He could lay for a few months and come back to find a job at random.

Haiden didn't accept.

The people from the Alberton family were violent in dealing with social relationships. From the moment he took over, the customers were greatly surprised by his attitude because very few people from the Alberton family would treat people with such humility and courtesy.

Haiden decided to set an example and let the others change their view of the Alberton family, although this goal was somewhat grand.

In the evening, everyone in the company got off work before he came out of the office.

He bought an apartment near the company so he did not need to drive. He often walked back alone.

However, he often felt lonely on the way back.

He was six years older than Levin, nine years older than Chase, Jacky, and the others. He was also ten years older than Kaden.

As a result of the ten-year-old generation gap, he couldn't play with this group of children.

In his eyes, Bart was always a child.

Due to his relationship with his ex-girlfriend, he rarely contacted his university classmates. Therefore, he did not have many friends in his life. Instead, he met a few bosses with good personalities when he was working. However, the other party was in his thirties or forties. They treated him as a junior instead of a friend.

Sometimes, he was envious of Bart.

From the moment she was born, she had a partner who was born on the same date as her. There were also Chase, Jacky, Zaid, and finally Kaden, and Livia.

As soon as she arrived in Happisland City, she could get along well with this group of people.

But Haiden could not, he had passed that age, always putting on the airs of an adult in front of the group of "children". Because he was older than them, he could no longer do those childish and ridiculous acts and he had to be mature and steady.

However, occasionally he would be confused. Was this right or wrong?

Why ... was he unhappy at all?

On Saturday morning, Haiden was woken up by the phone. He looked at the time and found that he had actually overslept.

"Sorry, I haven't gotten up yet," he said to the assistant on the other side of the line.

"Boss, what happened to your voice? Are you sick?" the assistant asked in surprise.

"I'm fine. Do you have any medicine in the company? I'll be there in fifteen minutes." Haiden also realized that he had a sore throat.

The assistant nodded. "Yes."

"Call Bruno and ask him when he's free. I'll talk to him then." Haiden said and picked up a tissue to wipe his nose.

The assistant felt a little difficult. "He has been on a business trip outside the province recently. We have communicated with him. If it were not for the urgent goods, he would not have let his unruly son come over to talk about cooperation."

Haiden waved his hand, indicating that he understood.

He went to the factory at noon and came back to sleep in the car for a while. He was busy for an hour after taking medicine. He couldn't resist it anymore and went to the lounge to sleep for a while.

By the time he woke up, it was already dark.

"Gerald!" Haiden shouted in a hoarse voice.

Gerald rushed in.

"What time is it? Why didn't you call me?" Haiden quickly went to the bathroom to wash up. "Give me medicine."

"Six o'clock. It's not too late. We've decided on seven o'clock." Gerald helped him put on his suit jacket, then helped him put on his watch. He also brought medicine and water over.

"I don't like being late," Haiden said as he placed the cup in his palm.

Billionaire's Reborn Baby novel Chapter 1134

"Yes."

Haiden's face was not very good, and there was a trace of morbidity in his paleness. When he arrived at the private room, he did not expect that Andrew and others had arrived.

"Hello." Haiden politely shook the other party's hand. "Haiden."

"Yes." Andrew was not ugly, and his facial features were straight. When he smiled, he looked a little sloppy, and his sitting posture was also laid-back and arrogant.

This was the first time they had officially met.

Haiden had only heard of his name before, followed by some derogatory terms.

He subconsciously refused to meet this kind of person, for no other reason, he looked down on this kind of person.

However, he still had to pretend his inner thoughts.

"Order whatever you want to eat," Andrew said.

Haiden ordered a few dishes and asked the assistant to send the menu over. "Mr. Frey can order whatever you want."

Andrew threw the menu directly in front of a female assistant sitting next to him.

"Just leave these things to the assistant." He placed his hands on the table, "Let's talk about some serious matters. After we finish talking, everyone can eat and drink well. It will be considered perfect."

To be honest, Haiden quite liked his straightforward personality. Generally, he would only talk about cooperation after drinking for three rounds. When it came to cooperation, it could not be separated from drinking, so he really hated socializing.

His favorite cooperation was to go to the company and negotiate the price. Okay, the contract was signed and it was over.

"Alright." Haiden took a piece of paper and wiped his nose, then reached out to his assistant. The assistant took the contract and handed it to the table.

"Take a look first. The price is based on our company's standards. However, because of your father, with who we have worked together before, this time, the price is 0.3 lower than that of the previous years."

"Sure." Andrew threw the contract directly to the female assistant next to him. After she finished reading it and confirmed that there was no problem, she reached out for a pen and was about to sign the contract.

Haiden had never seen a boss who wanted an assistant to look at the contract. His eyebrows jumped and he looked at the assistant in silence.

Perhaps this person was not as simple as an assistant?

The female assistant was wearing a completely black OL suit. Her hair was tied up in a bun at the back of her head. She was dressed very well, but she was not old. She looked about 23 or 24 years old.

With light makeup on her face, it was obvious that her foundation was good. She did not wear any jewelry on her hands and ears, which made Haiden slightly surprised. This was because he had come into contact with many women, especially the women in the workplace. Many of them would wear watches, necklaces, and earrings. Even if they did not wear them on their neck and ears, they would definitely wear a bracelet on their wrist.

But she did not.

His entire body was without a single piece of jewelry.

Haiden was stunned.

"You should have an impression of her, right?" Andrew put his arm around the female assistant's shoulder. "I, her, and you, the three of us, were tied to a dark house."

Haiden's eyes fell on the female assistant next to him. He finally found a familiar feeling on her face.

No wonder he found the name Valery familiar.

After he had been rescued, he had dreamed of this girl several times.

The appearance of this girl protecting them in his dream had been deeply engraved in the depths of his mind.

Haiden chuckled. "So it was you guys."

Andrew stood up and patted him on the shoulder. "Is it really fate? Do you think my dad let me out to talk about cooperation? When I heard that it was you, I said yes. I was very familiar with this person, so my dad was relieved to let me come."

Haiden could not help but laugh.

Andrew drank a few glasses of wine. Even if Haiden had a cold and was not feeling well, he still accompanied him to drink two glasses. The atmosphere was lively.

After eating and drinking their fill, a group of people walked out. Andrew was even holding onto Haiden's shoulder. The two of them were about the same height. Compared to Haiden, Andrew was a little thinner. Perhaps it was because Haiden had practiced martial arts since he was a child. Although he did not look strong, his figure was straight.

Billionaire's Reborn Baby novel Chapter 1135

"It's my birthday next month. Come to my house and I'll introduce you to my friends." Andrew patted Haiden on the shoulder and said.

"Alright." Haiden agreed, not for anything else but this wonderful fate.

The next few days, it was Valery who came to Haiden to deal with the affair about the cooperation.

She wanted to follow Haiden to the factory to look at the materials and check the quality of materials. After confirming that there were no problems, the workers could go on with the next procedure, packing the materials.

Haiden hadn't recovered from his cold for a few days. Sometimes, when he stood there, his snot would come down. Sometimes, Gerald was busy confirming the materials with the workers. He couldn't care about Haiden. Valery handed Haiden a tissue, and then she handed him medicine and water.

Valery could have been so considerate for Haiden these days. She was so smart and Haiden was a little envious of Andrew.

"It's late. You go back first." Haiden glanced at his watch and said to Valery, "I'll get Gerald to send you."

"No need, I will wait for you," Valery said.

"It will be very late. I want to take it for a quality examination personally after it is done." Haiden's nasal voice was very heavy, but it sounded very charming.

"I know. I can handle it," Valery insisted.

After Gerald came back, he took the factory inspection report and said, "I'll send it to the company by mail."

"It's so late? The express delivery also closed. You drive her back first, then you can go home."

"What about you, Mr. Haiden?"

"I'll do it myself. After the inspection, I'll take a taxi back." Haiden's throat was a little itchy, and he was about to speak when Valery had already handed him the water.

Haiden thanked her, took a sip of water, and said to her, "Go back with him first."

Valery looked at his assistant, Gerald, and said, "You go back first. I'll send Mr. Haiden home later."

Gerald quickly thanked her and then drove away with the report.

"Why are you staying up so late? Don't you believe in our company?" Haiden was surprised.

"No, I just think it is not good to leave you alone. I will accompany you." Valery poured another cup of hot water and placed it in his hand.

Haiden held the cup of water and smiled gently without speaking.

It was almost eleven o'clock when the two finished the work and drove back. It was Valery who drove the car.

"Are you hungry?" Haiden asked.

"Let's go to eat something," Valery said as she parked her car at the side.

Haiden came down and saw the porridge shop.

...

Valery turned around. "You haven't recovered from your cold. Have some porridge. It is easy to digest at night."

"I know. You don't have to accommodate me. What do you want to eat? Let's go and eat what you want." Haiden took a few steps forward and stood shoulder to shoulder with her.

"Are you home?"

Valery locked the car and slowly walked home. "Yes, Mr. Haiden... took a taxi by himself."

"I know. How could he let a girl send him home?" Gerald said with a smile.

"Why not?" Valery was puzzled.

"Because girls need boys to protect them. That's what he said. Additionally, all the women in our company have to send a message to show they arrive home safely." Gerald added, "Our boss is a gentleman. If he was not sick, he would definitely drive you back."

Valery nodded.

Haiden was indeed a very gentleman.

Today in the factory, after the worker had finished the inspection, he thanked the workers. When he came out, she said that she would drive him, and before he got in the car, he said thank you to her, too.

The polite gentleman did not look like an overbearing president.

When she was eating the porridge, she clearly said that she did not want spring onion and coriander, but the proprietress probably did not hear it clearly. The proprietress brought out two bowls of porridge with spring onion.

She did not say anything and lowered her head to eat the small wonton. Not long after, Haiden pushed the porridge in front of him before her and he picked out all the green onions inside.

At first, Valery was wondering if Haiden had any other intentions for her. But when she heard Gerald's words, she suddenly understood.

Gerald should be very gentle to all the women in the world.

"What do you mean the goods are missing?"

Haiden received a call early in the morning. When he hurried to the company, Gerald and Valery were both in the office.

"Sorry, there is a problem with our logistics." Valery looked at Haiden and apologized sincerely, "I will go to the factory and investigate the situation tonight. I will answer you at the latest tomorrow. Is that okay?"

Haiden turned on his computer and said to Gerald as he dealt with the email, "Go book the tickets. We'll go to the factory tonight."

"What about Valery...?" Gerald asked hesitantly.

Haiden looked up at Valery who was standing there. "We can continue to cooperate with your company if we can find the goods back. But it will be the last cooperation if we can't."

"Sorry, it's our responsibility," Valery apologized again.

Gerald went out to book a ticket. When he passed by Valery, he said to her, "You can go back. Our boss will handle this matter. You don't need to participate. Besides, you are a girl, it is inconvenient."

"You can't deny my ability just because I'm a woman," Valery said solemnly.

Gerald was speechless and quickly went to book the tickets.

The three of them met in the same car that night. Haiden glanced at Gerald, who lowered his head and pretended to check his phone.

The goods were lost in Ristia. City Q was about six hours away from Ristia. There was still a waterway on the way. There was no airport and it was inconvenient to drive. Otherwise, Haiden would like to drive there by himself.

When they arrived at the service area to have meals, Valery stood in the wind, took a piece of bread from her bag and started to eat.

After Haiden and Gerald finished their meal and came out, Valery had already gotten into the car. Other than that piece of bread, she did not eat any hot food.

"You go first." After finishing talking to Gerald, Haiden turned around and went to buy a cob of corn, two meat buns, and a cup of black tea.

Valery sat in her seat with her bag in her arms. Her eyes looked out of the window. She wore a capable black office suit today. Before she got in the car, her hair was tied up behind her head. She probably sat in the car for a long time and felt uncomfortable leaning against the back seat. She pulled her hair to one side and tied it up loosely.

Haiden walked over and handed the food to her.

Valery was somewhat flattered. She thought that her company had made a mistake. On the way here, Valery was uneasy and guilty, but she did not expect Haiden to buy food for her.

"You don't like it?" Haiden asked when he saw that she had not reached out to take it.

"Thank you." Valery quickly took it.

His shoulders sank. He tilted his head to look. Valery was already asleep. Her entire head was leaning against his shoulder. She woke suddenly with a start. She quickly sat up and leaned against the window.

The car bumped its way and every time she leaned against the window, her head hit the car window.

She was probably extremely exhausted. She was still leaning against the window and gently closing her eyes in such a bumpy drive.

Haiden reached out and gently pushed her head to his shoulder.

Valery opened her eyes and was about to sit up. But Haiden said, "It's fine. Just sleep. You'll be busy later."

Valery didn't move again. She thanked him softly and closed her eyes, but she didn't fall asleep.

At nine o'clock in the evening, the three of them finally got to Ristia by ship.

Because it was very late, the staff of the logistics company had already gotten off work. So Haiden decided that they would rest for a night and come directly to the logistics company tomorrow morning.

Gerald found a relatively high-end hotel in Ristia. But it can't even compare with a two-star hotel. Probably because there were very few tourists coming, the hotels here closed down one after another. The only hotel that could be maintained was also full of arrogance because they couldn't find another hotel to live in.

Billionaire's Reborn Baby novel Chapter 1137

Before Haiden took the room card and entered, he saw a few men sitting in a room playing poker. The smell of smoke and wine was dispersing from their door.

"The driver said that the goods were still there when he loaded the truck. Then, he drove the truck back to the company and had a meal. The goods disappeared." After the assistant checked Haiden's room, he briefly told him what had happened and couldn't help but express his own opinion, "The driver didn't know anything. He checked the surveillance camera, and the truck was in a corner where the surveillance couldn't see. I think maybe the driver secretly took over the goods."

"Alright, I understand," Haiden told him to go back to rest. "Call me when you get in touch with the driver at seven o'clock tomorrow morning."

"Alright."

After the assistant left, Haiden took a shower. He remembered the room in the corridor, so he changed his clothes and walked out.

The proprietress at the front desk was in her forties. She wore thick makeup. Her fingernails were covered with red nail polish. She was talking to someone on the phone. When she saw Haiden coming over, she hung up immediately. Then she smiled and asked Haiden, "What's up, handsome boy?"

"Do you have cigarettes?" asked Haiden.

"Which brand do you want?" asked the landlady.

Haiden asked for a packet of Marlboro.

After giving him changes, the woman asked him, "Handsome boy, why are the three of you here to book three rooms? Are you covering up something?"

The people of the Alberton family were naturally sensitive and suspicious. Haiden had been in the Alberton family for many years, and he had already mastered the ability to read people's minds. He smiled and said nothing. The woman could not guess what he was thinking.

Haiden handed a cigarette to her.

The proprietress took it, and Haiden lit it for her.

"Don't sleep too early tonight." The proprietress smiled at him in the smoke.

Having verified the thing in his heart, Haiden smiled at her and turned to leave.

Valery had just finished bathing when someone knocked on the bathroom door. She asked through the door, "Who is there?"

"It's me," Haiden said as he stood at the door.

Valery only hesitated for a second before she opened the door.

Haiden held his luggage and a quilt in his hand. After getting inside, he closed the door and looked at Valery. "If you don't mind, I'll sleep on the floor here tonight."

Valery looked at him in silence, not understanding his words. She wondered if Haiden was telling her his love in this way.

Before she could speak, Haiden had already laid the quilt on the ground.

"Mr. Cox." After Valery washed up and came out, she stood in front of Haiden and said, "Tell me what you're thinking about."

"You should go to sleep," said Haiden as he glanced at his watch.

He turned off the lights. The room immediately fell into darkness.

"Habitual thieves?"

While Valery was guessing, the other party had already reached the bed.

Only then did she remember that Haiden was still on the bed!

At that moment, the person on the bed suddenly moved. In the darkness, there was the sound of bones cracking. Someone could not bear the pain and shouted.

The sound of footsteps showed their worry.

A few more people rushed into the door. They turned on the lights and found a man leaning against the wall. His arms seemed to have been dislocated. He couldn't move at all. He lay there screaming in pain.

The others immediately locked their eyes on Haiden, who was wearing a suit and slowly undoing his cufflinks.

People standing in front of him were the men playing cards he saw when he passed the corridor. It looked like this group of people had nothing to do but stayed in the hotel all day. It was really suspicious.

Haiden originally thought that this was a hotel engaged in crimes. Unexpectedly, the proprietress also didn't like this group of people for a long time and reminded Haiden.

It was why Haiden knew someone would attack him tonight.

A man shouted, "He is not sleeping at all!"

Another person asked, "Where is that woman?"

Billionaire's Reborn Baby novel Chapter 1138

"I didn't see her. Let's get him under hand first!"

There were four men. One of them had already been subdued. The remaining three were quite angry because Haiden didn't get into their trap.

They took out knives.

Valery didn't come out from under the bed. She knew what she should do now and had clear thoughts. Haiden was from the Alberton family and obviously would not lose in fighting. Valery knew that she might be a burden to Haiden if she appeared now, so she stayed under the bed obediently.

She stayed there until Haiden looked down at her and said, "Come out."

Only then did she quickly climb out.

Four men were lying on the ground. Both their arms and legs were broken.

Haiden's assistant, Gerald, ran over in a hurry and said, "Boss, yes, it's our goods!"

"What goods?" Valery looked at Gerald.

Gerald took out a cheongsam, "I found this in their room. It was from our stock of goods."

Valery took it over and examined it carefully. "Yes, yes, it's from that batch of goods." She looked at Gerald. "How did you know that they have our goods?"

"It wasn't me." Gerald pointed at Haiden and said, "Boss found it."

"How did you know?" Valery asked.

"When I came into the hotel, I passed by their room and saw it," Haiden said concisely. "When they were playing cards, the cheongsam had a section outside behind them."

With just a glance, Haiden could determine that it was the material from his factory, which made Valery respect Haiden much.

"Where are the other goods?" Haiden walked to the man whose arms had been dislocated, squatted down, and asked, "Where are the other goods?"

"I don't know." The man was in so much pain that his entire face twisted, but he refused to say anything.

"Take her out," Haiden said.

Gerald responded and let Valery leave the room.

"What is he going to do?" Valery asked hesitantly.

"It's fine. Our boss has his way to make them speak." Gerald heaved a long sigh of relief. "You just have to wait patiently. I was so lucky to have found it the moment I arrived. I thought I would have to wait here for a few days."

A mournful wail came from inside.

Valery could not help but open the door. Inside the door, Haiden was still half-squatting there. He seemed to be listening to something. A moment later, he turned around with a few drops of blood on his face.

"Go and find a car." He stood up and walked to the bathroom to wash his face.

Valery looked at the man lying on the ground. His arm had been broken, and his mouth was full of blood. He gasped in pain, and blood was still pouring out of his mouth.

Now she understood.

It was just an illusion.

It was the illusion that he had painstakingly built up for disguising himself.

They stayed at the police station for two hours. After dealing with all the matters, Gerald found back the batch of goods they had lost.

Valery let out a sigh of relief. The first thing she did was to call Andrew.

Haiden went to buy food. When the first ray of the morning sun shone down, he saw Valery smiling and happily talking on the phone.

It was the first time he saw this girl smiling.

She looked quite good when she smiled.

"Boss?" After dealing with the goods, Gerald rented a car and drove back. He stopped in front of Haiden and asked, "Are we leaving now?"

"Let's go." Haiden stood in place and looked in the direction of Valery. After a moment, he added, "Wait for her to finish the call."

"Okay." Gerald also took a look and smiled, "She must be on the phone with her boyfriend. It's the first time I see her smile like that."

Haiden grunted. Then, he turned around and got into the car.

Billionaire's Reborn Baby novel Chapter 1139

Ever since returning from Ristia, Haiden had become very busy.

His two uncles had everything to him, including several wineries, and even a martial art center. Haiden had to check them every day.

Haiden spent the entire weekend checking the financial account, and many hours socializing. He didn't have much time to rest.

One day, Andrew suddenly called, asking, "Hey, where are you?"

Only then did Haiden realize that it was Andrew's birthday.

"Forgive me, I..." Haiden gestured to his assistant, indicating him to prepare a birthday gift.

"You're still busy, aren't you? It's fine. You can come over a little later. But don't forget about it." The only side of the line sounded noisy. It seemed like many people had arrived.

Haiden had attended quite a lot of birthday parties but not a bikini party, the kind of party that Andrew was holding.

Andrew's father wasn't home. There was no one to disturb him. So, he threw the party at home.

Haiden walked in and saw Andrew in beach shorts, holding a girl in a pink bikini.

"Hi!" Andrew called out to everyone the moment he saw Haiden, "Guys! This is a good friend I recently made. Speaking of which, we are especially fated. We were kidnapped together when we were young!"

People all cheered.

Haiden was speechless.

Haiden didn't understand why people were so excited. He handed the gift to Andrew and smiled cordially, saying, "Happy birthday!"

Andrew took two glasses of wine and handed Haiden one of them. "You came late. This is your punishment. Drink it."

"Of course," Haiden answered.

Haiden took the glass over, raised his head, and drank it. Only then did he realize that it was not champagne but a strong wine.

His throat was burning.

But he finished the rest of the wine without hesitation.

"Did you see that?" Andrew said proudly to the people behind him, "This is a real man!"

Haiden drank with Andrew for a moment, then Andrew had to go greet other people. Haiden finally got to walk outside and breathe some fresh air.

The heater in the room was turned on. No wonder so many people did not feel cold even though they were wearing bikinis. After Haiden came out, the heat on his body dissipated a little. He sent a message to his assistant and asked him to call a driver later. He had drunk, so he couldn't drive.

He didn't eat when he came over. Now after a few cups of wine, his stomach was burning. He took some medicine from his car and planned to say goodbye to Andrew.

Just as he was about to enter, he saw a car drive over.

It was Valery's car.

They hadn't seen each other for more than half a month.

Andrew's voice came from inside.

He sounded a little strange.

Haiden pushed the door open and entered. Seeing the scene in the room, he subconsciously turned around and pushed Valery out.

Andrew was sitting on the sofa. He was surrounded by several naked women. One woman was beside his feet.

After closing the door, Haiden pulled Valery to the door.

"He ... seems to be a little busy. If he comes out later, please tell him that I need to go now."

Valery kept her head down while Haiden spoke.

Finished speaking, Haiden went down the stairs, yet he didn't get any reply from Valery. He looked back and found that Valery was crying.

He suddenly understood.

He brought Valery to his car and handed the tissue to her.

Neither of them spoke.

The atmosphere was silent until the assistant sent a message to ask him when he would leave.

After Haiden replied, he looked at Valery and asked, "Do you want to go back or go somewhere else to relax?"

Billionaire's Reborn Baby novel Chapter 1140

"Thank you," Valery said as she got off the car. "I still have other things to do."

Haiden was not sure what else she had to do, but a woman who could organize her emotions in a short time undoubtedly had a strong heart.

Haiden called his assistant in the car, "Come over to Andrew's house later and keep an eye on Valery."

When Gerald heard this, he could not help but lower his voice and ask, "What's wrong, boss? Valery is a spy?"

Haiden did not explain too much. "Just come and keep an eye on her. Drive her back if she needs it."

"Understood."

The facts proved that Haiden was overthinking.

Valery did not get herself drunk. She did her job as an assistant and helped Andrew greet the guests, and register the gifts he got, and the guests' names.

Then, she helped Andrew host. When the guest left, she arranged for someone to drive the car over.

She finished everything she could do for Andrew, then she wrote her name and gift in the last grid of the gift register.

"Valery, tie."

This was the eighth tie she had given to Andrew.

She did so from the year she was eighteen till now.

Andrew had only worn the ties from her a few times. However, she only wore the necklace and earrings he had given her on important occasions.

After Valery sent off all the guests, she took off her high heels and slowly walked to her car.

However, at the door, she saw Gerald.

"How come you're here?"

Gerald had been in the cold wind for several hours and did not dare to urge Valery. He could only follow Haiden's instructions and wait for Valery to come out. Thus, he waited for a long time.

"Waiting for you." Gerald said as he opened the passenger door, "Get in the car."

"Why?" Valery stood still.

"What do you mean why?" Gerald rubbed his hands and said, "My boss asked me to come over to pick you up." As he spoke, he stepped forward and sniffed in confusion, "You didn't drink?"

"No."

Gerald thought about it and asked, "Then, can you drive back by yourself now?"

Valery nodded.

Gerald waved at her. "Alright, you drive back by yourself. I'm leaving."

She looked at herself in the mirror, closed her eyes, and then picked up the key on the table. Then, she walked out.

After the New Year, Haiden went to City Y and Hapisland City.

He drove there and bought a lot of gifts. After visiting there, he went to the jewelry shop of the Alberton family.

Bernice loved bracelets the most. He picked a white bracelet. Emma preferred earrings, so he took a pair of droplet-shaped white earrings. When he saw other pieces of jewelry, he suddenly remembered Valery.

Seeing that he was staring at the rabbit-shaped earrings for a long time, the shopping guide hurried forward and asked, "Do you want me to take it out for you to see?"

Haiden put his index finger on the glass table and knocked, "No need, I'll buy them." He picked up the paper on the side and said, "Send them to this address."

"Alright."

Haiden was about to go out with the bag when he remembered something. He turned around and said, "Send a congratulatory card. Just write 'Happy New Year' on it. No need to sign my name."

"Okay," the shopping guide responded.

Members of the Alberton family gathered together to celebrate for a week every New Year. Haiden used to be at home and felt that every day was like New Year. When he grew up and worked, he became very busy. He wished he could go back home and celebrate the New Year every day.

It was rare for Haiden to stay at home for a few more days during the New Year holiday.

Jaquan and Emma were not anxious about his marriage at all. However, Deon and Bernice were anxious every day. They were afraid that Haiden would not be able to find a girlfriend.

Billionaire's Reborn Baby novel Chapter 1141

After dinner, Bernice sat next to Haiden and asked, "Stony, have you contacted the girl I introduced to you?"

Haiden shook his head and answered, "No! I've been quite busy lately."

"I'll ask your uncles to help you. Find some time to meet with girls. Have a look at those girls!" Bernice said. She then took out her presbyopic glasses and opened her phone to show him hundreds of photos of socialites.

Haiden was speechless.

After chatting with Bernice for a while, it was evening. He came out of the Alberton's and went to the company.

Haiden liked to stay in the company until he finished all the work. He enjoyed watching the streets crowded with people and vehicles as the night fell and the lights on.

He could feel a sense of security by watching what was happening outside.

The phone on his desk suddenly rang. Haiden picked up the phone after glancing at it and said, "Happy New Year! Mr. Frey!"

Bruno was 54 years old, but he was still young at heart. When he cooperated with Deon, he called Deon "big brother!" When he started to cooperate with Haiden, he called Haiden "little brother!" Haiden couldn't find a proper term for Bruno, so he called him "Mr. Frey" to show his respect.

"Did I disturb your happy time with your family?" Bruno asked.

"No! No! No!" Haiden answered. He then took a few steps forward and looked outside through the French window in his office. "I should have called you and said 'Happy New Year!'" Haiden said.

"Don't say so! That is so impersonal! Do you have free time? Come out and have a drink with me! It was my fault to have lost the goods last time. I should apologize to you face to face. Would you give me a chance to say sorry to you?" Bruno asked.

Haiden smiled and said, "Oh! Forget it! It's over now! If you want to have a drink with me, I'm free all the time."

"No date tonight?" Bruno asked.

"No!" Haiden answered.

Bruno laughed and said, "My little brother! You are still single, aren't you?"

Haiden chuckled and said, "Why don't you introduce a good woman to me?"

"Alright! I'll keep an eye out for that," Bruno said. He then told Haiden an address and said, "I'll wait for you there."

Haiden entered a private room only to find that Valery was also there.

The weird thing was that Andrew was not there.

"Have a seat!" Bruno said. Speaking of the missing goods, he first thanked Haiden for not making a fuss and even finding the goods. Bruno had three glasses of wine as he kept talking to them.

Valery and Haiden tried to stop him from drinking more wine, but neither could make it.

Bruno was a straightforward person. He drank six glasses of wine in a row and praised Haiden for being so mature at such a young age. Unlike his lazy son, who knew nothing but flirting with girls.

Haiden secretly glimpsed at Valery.

Haiden was smoking when Andrew came out of the private room.

"How about your mother? Does she feel better now?" Haiden asked.

"She is fine!" Andrew answered. As he lowered his head to light a cigarette, an idea came to him, so he suddenly laughed and said, "What's wrong with you? Why did you ask me to come out with you? Since when you started to care about my mother's health condition?"

"Do you know that Valery likes you?" Haiden asked as he turned to look at Andrew.

The smile gradually disappeared from Andrew's face. "Did she tell you that?" Andrew asked.

"It looks like you already knew that. Why do you always embarrass Valery?" Haiden asked. Haiden could tell from Andrew's expression that Andrew had already known Valery's feelings for him, but Haiden did not understand why he kept embarrassing her.

"Well, I didn't force her to like me," Andrew said. He exhaled a billow of white smoke, stared at Haiden, and asked, "No way! Did you ask me out to tell me that she liked me?"

Haiden turned to face him and asked, "Valery is a capable woman. I want her to be my assistant. Do you agree?"

Andrew looked at him with a severe look.

After a long time, Andrew suddenly laughed and said, "Is that all you want? Of course! Anyway, she could not help much with my work. She mainly deals with my personal affairs."

Haiden didn't say anything else. Before entering the private room, he patted Andrew on the shoulder and said, "I hope you will never regret it!"

Andrew snuffed out the cigarette and suddenly laughed as if he had heard a joke. "What? That's impossible in my entire life!" Andrew said.

The next day, Valery went to Haiden's office for her first day of work.

She was dressed in a black professional suit. Her hair was tied up and she had light makeup on her face. The color of her lipstick was very light. It seemed that she had not applied it, but she looked very professional.

Haiden took out the contract and showed it to her. "The trial period will be waived for you. Even if you join today, Gerald will hand over his position to you later. He will tell you what you should do. The salary is in the contract. If you have any questions, you can ask after reading the contract."

Valery took the contract, sat on the sofa, and looked at it carefully.

Haiden picked up the tea on the table, took a sip, then looked at her and said, "I thought you would not agree."

Valery took out a pen and signed the contract. Then, she looked up at Haiden and said, "Mr. Cox thinks highly of me." When she got up, she looked straight into Haiden's eyes. "Aren't you worried about employing me? Aren't you afraid that I will cooperate with others and destroy your Alberton family's business?"

Haiden took the contract that she had signed and turned to the last page. He opened it and showed it to her, "With my understanding of you, at least you will be absolutely loyal to me during your period of work."

On the last page, the contract deadline was three years.

Valery agreed to this comment.

Gerald came in quickly and took her down. He first took her to deal with the employment procedures and then handed over the daily work of the assistant to her.

During the meeting in the afternoon, Valery took over Gerald's position and sat next to Haiden, in charge of sorting out the documents and PowerPoint that he needed during the meeting.

Deon first gave Haiden three assistants. Later, Haiden felt that he didn't need too many assistants and transferred the other two to do civilian jobs.

Gerald stayed for a long time. Compared to other male assistants, he was more efficient. Haiden was probably used to him. In the afternoon, he asked him to pour tea several times in the office. He looked up and saw Valery.

"Where is Gerald?" Haiden asked.

"He's outside. He's making the form." Valery poured the tea for him before answering.

"What form?" Haiden opened his email and did not see what task he had assigned to him.

Valery replied with a straight face, "Regarding your preferences, as well as the forbidden zone, to prevent me from accidentally making you angry in the future."

Haiden really didn't know what other forbidden zone he had. He thought about it and didn't take it to heart. "Alright, you can get off work when the time comes."

Valery left the room.

Haiden was busy until six o'clock in the evening, and the others got off work at five-thirty on time. The women who arrived early had already sent a message in the group chat to report that they were safe.

Valery was speechless.

"There are too many people who have a crush on the boss, but he doesn't do office romance, so I'll give you a reminder." He said secretly. "He was hurt before, and he hasn't had a girlfriend for several years."

"Hurt?"

"This is a secret. I can't say it. You just need to know in your heart."

Valery took out her notebook. She liked to memorize the work content of the next day one day in advance. In the past few years, she had always been an assistant. Although she was called an assistant, she was actually just like an errand boy. Andrew was annoyed to let men follow him and called her to be an assistant.

She thought that he was finally interested in getting into the company. Unexpectedly, he had been wandering around outside for a few years and refused to get into the company.

Valery had imagined her future. Andrew was busy in the office, and she helped him sort out the documents. The two of them got off work together and walked home together. When they got home, she cooked and he watched TV on the sofa. The lively sounds and the fragrant food formed a happy picture.

Imagination was just imagination.

She wrote down the first line of words under her pen, "Love problems. Being hurt by a woman."

Billionaire's Reborn Baby novel Chapter 1143

Valery had received almost all the other information in a day. She planned to take the analysis of Haiden back home to study. When she looked up at the time, she found that it was already 6:30 in the evening.

She confirmed the information in the chatting group and found out that all the female employees had already arrived home.

Just as she was about to pack her things and go home, she suddenly recalled something she read in Gerald's form -- the boss would always be the last to leave.

She thought for a while and took out her phone to order some food.

Haiden was skimming through the scheme that had already been modified eleven times by the planning department. The entire department was in a state of fatigue during the meeting. However, Haiden wasn't content with the new scheme. As he was about to let the planning department do it again, he changed his mind after noticing there might be an hour left when he finished his work.

He planned to spend that one hour altering the scheme.

Someone knocked on the door of his office. He didn't even raise his head and said, "Come in!"

"Mr. Cox, it's time to eat something!" Valery said. She came into his office with a plate of food and placed it on the coffee table.

Noticing that Valery had yet to leave, Haiden looked up at her and asked, "Why are you still here?"

"I'm waiting for you to get off work!" Valery said. She then looked up at Haiden and added, "I don't know what you like, so I ordered some light dishes."

"Is that porridge?" Haiden asked as he stopped his work and stood up.

"Do you like porridge?" Valery asked.

Haiden smiled but said nothing. Valery then remembered she had proposed to have some porridge with him last time when he was sick.

"Where is your dinner?" Haiden asked after seeing there was only a spoon on the table.

"Mine is on my desk!" Valery answered. She handed the spoon to Haiden and then stood up. "Call me when you finish it!" Valery said.

"Let's eat together!" Haiden said as he went to the bathroom to wash his hands.

Valery didn't refuse it. She went outside, took her porridge to his office, and sat on the sofa to eat with him. The dishes she ordered were indeed light.

"You go back home first! I will work late in the night to finish all the work today," Haiden said after the meal.

"There's no rule for the assistant to leave earlier than the boss!" Valery said. She cleaned up the coffee table and offered Haiden another cup of tea. Then she sat at her desk and began to prepare for the work the following day.

At eleven o'clock in the evening, Haiden and Valery left the company together.

In the past, Gerald also worked with him in the evening. Later on, Haiden felt that there was no need to waste his time since there was nothing to tell him to do, so he asked him to get off work early. Since then, he often worked at night alone.

She fled to Haiden's camp.

Valery was highly competent.

Andrew must know that.

Haiden still couldn't understand why Andrew refused a loyal girl who had grown up with him since she was young.

Haiden had a bad dream that night. In his nightmare, he returned to the day he got kidnapped. He saw Valery desperately protecting her young master as if she was protecting her children.

Valery's face in that dream looked the same as she promised him to do her best.

Haiden woke up suddenly.

The alarm went off. Haiden turned off the alarm clock, washed up, and ran to the company.

Unexpectedly, Valery arrived earlier than him. He saw a cup of tea on his coffee table as Valery was cleaning up his desk. Seeing Haiden, Valery gave him a standard and professional smile. "Good morning! Mr. Cox!" Valery greeted.

"Good morning!" Haiden said with a smile.

Billionaire's Reborn Baby novel Chapter 1144

Valery had said those words last night and Valery had had that dream last night. All these made Haiden feel that he could no longer treat Valery like before.

It was soon Valentine's Day after the year.

Haiden asked the flower shop to send a bunch of flowers to all the women in the company early in the morning as a Reward.

He did not forget the two at home. Then, he sent a big red packet to Bart on WeChat. After finishing everything, he asked Valery, "What's the next schedule?"

"You should go to the factory at three in the afternoon and go on a blind date tonight."

"What at night?" Haiden raised his eyes and looked over.

Valery picked up her phone and carefully checked the schedule. "That's right. It will be a blind date at night. Yesterday, I forgot to remind you in advance, but you are also dressed very formally today. You don't need to change clothes."

Haiden probably guessed that Deon had arranged it for him privately and did not say much. After asking for the address and time, he began to busy himself with his things.

When it was almost six o'clock, Valery reminded him. Only then did Haiden turn off the computer, pick up the car key and walk out.

At 7:10, Valery heard movement from the elevator. She looked up and saw Haiden coming out.

"You didn't go on a blind date?" she asked, looking at the time in surprise.

"I went." Haiden took off his suit jacket, "I came back after dinner. Have you eaten?"

Valery felt that his blind date seemed to be different from what she understood, "You came back after eating? Not going to watch a movie? Not going to date?"

"I still have some things to deal with," Haiden said as he entered the office.

"Mr. Cox." "You won't be able to make a girlfriend in the future," Valery stopped him.

As soon as she finished speaking, she realized that her words might hurt Haiden.

Haiden had been hurt by a woman. So he found an excuse to go back from the blind date.

Haiden didn't mind. "Go back early after you're done with your work."

The door to the office closed.

Valery stood outside and thought for a moment, then went back to work.

Haiden's vision was unique. Not to mention the complexity of the content that Gerald handed over in the past few days, just the content alone was enough for a normal person to digest for a month. However, Gerald asked her to completely finish it in three days, because these were all used in the next few days. Valery naturally paid full attention to it. When she finished absorbing it all, she discovered that Gerald's work content was very heavy every day. Because Haiden had a lot of work to do, she had to understand all the industries and departments of the Alberton family in detail. She could also accurately report it to Haiden with concise words. She also had to pay attention to large numbers at all times to keep up with Haiden's pace.

To sum it up, it was one sentence - when Mr. Cox was improving, the assistant could not hold back and had to improve before Mr. Cox.

He knew that Valery didn't love these things, so he knew that she didn't buy them, so he asked, "Who gave them to you?"

Valery gave him a subtle look.

Andrew asked, "What's wrong?"

"Nothing." Valery would open this jewelry box every night to take a look. She thought that this was a New Year's gift for her. On the same day, Andrew also gave her a red envelope and did not mention the earring at all. And she wore this earring that night, he did not seem to care.

It turned out that it wasn't him who sent it.

No wonder...

Valery suddenly lost her strength. She took the towel off her forehead and said to Andrew, "I'm tired. I want to sleep for a while."

Andrew was a little confused. "Then you should rest. I'll take a few days off from Mr. Cox. You should rest well."

"Mr. Cox has already given me two days off." Valery lay on the bed and closed her eyes.

Andrew glanced at her and without saying anything, he turned and walked out.

He could hear the implication in Valery's words - she was now Haiden's employee and was not under his control.

Billionaire's Reborn Baby novel Chapter 1145

The next day, Valery went back to work.

When Haiden saw her, he only asked, "Are you alright?"

Valery nodded. "Yes, I'm alright."

After Haiden finished reading the documents on the table, he took out a pen and signed the documents. He handed the documents to Valery and said, "There's nothing to do these two days. I have to go out for a while."

You can stay in the company. If you are still ill, you can go back and rest."

"Go out?" Valery flipped through the schedule and didn't see his plan for going out.

"Yes, to attend the classmate's wedding."

Valery nodded and carried the documents out.

When Valery arrived at the tea room to drink tea, Gerald stopped her and said, "Big news!"

Valery was stunned.

Gerald looked at her seriously. "It is a big event!"

A few minutes later, Valery could not help but ask in surprise, "You said that Mr. Haiden will go to attend the wedding of his ex-girlfriend?"

"Yes, that bitch. No, his ex-girlfriend specially sent him an invitation. It's disgusting! They've already broken up, and she still wants to disgust our boss?" Gerald was furious.

"You mean his ex-girlfriend is annoying?" Although Gerald had said that Haiden had been hurt, it did not seem like there was any harm between men and women. It was just they loved each other or they didn't love each other anymore.

"How annoying!" Gerald really couldn't help but tell Valery that Haiden's ex-girlfriend used to cheat on Haiden and she slept with a rich second-generation person. "Now you know what I mean, right? If Haiden goes alone, that woman might even think that Haiden is obsessed with her."

"Then what do you mean?" Valery roughly understood, but she was still unsure.

"You can go with Haiden. Since you are his assistant, you can act as his girlfriend when necessary. Anyway, you can do whatever you want to disgust his ex-girlfriend. Can you do it?" Gerald asked.

Valery thought for a moment.

Now it seemed that Valery didn't know Haiden well because she did not believe that there was a woman who had hurt him.

After working with Haiden for such a long time, Valery found that he was not close to women. He was not the kind of man who was easily tempted. Moreover, he treated women with extraordinary respect and care. He did not only treat the women in the company well. After going out, whether it was social activities or going to the factory to look at materials, he was always kind and gentle to the female employees.

After that night, Valery felt that Haiden was a hypocrite, but for so many days she felt that he respected women from the bottom of his heart.

Haiden was not pretending.

And Valery gradually felt the charm of Haiden in the recent days.

Valery had seen Andrew fighting with someone. His face was ferocious, and he expressed his anger directly. However, Haiden was different. He removed the joints and chin of the other party expressionlessly. His eyes were calm enough to make people feel scared.

After Valery came back, she dreamed of that scene several times. Haiden quietly turned his head, his face full of blood.

Valery had analyzed Haiden several times later and came to two conclusions. First, he was a hypocrite. Second, since he was from the Alberton family, he was used to it.

The next morning, Valery drove the car to the apartment Haiden lived in.

Haiden was stunned when he opened the car door. Valery was sitting in the driver's seat. She was wearing a lavender evening gown and a pure white fur coat with bright lipstick. The makeup on her face was exquisite.

Haiden was stunned for a moment because Valery was wearing a pair of jade earrings.

Valery called him, "Mr. Haiden?"

Haiden came back to his senses. He sat in the car and praised her, "You are very beautiful today."

"Thank you." Valery drove the car out.

"Have you had breakfast?" Haiden asked.

"I had the bread." Valery glanced at him while driving. Haiden was wearing a dark blue suit today. He was more rigorous than usual. He was expressionless. Perhaps he still cared about his ex-girlfriend? Valery did not dare to guess. She just asked, "What about you? Have you had breakfast?"

"Yes," Haiden answered faintly. He looked down and used his phone to check his email.

Every morning, various departments would report to Haiden. He had already finished the work he had to do today in advance last night, but he still habitually checked the email.

"A new batch of materials has arrived. They checked them last night. I have confirmed the email at noon. They can be processed at six o'clock today. When we come back, we should be able to see the finished products."

"Yes." Haiden nodded and stopped looking at the phone.

Billionaire's Reborn Baby novel Chapter 1146

Valery and Haiden were talking about business all the way. When they arrived at Heving City, Valery drove the car to the underground parking lot of the hotel. Just as she changed into high heels and got out of the car, she heard someone shouting Haiden's name in the distance.

"It really is you!" The man was a chubby young man. He had a beer belly at such a young age. His hair was combed and shiny. He ran from afar and held Haiden's shoulder. "It has been many years since we last met! You are getting more and more handsome!"

Haiden smiled and greeted him.

The oily man turned and saw Valery getting out of the car. He immediately stared straight at her. "Who is...?"

Haiden was about to introduce her as he saw Valery walk over, smiling and holding his arm.

Haiden said nothing.

"I know it, it's your wife!" The oily man let go of Haiden and said with a face full of envy, "I am envious of you. Not to mention that you are getting more and more handsome, you also found a beautiful girlfriend!"

Haiden glanced at Valery, then smiled at the oily man.

"Let's go, let's go up first." The oily man took the lead to go first.

Haiden turned and looked at Valery.

Valery smiled and looked at him.

In the end, Haiden did not say anything and walked in holding her hand.

The moment their hands clasped together, Valery's heart suddenly jumped. She looked at the back of the man in front of her and her vision began to blur. She could vaguely see the back of Andrew.

Until Haiden suddenly turned back and said, "Be careful of the steps."

Only then did Valery come to her senses. "Thank you."

"You will let them find out the truth." Haiden glanced at her. "You are too respectful to me. You don't need to call me Mr. Cox or say thank you to me. Couples don't do that."

Valery pursed her lips.

After entering the banquet hall, Haiden released her hand. Valery took the initiative to hold his arm. She watched him take out a red envelope and put it on the gift list. Finally, he took a glass of wine and walked to the center of the banquet hall, waiting quietly.

The bride came out very quickly. Valery had to admit that Mr. Cox's ex-girlfriend was indeed very beautiful. Moreover ... she boasted a very plump breast. The wedding dress outlined her curves and back, being very sexy.

Because Valery had been paying attention to the bride, it led that after the wedding, when the bride and groom came down together and walked in front of Haiden, Valery discovered that the groom was ugly and greasy.

She did not understand why the bride abandoned Mr. Cox and went to be with such an ugly man.

"You're here. Long time no see." The bride looked at Haiden.

"Yes." Haiden smiled.

"This... is?" The bride looked at Valery uncertainly. "Is she your girlfriend? She's very beautiful."

Valery smiled politely at the bride. "Thank you."

"Come, have a drink." The bride brought over a glass of wine and pretended to drink with Haiden.

Haiden was about to lower his head and drink when Valery took away the wine glass in his hand.

"He had a stomachache. He can't drink recently. I'll drink.

"I'll drink. Don't bully him."

Valery felt that her stomach was full of wine all the way to the bathroom. She sat on the toilet and patted her hot face. Just as she was about to get up, she heard the voices of several women chatting outside.

"Did you see Haiden?"

"I saw it. He's much more handsome than he was in university."

"He also took a very beautiful girlfriend here."

"Did you see Amy's expression? She must be regretting it very much now."

"She had cheated for money, and now she regrets it? What is done can't be undone."

"Haiden was poor back then, but he looked like that kind of man with potential. Look, how good is he now? I think that suit is not cheap."

"It might be rented."

"Impossible, I think the clothes of his girlfriend are very expensive."

"I think so. I don't know what kind of work he is working at now..."

On the way out of the bathroom, Valery kept thinking about why Haiden, who was in college, was a poor man full of potential. Wasn't he from the Alberton family?

Billionaire's Reborn Baby novel Chapter 1147

Why did Haiden's girlfriend break up with him because of money?

When Valery came out, she saw that Amy was talking to Haiden. Valery could tell that Amy still liked Haiden very much, but she eventually chose money.

"Didn't you bring me any gifts?" As Valery approached, she heard Amy ask.

"Sorry," Haiden smiled politely.

Valery walked over and hugged Haiden's arm drunkenly. "What are you talking about?"

"Are you drunk?" Haiden asked as he supported her.

Valery rubbed Haiden's arm and said with a drunken smile, "No."

Haiden froze slightly. He was not sure if Valery was acting or if she was really drunk.

"She seems to be drunk. Why don't you send her back first?" Amy was a little embarrassed.

The man with greasy hair heard the noise and ran over. "Haiden will leave so early? We still have activities at night. Why don't you send her to a room? We'll play for a while before you go back."

"Are you really drunk?" Haiden asked with his head lowered.

Valery wanted to laugh, but she held back and shouted in a daze with her eyes closed, "I want to sleep..."

Haiden told someone to get a room and then carried Valery to the elevator.

After Haiden carried Valery to the bed, he looked down at Valery and asked, "I'll ask you one last time. Are you really drunk?"

Valery seemed to have fallen asleep, not reacting at all.

Haiden took off her high heels for her and then took off her coat to let her lie down more comfortably. When he saw the jade rabbit earring beside her ear, he raised his hand but did not take it off.

Valery was drinking for Haiden. When she went to the bathroom, many men were asking where Haiden found such a cute and beautiful girlfriend.

When they were in university, they envied Haiden and did not know why he could find such a beautiful girl like Amy.

Compared to them, Haiden was just a little more handsome, but he was poor.

They were envious. They looked down on Haiden in private. They felt that he attracted women with his good look. Soon, his girlfriend would find out that he was poor and would immediately leave him like Amy.

They waited to laugh at Haiden.

When Haiden first entered the campus, he knew that he would face this problem, but he hoped that this would allow him to know the people around him. Later, he knew the students around him and his girlfriend.

Haiden covered Valery with the blanket, then closed the door and left.

As soon as the door closed, Valery, who was on the bed, opened her eyes. Then she took out the business card from her handbag, stared at the name on it, and whispered, "Eric?"

Haiden went back and sat with the group of people for a moment. All he had to do was to listen to these people brag about how they were so awesome before. Later, they failed to start a business and lost several million.

"Attend your wedding? Who the hell are you?" Jard sneered.

Eric was silent.

Fortunately, they had already walked out. There was no one beside them. Eric quickly asked, "Then why did they come over?"

"It is said that they are here to attend the wedding, but I don't know whose wedding they are attending."

"Is the news accurate?" Eric asked.

"You know about Cosmos Jewelry, right?" Jard stopped walking.

"I know. It's the Alberton family's business."

"They just received news that a person from the Alberton family is going to see the jewelry tomorrow. He is going to pick a necklace for his girlfriend." Jard said, "The boss of Cosmos Jewelry is ready to deliver the necklace personally."

The jewelry from Cosmos Jewelry was expensive. Ordinary people couldn't afford it at all. Eric got married today and only bought a diamond ring worth 500,000 yuan for Amy. The necklaces of Cosmos Jewelry were worth millions. And there were some pieces of jewelry worth tens of millions. However, ordinary people would not buy such an expensive necklace at all.

On the other hand, the people from the Alberton family were generous. The person from the Alberton family casually picked a necklace and gave it to his girlfriend, and the necklace was worth tens of millions. Eric felt an inexplicable fear in his heart. Their strength was too strong. He was worried that if he went over rashly, he would be looked down upon by them.

"But if we act rashly, will we disturb him?" Eric asked.

"I heard that he will only stay for one night and will go back tomorrow. We should meet him. It is okay if we can't cooperate. At least, we can make friends with him."

Billionaire's Reborn Baby novel Chapter 1148

After Jard finished speaking, he glanced at Eric and said, "Hurry up and clean yourself up."

"Alright." Eric hurried to the bathroom.

At the same time, Haiden got up from his seat and said that he wanted to go back. The man with oily hair said, "What are you going back for?"

The others advised, "Yeah, just stay here for a while."

Because Haiden was the poorest among them, they were very happy to show off their current achievements in front of Haiden. Even if they were just supervisors in a department, they had to show off in front of Haiden.

"Have you heard of the Alberton family?" The man with oily hair pulled Haiden and asked, "Hey, it seems to be in your city?"

Haiden nodded.

"Then you must know." When the man with oily hair said this, everyone was interested in it. They asked, "How much does the Alberton family have?"

Haiden smiled but remained silent.

The others immediately laughed, "Why are you asking Haiden? How could he know?"

Everyone laughed.

The man with oily hair asked Haiden, "How much do you earn each month now? Do you want to jump over to my company? By the way, what's your position?"

"Do everything," Haiden had never received a salary before, so he frowned, "My salary..."

The man with oily hair thought that Haiden's salary was so low that Haiden was a little embarrassed and did not want to say it out. So he patted Haiden on the shoulder, "Alright, it's fine. Everyone's salary was very low in the beginning. Take it easy. It will be higher in the future."

Haiden sipped his tea. "... OK."

Haiden took the excuse of going to the bathroom and successfully went out. Before he entered the elevator, he was seen by Gerry from a distance.

"Mr. Haiden." Gerry had only met Haiden at the annual meeting. He had met Haiden four times. He had a deep impression of Haiden. Because Haiden's footsteps were very light.

Haiden turned around and greeted Gerry. Then he saw that there were several salespeople from the jewelry shops behind him.

"I don't know what your girlfriend likes. So we took some of each." Gerry laughed.

Haiden was speechless. He looked at a tray that the guide was holding in her hands. The tray was covered with a layer of red cloth. Thinking of the word "girlfriend" and Valery who was in the room. Haiden could not help but frown.

Haiden opened the red cloth and took a look. All the necklaces were gorgeous. Haiden did not pick anything he liked. So he said, "I want a simple one."

"Yes, then I'll tell them to get some." Gerry quickly waved his hand at the guides.

"No, tomorrow will be fine too," Haiden said and entered the elevator.

Gerry called the guides out and met Eric and his father halfway.

"Hey, Mr. Gerry, have you sent the necklaces?" Jard hurriedly asked.

Haiden turned his head and saw Eric.

Jard smiled, "Hello, Mr. Haiden. This is my business card."

Jard poked Eric's arm and found that Eric was stunned. So Jard hit Eric hard, and Eric was directly knocked to the ground.

"He... is nervous." Jard smiled awkwardly and reached out to pull Eric up.

Haiden smiled, "Nothing."

Eric stared at Haiden in astonishment. "Mr... Mr. Haiden?"

Eric looked at Gerry in disbelief and asked, "Wasn't he from the Alberton family? How could his surname be Cox?"

Gerry was speechless. He did not expect Eric to be so stupid.

"My grandfather's surname is Alberton." Haiden didn't mind it and explained.

"Deon is your grandfather?" Eric stuttered.

"Yes." Haiden looked at Eric calmly.

Eric crumpled to the floor.

"What the hell is going on with you" After coming out, Jard yelled at Eric in exasperation. "Mr. Rich finally agreed to help yet what did you do? You were so disappointing. Is him that scary?"

Eric's face was still pale.

He squirmed his lips, unable to say anything.

Jard called Amy to take him away. Amy supported Eric and asked, "What's wrong?"

When Eric saw Amy, he panicked. "It's over. I stole his woman, Dad!" He threw himself in front of Jard. "Amy used to be his girlfriend, and she became my girl later. Do you think he will retaliate against me? Isn't that what the Albertons do? He is from the Alberton family. He will retaliate against me, right?"

"What did you say?" Jard asked in disbelief.

"The Albertons?" Amy didn't understand.

Eric grabbed her shoulders, "You lied to me! Haiden is from the Alberton family! Why didn't you tell me? You want me to die?"

"Which Alberton family? Who? Haiden?" Amy was stunned.

Jard understood. He looked at Amy and asked, "You dated Haiden before?"

Amy nodded hesitantly, although she felt embarrassed when her father-in-law asked her such a private question. She said, "Yes, I did in the past, but we have already..."

"So he came today to attend your wedding?" Jard interrupted.

Amy had a bad feeling. "What exactly happened?" she asked.

Jard pointed at Eric and said, "You know you did. You'll deal with this yourself."

Then Jard left.

Eric and Amy were both at a loss.

"What happened?" Amy asked.

"Haiden is an Alberton." Eric stared at her. "Don't you know? He is a member of the Alberton family. The great Alberton family! They can make a person disappear silently."

Amy's voice became hoarse. Her face was full of astonishment.

"You don't know?" Eric laughed, "You don't know? Well, that makes sense. You are a gold digger. You wouldn't break up with him if you knew he is so rich..."

"I am not!" Amy refuted weakly.

"You are not? Then what do you like about me?" Eric shouted, "Do you know how much the necklace Haiden just gave his girlfriend cost? Tens of millions! He is richer than me now! Go to him!"

They were arguing in the corridor of the hall. Soon, many guests were attracted. Some male students came overheard the argument. They were all shocked when they heard from Eric and Amy that Haiden was an Alberton.

The greasy man was the first person to doubt. He said disdainfully, "How is that possible?"

However, some people in the crowd believed it.

"The gown his girlfriend wore today costs 115,000."

"His girlfriend's earrings are from the Alberton store. They cost 390,000."

"The suit he is wearing today should be customized. Customized suits usually cost more than 100,000..."

"But the car he took today is only a hundred thousand." The greasy man was still unconvinced "His suit must have been rented. Or, his girlfriend must be rich. She bought everything."

After the group of people left, Valery lay on the bed, pretending that she was "dead".

Valery poked her head out and glanced at Haiden. Seeing no emotions on his face, she asked, "Are you angry?"

"What do you think?" Haiden looked up.

"I'm hungry, let's eat," Valery said as she removed the blanket and got off the bed.

Haiden removed the red cloth on the tray, "Do you want to wear it yourself or shall I help you?"

It was a necklace he had just chosen.

"You did choose. But I was just saying it." Valery looked at the necklace and said, "I'm not wearing it. I'll send it back to you when I get back tomorrow."

Haiden looked at her quietly and then said, "Sit."

Valery sat down obediently. Haiden picked up the necklace and stood behind her.

The necklace was very cold. The moment it touched her skin, she dodged. Her entire back was pressed against Haiden's chest. Haiden turned to her. He brushed away her hair and the necklace on her neck.

"Do you still like her?" Valery asked all of a sudden.

Haiden paused for a moment, adjusted the necklace for her, and then stood up, saying, "No."

"Then why didn't you date anyone else after breaking up with her?" Valery turned around and asked.

"I haven't met anyone I like." Haiden lowered his head slightly, looking straight into her eyes. "Valery, as my assistant, is it appropriate so many personal questions?"

He suddenly got too close and Valery subconsciously held her breath.

Haiden seemed to have discovered it and smiled slightly.

"Alright, I won't ask anymore." Valery stood up and let out a breath. Then she walked to the mirror. As she looked at it, she then turned back to ask, "Mr. Cox, is this necklace a gift for me, or will the bill be taken out from my salary?"

Haiden chuckled and picked up his coat and walked out, saying, "Let's go eat first."

Valery held his hand and went out for dinner. When she came back, she met a few male classmates of Haiden. When those people faced Haiden, their attitudes obviously changed.

They were respectful and polite, with a bit of flattery and fear.

Eric had left a long time ago. Only the bride, Amy, was left sitting alone in the lounge. When Amy heard that Haiden and his girlfriend had come out for dinner, she quickly made up and came out.

From a distance, she saw Haiden standing there with a straight posture, talking to the other students.

Amy should have found out long ago that ordinary people did not have this kind of temperament, but Haiden was like this since the time she first met him. He was calm and gentle.

Such a person was from the Alberton family.

Amy's footsteps were a little unsteady. Why didn't he tell her?

Why?

She wanted to know why!

When Amy walked up to Haiden, Amy's tears fell first before she could ask.

"Haiden..." Amy cried and asked, "Why? Tell me why?"

Haiden just handed her a tissue politely and then took Valery to the elevator.

Amy held the napkin and suddenly sat down on the ground and wailed.

Eric did not want her, and Haiden also would not.

After all these years, she had obtained nothing!

She didn't get anything... She could only watch the person she liked the most walk away with another woman.

After entering the elevator, Valery asked Haiden, "How are you feeling now?"

Haiden was expressionless.

Valery sent the results of the battle to Gerald. Gerald directly transferred 666 dollars to her and sent more than a dozen messages to praise her.

After arriving at the room, Valery went to take a bath. When she came out, she found that Haiden had taken a quilt and laid it on the ground.

They were now "lovers" and could only live in one room.

"I'll sleep on the ground." Valery walked over to take the quilt and started to put it away.

Haiden didn't stop her. After taking a shower, he laid down on the bed and started to rest.

Valery lay quietly on the bed for a moment and asked, "Mr. Cox, do you blame me for taking the liberty of making that decision today?"

"No," Haiden turned around toward the bed and said, "and just sleep then."

"If I make a mistake, I apologize. I'm sorry," Valery said.

Haiden looked at her for a while, then he suddenly got up. He titled to her to turn off the light, making Valery's breath stop at once.

"Good night," he said.

"Good night," Valery exhaled softly and said.

After returning, they became the leader and subordinate that worked together and got off work together.

Life was fulfilling and busy.

Valery felt that this place was very suitable for her and was too busy to think about anything else.

Valery took the food and followed him out. It was the first time they had gotten off work so early. The lights outside were on and the neon lights were flashing. The security guard at the door saw Haiden coming down and greeted him with a smile.

Haiden glanced at Valery. Valery understood him and quickly handed over the food in her hand, saying, "You've been tired today. I bought an extra portion of food. It's for you."

The security guard quickly thanked her.

Haiden drove Valery to a restaurant under the Alberton family, which mainly sold braised pork and fish.

When Haiden entered the door, both the waiter and the lobby manager greeted him in surprise. Haiden smiled faintly and said, "Today, I brought my friends to eat. The signature dishes are fine. For we two." Before taking his seat, Haiden told the waiter, "No green onions and coriander."

The waiter nodded.

Haiden thanked him.

Then, Haiden and Valery sat directly by the window, where they could feel the bustle in the hall.

"How do you know today is my birthday?" Valery asked after washing the forks.

"I've seen it when you entered the office." After Haiden checked the phone information, he put the phone aside.

The waiter served the dishes very quickly and directly brought over four signature dishes.

"So fast?" Valery asked in surprise.

"The signature dishes are prepared in advance," Haiden poured her a glass of water and said, "so try it and write an impression after eating."

Valery was speechless.

"Eat it. Just give me a suggestion after you finish eating."

"Is this also a job?" Valery lowered her head and had a taste.

"They asked me to have a taste before, but I've always been too busy," Haiden said. Then he ate some fish, saying, "Not bad, have a taste."
