"It tastes good. The meat is juicy but not greasy. It melts in the mouth and tastes very nice," Valery commented.

Haiden beckoned for the waiter to come over and then said to Valery, "Go on."

Valery said no more but enjoyed her food.

It was already nine o'clock when they finished their dinner. Haiden asked, "What do you usually do after you go back?"

"Prepare the work for tomorrow," Valery answered while opening her phone to check the memo.

"After you finished it, what do you do?"

"Watch the news." Valery thought for a moment and added, "After that, Go to sleep."

"What did you want to do on your birthday?" Haiden asked directly.

Only then did Valery realize this was what Haiden wanted to ask.

Every year on her birthday, Andrew would give her a gift, and then she would stay in her room and stare at the gift happily.

She had never gone out on that day.

"I don't know." Valery pressed her lips.

Haiden raised his eyebrows and asked, "What about we go back to the office and work overtime?"

Valery nodded, "Okay."

Haiden shook his head with a smile.

Then Haiden walked to his car. Valery followed him and reported, "We are going to have lunch with the managers from branches tomorrow. After that, there will be a video conference from abroad in the afternoon. I haven't sorted out the content of the conference yet."

Haiden stopped suddenly and turned around. Valery who had no time to react hit Haiden's chest directly.

Valery rubbed her forehead.

She took a slight step back.

Haiden gazed at Valery and said calmly, "Valery, today is your birthday. You don't need to worry about your work. You can do whatever you want."

"Then I'll go home and rest." Valery got in the car and put her phone into her bag. Suddenly, she saw two tickets in her bag. "Mr. Cox, do you want to watch a movie?"

Haiden sat in the driver's seat and was about to fasten his seat belt. He paused and asked, "Are you asking me out to watch a movie?"

"You gave me the tickets, didn't you?" said Valery.

"Then let's go to the cinema," said Haiden as he drove out.

Valery felt that Haiden acted a little strange, but couldn't tell the reason.

They arrived at the cinema soon. The movie just started. When they entered the dark room, they were recognized quickly by the staff of the company who also chose the same film.

And they were all couples.

While watching the movie, a group of people started to discuss it on WeChat as follows.

[It can't be Haiden and Valery?]

[Yes, it is!]

[My God!]

[Are they dating? Are they in a relationship?]

[Maybe.]

[I'm so jealous of Valery.]

[Me too.]

After they sent the messages, they found that Valery was also in this chat group, but it was too late to recall the messages. Valery's mobile phone vibrated. She clicked it to check the messages and looked around the room quickly after she read them. Sure enough, there were many colleges sitting around her.

He stood in front of Valery, looking at her frustrated face and saying, "I'm leaving."

Then he opened the door and walked out.

Valery thought to herself, 'It's bitter.'

At midnight, being drunk, Valery called Andrew, "Why? I don't understand? Don't you like me? Why can you sleep with other women but not with me?"

It was not Andrew but Haiden.

She mumbled, "I'm sorry..."

"I'm sorry..." She sobbed and felt sad.

The other side paused for a moment and said, "Valery, open the door."

When Valery opened the door with watery eyes, she found that Haiden was standing at the door.

For those days, Valery had been trying to be a tough and rational person. However, she collapsed totally when she saw Andrew whom she had loved for over ten years.

She had been following behind him for so long, hoping he would turn back and see her one day.

Whenever she wanted to give up, he would suddenly appear in front of her and give her a surprising gift.

As long as he was a little nice to her, she would believe there was a chance between them.

"Am I wrong? You like me, right? Why? Why do you pretend you don't like me?" Valery said, tears streaming down her face.

She asked again and again, "Why? Tell me."

Haiden strode in, held Valery's chin, and pressed his lips to hers.

Gerald felt a strange atmosphere between Haiden and Valery.

All the employees in the company saw them watch a movie together that night. The following day, Valery didn't come to work, and Haiden sat alone in the office and worked until midnight.

However, Valery looked the same as always when she came back to work.

Gerald asked her if something had happened that night, and she replied to him with only one word "Nothing!"

Gerald was sure something must have happened that night, but he couldn't get any information from Valery. Since he dared not to ask Haiden, he could only secretly make the deduction.

Haiden and Valery still worked together in tacit understanding. They went to the factory to see the latest progress. Valery still helped him drink the wine when they went out to socialize and worked overtime at night to wait for Haiden to get off work together.

Neither of them mentioned what happened that night as if nothing had changed between them.

Haiden was still Valery's boss, and Valery was still Haiden's assistant. However, Valery was no longer at ease when facing him. Instead, she even respected him more with the utmost seriousness.

On Haiden's birthday, the Alberton family specially held a party for him in a hotel and invited many relatives and friends.

Bart even brought her boyfriend to give Haiden a birthday present.

Deon was a little dissatisfied with Bart's boyfriend, but Bart loved her boyfriend so much. People said Bart took the initiative to pursue him. When Deon heard that, he thought of Emma. He secretly wondered, 'Like mother, like daughter!'

When Haiden appeared, Deon was still looking for his girlfriend.

Haiden briefly explained what had happened in Heving City to Deon, who waved his hand and said, "It doesn't matter! There are many pretty girls at your birthday party today. Tell me if you have a crush on someone."

Haiden was speechless.

Kaden and Levin brought their friends to the party. When they arrived, the party immediately became lively. Kaden was gregarious. He had just turned eighteen, the legal age to drink alcohol in that country, so he seized the chance and plied Haiden with wine.

Bart couldn't tolerate Kaden anymore and wanted to stop him. Kaden slammed the bottle of wine on the table and said, "Why? Are you looking down on your brother?"

"Okay! Don't blame me for not stopping you if you guys fight with each other after getting drunk!" Bart said with a shrug.

After all, they all knew Bart might hit others when she got drunk. However, no one had seen what Haiden looked like when he was drunk.

Kaden's goal was to get Haiden drunk. Haiden often appeared as a reliable big brother with an air of arrogance, and he was gentle and polite when talking to others. Therefore, Kaden often wondered if Haiden would go crazy after getting drunk.

Although Haiden knew what those brats were plotting, he did not refuse their toasts. He was only a little annoyed.

"Mr. Cox, I'm sorry... I don't love you!" Valery would often dream of Valery looking at him with tears in her eyes every few nights.

He would wake up abruptly every time he had that dream.

Haiden already knew her answer, but he didn't want to give up.

Haiden raised his head and chugged down another glass of wine.

Haiden glanced at Andrew and said with a sour smile, "Thank you, bro!"

As Haiden reached out to take the gift, Andrew noticed his awful look and asked, "Are you drunk?"

"Yes! I'm!" Haiden answered as he took the gift and walked out.

Valery followed Haiden out after whispering something to Andrew.

Valery said to Haiden, "Where are you going? I'll send you there."

"Valery!" Haiden muttered in a low voice.

Valery approached him and saw his eyes turn red. Haiden said in a hoarse voice, "Don't get too close to me when I'm drunk!"

Valery was stunned.

Before Valery could figure out his meaning, Haiden had already walked to the road to hail a taxi.

Observing his legs shaking, Valery was afraid that he would get hit by a car. She ran over and held his arm. "Mr. Cox, I'll drive you home! Wait here!"

After saying that, she stuffed her bag into Haiden's arms and turned to get her car.

Billionaire's Reborn Baby novel Chapter 1153

Haiden stood where he was and looked at her back. After a while, he looked up and saw Andrew standing at the door.

Haiden didn't know when Andrew stood there and began to watch.

Andrew noticed Haiden's gaze and smiled at Haiden as he turned around and entered the house.

After getting into the car, Haiden closed his eyes. Valery thought Haiden was uncomfortable, so she drove the car very slowly.

She did not know that Haiden made a decision on the way.

Once the car stopped, Valery got off and helped Haiden into the house.

As soon as they walked in, Haiden pressed Valery against the door and then lowered his head to kiss her.

Valery struggled, but she failed.

Haiden's hand had already reached in.

"Mr. Cox..." Valery's heart beat faster and faster.

Haiden held her tightly. The two stayed very close, almost embedded together. Haiden kept kissing the girl. Their lips and tongues intertwined, inseparable.

Valery had never been kissed like this before.

Her breathing, her heartbeat, and her every cell was shaking.

She had once imagined that Andrew would treat her like this, tenderly and roughly, kneading her into his chest and kissing her forcefully.

But she never thought that the person who really brought her to feel all of this was Haiden.

She suddenly remembered what happened the last time she was drunk. Haiden kissed her and asked, "Haven't you ever kissed?"

Haiden's tone was ordinary as if he was asking Valery if she could cook.

Then he held her chin, forcing her to look up and kiss her while guiding her, "Open your mouth..."

Valery suddenly could not tell if she was drunk or Haiden was drunk.

Her legs began to feel weak.

"Valery." She heard Haiden's voice. The voice was a little hoarse. "I told you before, at this time...don't get too close to me. I have already endured it for a long time."

...

Andrew waited in front of Valery's house until twelve o'clock, but he still didn't see Valery in the end.

After finishing his third cigarette, he called Valery.

No one answered the phone. He then repeated it two more times.

On the fourth time, he dialed Haiden.

"I just couldn't understand why this girl always tries her best to get such good scores. Wait! Has she been delusional about marrying Andrew? How ridiculous!"

"It's up to her in the future. If she gets into a good university and knows how to repay kindness, then she could work for you, Andrew."

"I won't enter the company." Andrew heard his voice, "If I refuse to enter the company, then can Valery be my girlfriend?"

"Brat, have you lost your mind?"

He did not remember what he had promised. He only knew that he seemed to have lost something very precious.

Valery didn't get back to her residence for two days, and Andrew had waited for her for two whole nights. She didn't show up until the third day.

"Did you sleep with him?" Andrew asked as he looked at the hickey on Valery's neck.

Valery stared at him and answered, "Yes, so what?"

Andrew extinguished the cigarette in his hand, then grabbed Valery's collar. His entire face was becoming sinister. He said, "Valery, I asked you to be his assistant, not his bedmate!"

"Mr. Frey." Valery looked at him and replied. She was extremely calm. "Yes or no, you know it in your heart! You are the one who sent me to him. You should have thought of this day!"

Billionaire's Reborn Baby novel Chapter 1154

Andrew was completely speechless.

Valery turned to open the door. Andrew questioned her with a hoarse voice behind her, "Didn't you say that you liked me all the time? Is your love so cheap?" "You sleep with him not long after you meet him! Do you know him well? Will he give you status? Will he love you? He just wants to sleep with you!"

"Andrew, there is something different between you and him." Valery turned.

Andrew's eyes were red and did not ask anything, waiting for her to say.

"He told me that he likes me." Valery looked at Andrew and revealed a sad smile. "Unlike you, you like me and pretend that you don't like me."

After saying these words, Valery opened the door, entered the room and closed the door again.

Andrew looked at the door and he suddenly slammed the door heavily, "Open the door! He likes you, I know, what about you? Don't you like me? How can you be with him if you like me, Valery? open the door!" "You were cheated by him! He won't give you anything! You won't get anything from him!"

Valery opened the door after a long time, carrying a box in her hand.

Andrew was stunned. "Where are you going?"

"Make a move." Valery locked the door.

"Where are you moving to?" Andrew had already guessed the answer, but he still asked stubbornly.

"Andrew. Take care." Valery stepped forward and hugged him.

Andrew suddenly hugged her tightly. "Valery, you can't go with him."

He spoke with a childish tone, and there was a faint trace of pitiful grievance in his voice.

Valery remembered that she received a love letter from someone else at school. It was discovered by him as soon as she returned home. He tore it up in front of her. He glared at her fiercely and said, "Valery, you can't fall in love with others."

At that time, she thought that she would accompany this person for a long, long time.

"Andrew..." "I've been in love with you for a long time. I'm a little tired. Let me take a break." Valery's eyes were slightly moist.

Andrew lost all of his strength when hearing this.

He watched Valery drag her suitcase downstairs.

He heard Haiden's voice from downstairs, "I'll do it."

"It's not heavy." Valery said.

"I want to carry it for you." Haiden took the suitcase and smiled.

Andrew remembered that he used to walk with Valery. He always asked Valery to carry his school bag for him. As he walked foremost, he urged her. "You're so slow! Idiot."

"It's very heavy," Valery frowned. "Why don't you carry it yourself?"

Andrew took over their bags. "They are not heavy at all!"

Valery was speechless.

"I haven't let you sleep on the ground for the past two days." She retorted in a low voice.

Speaking of this kind of topic made her a little uncomfortable.

Haiden drove the car to the door. When he stopped, he couldn't help but lean over and kiss her.

When Haiden released her, her eyes were misty and extremely seductive, like a sparkling lake.

"Valery."

"Yes?"

"Ask for leave from the company." He pulled off his tie.

"What?" She was confused.

"I can't go today." "You can't go either," he added.

Valery, "..."

Billionaire's Reborn Baby novel Chapter 1155

It was twenty days after Pablo and Timothy started to tour the world according to the route.

They first stayed in places such as Malaysia and Singapore for a long time, enjoying the sunshine and sea breeze. The ultraviolet was very strong, so they had to apply sunscreen to prevent their faces from being sunburned.

They weren't able to speak foreign languages, but they tried to pick it up a little. Fortunately, there were many countrymen in Malaysia and most of them spoke Chinese. However, they often met foreigners when shopping, so they had to learn some simple words.

Pablo knew more foreign languages than Timothy, but Timothy had a stronger learning ability. As the two continued their journey, they also learned a foreign language.

And they brought themselves with a bird. Oh, it was exactly an eagle.

They were very ostentatious in physical outlooks. One had white hair, and a handsome face, while the other one had brown hair, a beautiful face, and an adult eagle passing by above their heads from time to time.

The two traveled smoothly at first. They went to the United Kingdom. Afterward, they left London for Suez. After staying for a few days, they went from Cenis Pass to Brindisi either by train or ship. Every time they arrived at the station, the first thing they did was to check if the eagle in the sky was still there.

Traveling also made them tired. Sometimes, they would stay for more than half a month. Whenever they found that they almost ran out of money, Vincent would ask his assistant to transfer the money to them in time.

Timothy was rather doubtful if he had installed a monitor on Pablo.

The place where they stayed the longest was Norway. This was a place where polar day and polar night often took place. Half a year was all day and half a year was all night.

Pablo felt that this place was interesting. When they arrived, it was during the daytime. He had to wait until the polar night to see what it felt like to live in a place of the polar night.

His dream finally came true.

The two of them and the eagle enjoyed an entire month of the polar night. In the end, Pablo could not take it anymore. "No wonder this place has a high suicide rate when polar nights come. Let's go and leave this place. If we continue to stay here, I will also be depressed."

They started to travel again.

They would stay in places that they thought to be interesting for two to three months. In places that were not attractive to them, they would only stay for less than a week. Both of them were strong and healthy, so they didn't get sick. They only had food, drinks, and fun along the way, as well as feeding eagles.

From time to time, they would take photos and send them to Vincent. Of course, Timothy would take photos alone, while Pablo indulged in enjoyment.

Occasionally, on the beach, because of his ostentatious white hair, many foreign girls came to strike up a conversation with him. Unfortunately, they spoke different languages. The girls spoke either French or Italian or Polish. Pablo was too lazy to learn so many languages, so he could only reluctantly watch the girls leave.

At first, Timothy was angry at him for being so coquettish. Later, there were more men who tried to hit on her. She originally wanted to refuse, but when she saw Pablo's sullen face, she deliberately did not refuse them. She whispered to these men in English and started a conversation. The men asked her where she came from, how old she was, and whether she had a boyfriend or not.

After chatting for a long time, the eagle in the sky was unhappy. It swooped down and flapped its wings to drive the men away. Only then did Timothy hug the eagle and laugh. "Are you jealous?"

That night, the eagle stayed with Timothy.

Later, Pablo found out that whenever he "quarreled" with Timothy, the eagle would choose to stay with her, as if he was the wrong party, which made him very angry.

In addition to different places they had visited along the road, they also encountered different people and anecdotes.

Some divorced partners traveled together because they had been delaying the honeymoon they often talked about since marriage. Therefore, they decided to travel the next day of their divorce.

It sounded a bit inconceivable, but when they thought about it, it was bitter-sweet.

Some were friends; some were secretly in love; some were still in pursuit of their lovers. Each of them had a purpose of rushing on a journey. Some wishes were very simple and some were difficult to achieve, but this was more meaningful, right?

But when others asked about the relationship between Pablo and Timothy, Timothy said frankly, "I'm pursuing him."

The people in the car laughed, which made Pablo blush.

Billionaire's Reborn Baby novel Chapter 1156

Timothy was generous and frank. He did everything by himself. But Pablo liked to put on airs. He was used to being served. Timothy was taking care of Pablo in the beginning. Later, Pablo learned from other gentlemen on the way. He gradually learned to take care of Timothy. When Timothy was asleep, Pablo would secretly tuck her in.

Before Timothy woke up, Pablo would prepare water for her and then pretend to be asleep.

After Timothy woke up, Pablo would quietly observe her reaction.

His behavior was very childish. Before Timothy could say anything, someone next door told her what Pablo had done. Pablo was so embarrassed that he wished he could disappear.

Pablo and Timothy crossed the Indian Ocean, the Arabian Sea and arrived at Bombay. They were surrounded by Indians, but they couldn't speak the language. Pablo and Timothy only stayed in Bombay for one night. The next day, Pablo and Timothy set off again. They passed by the Malacca Strait and the Bay of Bengal. After a detour, they arrived in Hong Kong and stayed there for a long time.

According to Timothy, her dialect was quite interesting. Instead of saying "I like you", they would say "you hit my fancy" to express love.

Timothy asked Pablo to learn from her, but Pablo refused. So Timothy kept whispering to his ear, "You hit my fancy."

Pablo didn't respond, and Timothy kept saying it. Finally, Pablo gave up, "Got it."

"Can you say it once?" Timothy came closer and asked.

Pablo looked at her face and said, "I forget it."

After staying in Hong Kong for a few months, Pablo and Timothy flew to the tropical before winter came.

They had a sudden urge to go on an adventure in Anazon.

Anazon was said to be the largest tropical rainforest in the world. There were thick forests and many types of animals and plants in Anazon. It was known as "the world of animals and plants".

Pablo and Timothy were well prepared for this expedition. They had prepared sleeping bags, rain shoes, flashlights, ropes, daggers, and tinder. Afraid that the tinder would get wet and couldn't strike sparks, they bought the ancient kind of tinder. It was put in a sealed bamboo tube and could easily strike a light.

After Pablo and Timothy packed up, they immediately set off. When Pablo and Timothy arrived, they realized that they seemed to have forgotten something important.

Food.

They brought everything but food.

Timothy wanted to catch fish from the river. Pablo looked at the deep river and threw a few stones into it. Pablo wanted to throw more things into the river when he saw a two-meter-long crocodile bobbing up with its mouth wide open. It wanted to know what was going on. A moment later, the crocodile slowly disappeared.

Pablo was speechless.

"We can't eat it, right?" he asked Timothy.

Timothy was puzzled. "You want to eat this? I might not be able to beat it."

Their conversation was very strange.

After that, Timothy and Pablo looked up at the eagle as if asking for its opinion.

Billionsaire's Reborn Baby novel Chapter 1157

Pablo felt that what Timothy said was reasonable, so they began to paint each other's faces. As they did not have any tools, they used the fruits with color.

It had been more than half a month since they took a shower, and it was the first time they looked at each other's faces so closely.

"You look ugly," Timothy said after a while.

Pablo found it unbelievable.

He sneered, "You are the same as me. Your face is dirty."

"I was just joking," Timothy said.

Pablo didn't know how to reply.

"I mean it," he said as he colored Timothy's face green with a fruit.

Timothy fell silent.

The eagle above her head let out a long howl as if it was laughing.

Pablo chuckled.

As Timothy kept staring at Pablo, the latter had no way but to purse his lips and said, "Alright, you are pretty."

Timothy applied mud on Pablo's face with a blank face.

Pablo didn't say anything else.

They entered the forest at night. Unfortunately, they fell into a swamp.

Since Timothy got stuck in it by accident, Pablo tried to save her. However, he failed, and both of them were in danger.

"Don't move. The more you struggle, the deeper you sink." Pablo blew a whistle, and the eagle above his head swooped down. After circling around, the eagle threw a tree vine in front of Pablo.

Before Pablo took the vine and managed to get himself out of the swamp, he saw an animal covered in thorns rushing over. The animal looked like both a pig and a hedgehog.

Pablo was shocked.

He cast a glance at Timothy and asked, "We are going to die here. Do you have any last words?"

Considering for a while, Timothy said, "I hope the animal can eat you first."

Pablo wondered if he had misheard Timothy.

The strange animal was about the size of a cow. It panted heavily. As soon as it saw Pablo and Timothy, it ran towards Pablo. When it moved closer to them, it seemed to find that Timothy smelled better. Therefore, it changed direction, and then all its four hooves sank into the swamp.

Timothy held her breath and tilted her head. "It's stinky."

Pablo also smelled it. He reached out to get the vine and pulled himself out. He gritted his teeth and said, "Hold on. I'm gonna save you. It will be our dinner later."

It took them more than three hours to climb out of the swamp. Pablo didn't eat his words, and the animal became their dinner.

There were many rare animals in the forest. Occasionally, Pablo and Timothy would encounter tigers, as well as animals that looked like both cows and deer. There were also animals with long tails. They had faces like cats, but they were much bigger. Some animals had faces like mice and bodies like squirrels. These animals had thick fur and lived in the water.

The two of them traveled for nearly five years and Timothy took a lot of photos along the way. Every year, they would send photos to Vincent and Emily before the New Year. At first, only Pablo and the eagle were in the photo.

Later, all the photos were about Timothy exclusively. In her personal photos, she raised her hand slightly and the eagle just fell from the air to her arm. She turned to smile at the eagle.

Pablo documented the scene. Every time he went to a place, he had to buy a lot of film. Then he went to the photography studio to print the photos and send them to Vincent.

On the surface, they were traveling. In fact, whenever they arrived at a scenic spot, they would live for a few months to enjoy the local customs. Timothy liked France the most. She felt that French men were real gentlemen.

Pablo was displeased to hear that. "What kind of gentlemen are they? They're just ugly."

"No, they look good." Timothy met a wandering singer, a good-looking Frenchman. Unfortunately, Timothy could not speak French and therefore communicate with him. She could only take out a large amount of cash and put it in his box after he finished singing the song.

Pablo originally thought that this trip was to broaden his horizons and see how many beauties there were outside. In the end, Timothy opened her eyes. Now that she had seen many handsome men, she actually did not feel anything at the sight of Pablo.

This feeling was really not good.

Fortunately, their French trip was very short. Pablo did not dare to stay any longer. He was afraid that not long later, Timothy would tell him that she had fallen in love with the street singer.

Later, Timothy was hit by a car in the street and injured her foot.

Pablo stayed with her and took care of her for more than three months. During the first month in the hospital, Pablo scolded the driver for being blind every day. After the second month, he changed his thoughts. One day, he went out to bask in the sun while holding Timothy. "In fact, it's good for you."

When they were traveling, they set full schedules to spend each day. Now, they had been in the hospital for quite a long time. Since they spent every day together, they grew dependent on each other. As time went by, their pure relationship turned out to be more intimate.

The first kiss between the two occurred in the bathroom.

Timothy stood there after washing up. When she could no longer hold on and was about to fall, Pablo helped her up. "Be careful."

Timothy fell in his arms and rested her arms around his neck. Only after she steadied himself did she smile and say. "I slipped."

Seeing her smile, Pablo could not help but smile.

"What are you laughing at?" Timothy asked.

"Because you're laughing," Pablo said.

The two of them looked at each other for a moment, and the atmosphere suddenly became ambiguous. Timothy was about to ask him what was wrong when Pablo kissed her.

They had zero experience of falling in love, so it was naturally their first time kissing a person.

Pablo pressed his lips against hers for a long time without moving.

Timothy also remained still.

Pablo pressed her for a long time. Then he released her and asked, "It doesn't seem to be right, does it?"

Timothy flushed. "You should do it this way."

"Pregnant?" Pablo was stunned.

"Yes, she likes sleeping and wants to vomit. She doesn't really want to eat, does she? It's very similar to the symptoms of pregnancy. Let her check if she is pregnant first. She can also go to the hospital for a check-up."

Pablo hurriedly bought the pregnancy test kits and ran back home. He ran too fast along the way. When he returned to their rented house, Timothy was sitting on the chair listlessly. She was not very comfortable recently and did not want to move much.

Seeing Pablo come back, she wanted to stand up, but she frowned uncomfortably.

"Don't move." Pablo hurried over and took a quick look at the instructions for pregnancy test kits. Then, he helped her to the bathroom. "Slow down."

"Didn't you buy some medicine? Do you need me to go to the bathroom?" Timothy asked weakly.

"Yes, let's do a check." Pablo opened the bag. After reading the entire manual, he took out his phone and checked it again. After making sure that he understood it, he whispered something into Timothy's ear.

"Why?" Timothy was a little surprised.

"Don't ask. Just do as I say." It was rare for Pablo to be overbearing. His forehead was covered in sweat. It was unknown whether it was because he was nervous or something else, but there were blue veins that bulged slightly.

"You... What's wrong? Is my illness very serious?" Timothy looked up at him.

"It's not serious. Can I tell you the truth in a minute?" Pablo comforted her.

Timothy cooperated with him.

A minute later, two red bars appeared in the kits. Pablo was not sure if he was surprised or happy. She was actually pregnant unexpectedly. He was caught unprepared. He walked out and went into the kitchen to pour himself a glass of water. Then he called Vincent.

Halfway through the call, he remembered that Timothy was still in the bathroom, so he quickly hung up the phone and walked in to help Timothy out.

"What illness is it?" Timothy asked.

"You sit down. It's not an illness. You are pregnant. We have a child."
Pablo helped her sit down.

"Child?" Timothy was surprised, her face pale.

"Child?" she looked at her stomach, a little confused.

She was so surprised that there was not even a hint of surprise.

After Pablo came back from the outside, he was probably certain that Timothy was pregnant. After being verified, he was still a little confused and at a loss. That joy only came from the depths of his heart when Timothy sat in front of him.

He had a child.

He was about to become a father.

But he didn't expect Timothy to be indifferent. He asked in a daze, "You don't like it?"

"Yes, I like it. But... am I not sick?" Timothy was still confused.

It was as if she hadn't accepted the truth.

He was never a sentimental man. Since he grew up, he had rarely shed tears. So this was the first time he had shed tears because of a woman.

"Don't talk nonsense. I promise you'll be fine," he said, holding her hand tightly.

Timothy smiled at him.

He saw blood flow out of her broken lips, and then the doctor shouted at her, "Breathe in! Breathe in! Get ready!"

Timothy gritted her teeth and took a deep breath. Pablo lowered his head and kissed her face, muttering silently, "God bless you!"

A baby's cry finally sounded.

Pablo immediately looked at Timothy. Her eyes were still open and her face was covered in sweat. He kissed her dry lips. "It's okay. You'll be good."

She did not speak and only looked at him like that.

"Doctor!" Pablo panicked.

Startled by him, the doctor looked up and asked, "What happened?"

"What happened to her? Why can't she speak?" Pablo lowered his head nervously to feel her heartbeat.

Suddenly, he heard Timothy laugh.

That was when Pablo confirmed that she was fine and reached out his hand to hold hers. "You scared me to death..."

Timothy was still laughing. Much later on, Pablo heard her say, "I thought I was going to die. But upon feeling your deep love for me, I couldn't bear to leave you alone."

Pablo's eyes turned red, and he lowered his head to kiss her. "Don't talk nonsense."

Pablo and Timothy were rarely involved in the growth of Loneliness. When Loneliness was a kid, he was sent to the tribe and left in the care of Timothy's parents for some time. But they felt that the outside world was full of danger caused by heavy traffic and bad guys despite its advanced technology.

So Loneliness was brought up in a tribe like a primeval forest, leading a life of ancient civilization.

When he was brought back by Timothy, he even saluted Timothy. Timothy pulled him up, telling him that such a salute was unnecessary in the new environment where he needed to go to school and live.

Loneliness was somewhat unwilling to move over since he liked to stay in the tribe with his playmates. But here, everyone lived in separate houses and needed to knock on his playmates' doors before paying with them.

When he lived in the tribe, the square would be filled with people as long as the horn was sounded.

Besides, he couldn't keep up with the school here. Later, after a discussion, Pablo and Timothy allowed him to return to the tribe and they were going to let him decide if he chose to stay here when he grew up.

Loneliness was readily returned to the tribe and went hunting on horseback every day. The girls in the tribe called him general because they believed he would just like his mother. Therefore, he worked very hard every day to be a general.

He did not want to let his parents down.
