PART 15 | BOOK 3 OF 3

Kade

"I'll get to the courthouse if you want, or the backyard, or an old dirty warehouse, just please, for the sake of my sanity, pick a place. Please!" I begged.

I'd proposed to my mate Morgan three months ago on her birthday, and since then, she had gone back and forth deciding where we would get married. I was never the type for relationships or marriage, nine-night stands were my go-to every time I wanted to let off some steam.

That was until she walked into my birthday party almost two years ago and turned my world upside down. She had dark brown hair that hung past her shoulders, incredible brown eyes, one hazel, one chocolate brown, almost like mine, and the most adorable freckles. She was an angel, there was no other word to describe her.

Since that day, there's never been another woman for me. She became my air and my reason for waking up in the morning. And now I just wanted her to pick a place so I could make her my wife.

"Don't rush me, handsome. This is a big decision. I'm only doing this once. I need it to be right."

"Sugar Bear! How long are you going to make me wait?" This is torture," I pouted.

I'd given her that name a while ago because it suited her perfectly. She was the sweetest thing in the world to me, baked the most incredible pastries on the planet, and she was a bear in part bear.

I used to think that bears were only good for one thing: grilling. I'd take my friends to underground wrestling pits and revel in all the blood and gore. They were huge and intimidating, and I loved the thrill of the fight. I'd never had a problem with bears, but not just any bear, she happened to be cousins with one of the best underground grillers I'd ever seen. Conviction. He was the best of the best, or was when. I was still trying to beat him sparring, and I'd been trying for more than a year.

"Why don't you go somewhere and relax? I'll sit the girls and see if they can help me pare this out. How does that sound?"

"It sounds like we'll be old and gray before we rally tie the knot."

She walked over and looked up at me with her teary-hypnotic eyes. I'd never get used to how it made me feel looking down into them. It made me feel whole and complete.

"We are getting married as soon as possible. I promise, just give me the chance to decide what place we'll be at. I want somewhere that's important to both you and me. I want a spot that matters. Just let me sit it, okay?"

"Okay, if that's what you want, I'll step back and let you work it out. I've never wanted anything more in my life. I just need to make you mine forever."

"I'm all yours, and you are mine. Forever. Now get out. I'm pretty sure you're got a meeting with Xander to get to."

"st! And I'm late, I'll see you later," I said as I rushed out the room and up to Xander's one.

Luckily, we all lived in the same house, and I only had to run up one right of stairs to get to where I needed to be. When I arrived, I walked in without knocking. At this point, I didn't think why he even bothered to close the door; no one in the house cared; we all just walked in.

"Yon, sorry for being late. What's going on?" I asked and fell back on his couch.

"You're my beta, you've got to be on time at least once in your life."

"I'm always on time; everyone else is just early."

"Keep telling yourself that. Anyway, you're coming with me to Oregon in the morning."

"What's in Oregon, and why do I have to go?"

"The Canyon Woods pack, and because I said so."

I just sighed and rubbed my eyes.

"What's going on with Canyon Woods?"

"I'm not 100% sure. All I know is that Alpha Thorne has asked that all the Alphas and Betas from the Blue Moon Series meet with him to discuss something important. I'm not sure if he trusted that your return I don't know why, but can or known had any issues with him or his pack, so I don't see a reason not to go and rid out what's going on."

"I was drunk for most of that summit, all the summits I've been to actually; you know I hate those things. I doubt I remember anything about it."

"Either way, we're going. It shouldn't take more than one day, so we should be home sometime Saturday."

"Alright, I'll let Morgan know."

"Any progress with the wedding plans?"

"Nope. But I think me pressuring her is making her panic, so I'm going to step back and not to bring it up. I see how things go. Now that's a big step for me too, and I don't want to stress her out any more than she already will be."

"Good thinking. I'm sure between the four of them, the ladies can give something out that will be perfect."

Morgan

"I just don't know. We're not an average couple, nothing about our journey to get here has been normal, and I want the wedding to reed that. Why is this so hard?"

"It's not, you're putting way too much thought into it. Yes, a lot of planning and checking boxes goes in to putting a wedding together but picking a date or a theme or even a season shouldn't be this stressful. What is the real issue?" Taylor asked.

Taylor had been my best friend since childhood. She grew up together and have faced every up down life has thrown at us together. I love her like a sister, and now that she was married to my cousin, we were sisters twenty. She was also married to our Gamma, Bodi Tan-Tuskamita, one wife, she was living the dream.

"There is no 'real issue' Tay. I just want it to be perfect."

"It won't be."

I looked at her shocked, why would she say something like that?

"That's harsh."

"I'm not trying to be harsh, babe. I'm being honest. You can plan all you want, but something is bound to go wrong. When I married Matt, I ripped my rib negligee 12 thought for the wedding, night before I could get it on and have him rip it off me. And when I married Tyson, a bird almost st on the accent. It's never perfect, and if that's your goal, you'll end up disappointed."

"The pack is lucky to have him on our border, but he has to have a life too. We can't let him put it on hold for us. I won't allow that to happen," Alaia replied.

She was our Luna. the highest female in the pack, and both Xander and Alaric, our Head Advisor's, wife. Shifters had no problem with multiple mates, and the Blue Moon pack loved love; it didn't matter to us how it was packaged.

As the Luna, if anyone could get Henry to take a step back and enjoy his life with Anne and their daughter, it was her.

"I'll get it out of you, just like I will. Marriage is huge; it doesn't matter if it's the wedding or life after 'I do,' you just want to be sure you can do it right."

Taylor walked over and wrapped me in a hug.

"You and Kade are two parts of a whole, and you're going to have an amazing marriage. Other things aren't to get stressful, and you have overreacted. just focus on that. Focus on your love for him, and everything else will fall into place."

"Besides the trail, what is in Oregon?" I asked when Kade told me about his upcoming trip.

"I'm guessing people, cities, grass, trees, dirt. the usual st all states have."

"Clearly, but why do you have to go?"

"Something to do with a summit Xander and I went to years ago. I don't remember it, so it's a waste of time for me to even to go, but Xander is stressed. Canyon Woods is half our size, but you still don't want to antagonize or disrespect another pack unnecessarily."

"That's smart. Just keep your dk in your pants while you're gone, please, and thank you."

He walked over and grabbed me by the waist and pulled me against his naked chest.

His body was a work of art, covered in intricate, colorful tattoos that I loved to run my rage along. And in his always messy, dirty blonde hair and gorgeous blue eyes, and he drew women in like moths to arose.

"You and Kade are two parts of a whole, and you're going to have an amazing marriage. Other things aren't to get stressful, and you have overreacted. just focus on that. Focus on your love for him, and everything else will fall into place."

"Ugh, my dk only comes out for you. Sugar, you already know this. Me being in another state won't change anything."

"I know. I just wish there was a way that others could know it," I replied.

Because I could if a wolf, and my bear genetics made it too dangerous for Kade to try to turn me into one. I was unable to mark him.

To worse, being unmarked makes you fair game, and having him gone for the no time frame was making me nervous. I would smell him a mile away, and who knows what they would do to try and get him.

He gently held my face in his hands and rubbed his lips across my cheeks, kissing my forehead.

"Just make sure when we do rally get married you get like a hundred ring. Maybe one with spiking balls and bat comes letting the ladies know that I'm spoken for and to keep their distance."

"I have no idea where even to rid one of those, but I'll see what I can do."

"Don't worry about anything. Angel. It's only one night, and I'll be right back home with you on Saturday."

"Okay. Now let me rid cock packing your bag so you can leave on time in the morning. You know Xander hates to be late, especially when traveling to other packs. It makes us look bad."

"And this is why I'm marrying you, you keep me in line and keep me from barricading Blue Moon's good name and starting reputation. What would I do without you?" he asked.

"Obviously, nothing; you'd be late and miss everything."

I walked into the closet and began pulling a few items from the hangers. I had no clue what Kade was supposed to wear, but I guest a clean button-up shirt and a nice pair of jeans should do the trick.

As I placed the items in his garment bag, he walked up behind me and put his hands on my hips.

"Let's have a baby."

I stopped what I was doing and turned around to face him.

"Are you serious?"

"Yes. You know I love kids, and I love you. So, let's make a baby. I want to be a father to your child."

He pulled my shirt over my head and began kissing down my neck, making me shiver.

"Wait! We can't make one now. What about the wedding?"

"What about it? All I know is I'm getting this body of yours naked and burying myself inside it, now. Do you have any objections to that?" he asked.

"At No, no objections."

He skillfully removed the rest of my clothes and tossed them aside, it was then that I noticed that he was already naked. He had his all planned out before he even stepped foot in the room.

"I didn't think so. So, do you want this slow and gentle, or fast and rough?"

I bit my lip and narrowed my eyes at him.

"What do you think?"

A deep growl passed his lips, and he lifted me, slammed my back against the wall, and thrust his way in a skillfully executed move. Fast and rough, this man knew what I liked and always delivered.