

Chapter 106

The Rage 2

At first, Tony wanted to paint the whole affair as if it was only a one-time thing, a mistake that he shouldn't have committed, as if it only happened in a single moment of weakness, but what Dawn said made him realize that she knew everything.

"What do you mean?" Tony was holding onto his last hope that he could talk his way out of it, but Dawn was having none of it.

"I'm wondering, whether you treated me badly because you couldn't stand looking at me, since I look a lot like my mother, or you couldn't look at me because every time you did that, you would see the face of the woman you betrayed. Which one is it, father?"

Tony was at a loss for words. He wanted to reach out to his daughter, telling her how sorry he was and how he regretted everything.

"I am sorry, Dawn... I didn't mean for it to happen." Tony shook his head. As an alpha, he was expected to exude strength, but at that moment, he seemed utterly defeated. His eyes, brimming with tears and remorse, betrayed his usual composure. "I regret everything. I didn't mean to hurt you and your mother..."

"My mother is dead and thankfully, she died without knowing that the mate she loved, the father of her daughter, had betrayed her." Dawn scoffed. "You should find that comforting."

Tony was fighting back tears. He had gone through fierce battles and gruesome wars, he had also done so many horrendous things in wars, but he never faltered, yet Dawn's words hit him so hard, he lost all of his strength.

No. Tony didn't find it comforting at all. If anything, he wanted his mate to know what he had done, he wanted her to be angry with him, slap him, hit him or do anything and everything to take out her rage on him.

But it would never happen, because she had died.

Tony couldn't provoke her anger, nor could he seek her forgiveness.

"Mother always told me you loved me, but it seems you care more for your mistress and your other daughter than for me, than for us."

Tony shook his head. "No. Dawn, I always love you. You are my daughter..."

"So is Emily."

Tony could feel his whole body shaking, but his dignity as an alpha was the only thing that stopped him from groveling for Dawn's forgiveness, stopping him from crying out loud and kneeling down in front of his daughter.

He was an alpha, his ego and dignity didn't allow him to do that, no matter how much he wanted Dawn to know that he loved her and how much he regretted everything that had happened.

"I love you, Dawn. In my heart, you are my only daughter and your mother was the love of my life, she is the love of my life."

"And yet, you brought back your mistress and your other daughter to live under the same roof and abandoned me for years."

Tony's logic side still told him that this was something they could fix. "What should I do to atone to my sins, Dawn? I will do anything."

He approached the matter logically, yet even now, he remained blind to the full extent of the damage he had caused.

"There is nothing you can do father." Dawn gritted her teeth. Her rage was palpable and this startled Tony a little bit. He couldn't believe his daughter could exude such a powerful aura. "You failed me and my mother and there is nothing you can do to fix it now, because the day I lost my mother is the same day I lost my father. You are dead to me."

"Dawn... you are upset, that's why you are being too harsh with me." Tony shook his head and tried to approach Dawn again, to hug her, but she took a step back.

However, Tony didn't know what a 'harsh' Dawn could do until she said her last piece.

"It was the wrong parent who died that day." Dawn wished it was Tony, who had died instead.

This time, Tony couldn't find a word. He couldn't even find the courage to call her name. Remorse and shame washed over him, but nothing troubled him more than the realization that Dawn wished him dead.

"Remember this, Father: I will come after you. You are just like those rogues who killed my mother." A single tear fell down her cheek, but her eyes were ablaze with hatred. "Don't ask for my forgiveness because I will never give it to you. I will make sure your life turns miserable."

Blake stayed in his bedroom as usual. He just took a glass of Rottingbane again this morning, which did not allow him to shift into his beast as per his father's instructions.

However, from the window he could see there was a little bit of commotion out there. It was in the middle of the night and he seemed to be having a hard time taking his mind off Dawn.

The fact that Alpha Zenith had mated with and marked her continually plagued his thoughts. His mind was a mess. He should have been the one who had received that honor!

But then, Blake overheard a guard outside of his door saying something about Dawn. He immediately opened the door and asked the said guard.

"The Alpha's daughter, Dawn, is in the pack house right now."

Hearing that, Blake immediately dashed toward the pack house. He cursed his father because he couldn't shift into his beast and reach Dawn faster than this.

Blake was afraid that he would miss seeing Dawn. What was she doing here? Did she return because things didn't go well with Alpha Zenith? Did she come looking for him? Did she miss him like he did?

But, to Blake's annoyance, Emily had stopped him from entering the pack house.

"I know that you want to see Dawn, but I will not allow you to do that."

Chapter 107

The Rage 3

Emily heard the commotion and woke up to learn Dawn was in the pack house, and that her mother was trying to stop her from looking for her father.

Emily was surprised at this and when she tried to eavesdrop on their conversation, she was shocked to learn that Dawn knew about their father's affair with her mother. How did she know?

However, Emily didn't really care about how or from who she learned that, because She relished the thought of how flustered Alpha Tony would be. Julia gasped.

"D- Did you tell her?" Julia asked Emily. She was stuttering a little bit.

It was amusing to see how terrified they were that their dirty secret was exposed.

"No. I didn't."

"Then, how did she know about it?"

Both Julia and Emily stood behind the door, as they listened to the conversation inside. It was not difficult, because Tony was being so loud about it.

"I don't know." Emily shrugged her shoulders nonchalantly; she then walked away from her mother. She should thank whoever told Dawn about Alpha Tony's affair and the fact she was his daughter too.

The more Dawn was mad at her father, the better. She hoped their relationship couldn't be fixed anymore, with that, her father could focus on herself, since she was his daughter as well, the next in line for his title.

Therefore, when Emily learned that Blake rushed to the pack house to meet Dawn, she decided to stop this stupid man from ruining everything.

She wanted Dawn to become angrier with their father. She should cut ties with him and never return to this pack again.

"Back off, Emily!" Blake growled, he hated this woman to the core, he couldn't imagine how he could touch her and get her pregnant. He let go of Dawn to be with this vile woman? He must have lost his brain! "I will not hesitate to harm you if I need to!"

"What do you want..."

Emily didn't have a chance to finish her words when Blake shoved her to the side. She was heavily pregnant and the way Blake pushed her was very violent.

However, the man didn't care about her in the first place.

"Blake!" Emily screamed at him. She chased after Blake, but of course, she couldn't catch up.

Meanwhile, Blake's heart was thumping wildly when he caught Dawn's scent. How long had it been since the last time he could smell her? He missed her so much, he felt his entire body humming at the thought of seeing her again.

It was not hard for Blake to find Dawn, as she was in her bedroom with Alpha Tony, who looked like he had been struck by lightning.

"Dawn?" Blake panted. He saw Dawn standing there, looking beautiful as usual. "Is that really you?"

Without thinking twice, Blake immediately approached her in long strides. He wanted to pull her into his arms and bury his face in the crook of her neck; he wanted to hug her and never let go. Unfortunately, he couldn't do that, his steps halted when Dawn pointed a dagger at him. She looked furious.

"Take another step and I will not hesitate to stab you." Dawn was glad that Zenith taught her how to fight. She knew she wouldn't stand a chance in a fight with Blake, who was one of the best warriors in the pack, but at the very least, she would be able to put up a fight.

Moreover, with the guilt that her father had toward her, he wouldn't allow Blake to do anything stupid.

"Dawn... what is the meaning of this?" Blake was shocked, he knew Dawn since they were little and she was not the violent type. That alpha from the north must have been a bad influence on her. "Dawn, I know you are angry with me and if by stabbing me it could relieve some of your pain, you can do it."

Blake thought Dawn was only bluffing, he believed with all of his heart that Dawn wouldn't really harm him.

But how wrong he was when Dawn waved the dagger swiftly until the tip of it grazed his neck. Thankfully, Blake had good reflexes and he immediately backed away before Dawn could slit his throat.

He widened his eyes in disbelief that Dawn actually intended to kill him.

"Dawn! How dare you do that!" Emily screeched.

"What?" Dawn completely ignored Emily. "I thought you were ready for me to stab you, was that another lie of yours?"

"Dawn, please..." Alpha Tony felt his head hurt so badly. It was a complete chaos. Emily and Julia were screaming, while he could feel this unadulterated killing intention radiating from his daughter.

This was the first time he witnessed how fierce Dawn could be. He couldn't be mistaken; she was clearly intent on killing Blake.

But right now, those murderous eyes were directed at him.

"You know what, Alpha?" Dawn began in an unusually cold voice. She didn't even want to call him her father anymore, which made him feel like she just stabbed him with the dagger in her hand. "You and Julia deserve each other. I couldn't even be mad at you for choosing a woman who has the same values as you."

"Dawn!" Blake was still screaming her name as he tried to approach Dawn again, but this time, Alpha Tony roared at him and Emily to get out of the room.

"SCRAM!" Alpha Tony used his alpha voice to chase them out of his sight. He hated Blake from the moment he betrayed his daughter's trust, even more when he still tried to get her back, causing so much unnecessary trouble.

However, when he turned around to look at his daughter, Dawn was actually chuckling.

"Why are you so worked up? You are the same as him. In fact, you are even worse than him."

Chapter 108

The Rage 4

Tony couldn't even say a word when the realization hit him; what he had done to his mate had happened to his precious daughter as well. Was this Karma? But, why was it his daughter who had to bear it?

"What? Only now have you realized that this is Karma?" Dawn said, seemingly able to understand what had left her father at a loss of words. She chuckled when she continued. "Don't worry. You couldn't escape Karma either."

Dawn then took a step closer to her father, still holding the dagger in her hand. Tony thought his daughter was going to stab him like she had done to Blake earlier, and he braced himself. He deserved this. He wouldn't retaliate.

If giving up his life was what it would take for Dawn to forgive him, he would do it without hesitation. The past few months had been a torture for him. He was racked with guilt and now that Dawn finally learned about his affair and Emily's birth secret, he couldn't even ask for forgiveness.

However, Dawn didn't want that. Death was a mercy.

She wanted her father to feel the pain she had felt, and then some. "Do you really think you can trust her? Do you really think that woman is loyal to you? Do you think your beta is loyal to you? He covered up your affair, do you really think he didn't have any hidden agenda?"

Dawn saw a flicker of shock in her father's eyes, she continued.

"You are so stupid, Alpha, if you've never seen the signs. Don't wail over my absence, because I won't be a part of your life anymore, but see what kind of people you chose over losing me."

Tony didn't understand what Dawn was trying to say, but her words stuck in his mind and planted a seed of doubt for Julia and Jason in him, and that was what Dawn wanted.

His daughter walked out of the bedroom. This room didn't hold any significant value to her anymore, just like how he didn't either.

Outside the door, Dawn had to face Blake, Emily and Julia, as the three of them had been waiting for her.

Once the door opened, Blake started to beg her. He even knelt down, making Emily freak out, because it was very humiliating and degrading. A man shouldn't kneel down, especially someone with a high status like Blake.

"Dawn, please, forgive me. I know how wrong I am. I know I have made a huge mistake, please, let me fix this. Let me fix us."

Well, at the very least, there was an improvement there. He admitted that getting another woman pregnant was a huge mistake, but it was too late.

Meanwhile, Dawn simply stared down at him, her face didn't show any emotion, as she waited for him to be done with his pleading, because there was something important she needed to tell him.

"Do you know that Emily is actually the Alpha's child from an affair? The Alpha has been with Julia even when my mother was still alive and now, their daughter followed in her mother's footsteps."

Dawn noticed how this was news to Blake as well. He wasn't aware of this yet. Good. Because Dawn wanted to cause them as much damage as possible. Messing around with their minds was justifiable, right? Especially, after what they had put her through.

"Do you really believe the baby is yours?"

"DAWN!" Emily screeched, she immediately understood what Dawn was trying to insinuate. "How dare you question my baby?! The baby is Blake's! I have never slept with anyone but him!"

"If you say so." Dawn shrugged her shoulders nonchalantly and after that, she walked away, but Blake still didn't want to let her go. He grabbed her legs and started to beg again, which annoyed Dawn.

"Stop that! Don't you feel ashamed of degrading yourself like this!?" Emily growled at Blake. It was very embarrassing. No man should kneel down and beg like Blake did. He didn't have dignity at all and this was the man that she chose over that royal prince, the alpha from the north?!

The more Emily thought about it, the more upset she was. She would have become a princess hadn't it been for her mother's interference!

"I hate you, Dawn! I hate you!" Emily was having an outburst. She charged forward to hit Dawn, but Blake beat her to it and blocked her attack, as he shoved her to the side which knocked her to the ground.

"Don't you dare touch her! You filthy bitch! You ruined my life!" Blake growled angrily, while Julia immediately rushed to her daughter's side, screaming at Blake for what he had done.

"What have you done?! She is pregnant with your child!" Julia was mad.

"Is that really my child?" Blake narrowed his eyes and this statement made Emily and Julia screech, which stressed the pregnant woman even more, as Emily started to wail in pain.

Dawn watched how everything unfolded. It was chaos, there were many people who came to watch what was actually going on and this commotion reached Jason and Ava. The two of them immediately came to check on their son.

The two of them were surprised to see Dawn there, but their main focus shifted toward Emily, who was wailing hard, shouting that her stomach was in pain.

During this chaos, Tony didn't come out of Dawn's bedroom. He seemed to be done with them while what Dawn said to him kept bothering him more than anything.

"Call Lyra! Where is the healer?!" Julia instructed the people, who watched the whole thing unfolded. Some of them immediately rushed to get the healer there. "Tony! Tony! Come here!" She looked for her mate, but Tony still didn't budge.

It was Jason, who finally barged into the room and confronted the alpha.

"What are you doing here?! Your daughter is out there!" Jason looked very upset.

"How long have you known that she is my real daughter?" Tony asked coldly.

Chapter 109

Found Her

No one was supposed to know about this. Julia shouldn't have told anyone about this big secret and they both agreed not to talk about this anymore.

So much so, there was a point where Tony believed that Emily was not his own daughter. He had always thought of her as someone else's child and he was just there to fill the father's role for her.

It was pretty messed up, but it helped Tony feel less guilty toward Dawn's mother.

"This is not the time for that!" Jason said harshly. He probably wanted to buy some time for himself to come up with a reasonable excuse. "Your daughter is going into labor!"

Jason then dragged Tony out of Dawn's bedroom, while Emily had been taken to a nearby room. From the looks of it, she was going to have early labor.

Ava and Julia were frantic, they were very worried about Emily and her baby, but Blake tried to sneak away, completely unfazed even in this situation. His intention was very obvious. He wanted to chase after Dawn, despite knowing the woman that he impregnated was going to give birth to his firstborn.

"If you dare to walk away from here, I am going to break your legs!" Jason said sternly to his son, he meant what he said and this made Ava wail even more.

Tony closed his eyes. It was a mess. It was so loud and messy here. He wanted to be anywhere but here. He wanted all this drama to be over.

"Where are you going?!" Julia shouted hysterically when she saw Tony walk away. "Our daughter is going to give birth! Where are you going?!"

Tony ignored Julia, as he walked away to look for Dawn. But she was nowhere to be found. And this time, Jason couldn't stop him, after all, he was the alpha.

Meanwhile, Dawn felt bad for the baby. She didn't mean any harm. Her insinuation wouldn't even cause a scratch once the baby was born, because as far as she remembered, their firstborn looked exactly like Blake when he was little. There was no doubt he was his son.

However, she didn't intend for Emily to have early labor. But then, it was not her, who had knocked her down, inducing an early labor.

Now, Dawn had to think about where she should go from here...

Zenith finally got a late report about Dawn's visit to her former pack, but when he went there, it was too late. She had already left.

Emily gave birth to a baby boy the night before and she was currently recuperating. Her condition was not good and the whole pack was shaken by the commotion last night following the appearance of Dawn.

"Alpha, if you find her, could you please let me know?" Alpha Tony asked carefully, after he told him everything that happened last night.

"Why should I?" Zenith asked coldly. He was trying to figure out where Dawn would head next.

"I know that I have treated her so badly in recent years, but she is still my daughter," Alpha Tony said, half pleading with the alpha before his eyes.

"And she is my mate now. You don't have any right to her anymore."

In this realm, when it came to women, before they met their mates, they belonged to their fathers, but once they met their mates, they would belong to their men.

In a way, what Zenith said was right. Alpha Tony had no claim over Dawn, because she belonged to him now.

"I understood, but..." Alpha Tony was still trying to argue his case, but Darius immediately intervened because he could see Zenith was getting irritated, as he needed time to think.

"Alpha Tony, let's go outside, my alpha needs time to think." Darius tried to tell Alpha Tony not to push Zenith too far. He wouldn't like the outcome.

Alpha Tony wanted to argue, but he stopped himself when he saw the look on the gamma's face and went outside of the room.

Zenith didn't even notice that he was finally alone. He was trying to think of the places that Dawn might go to.

Aside from her own pack, she only had been in the north and capital city. But there was no way she would go back to the north on her own, not after she learned what happened in their past lives.

She wouldn't go to the capital city either, as royal warriors would be in every corner. She wouldn't be able to hide.

So where might she possibly go?

Zenith spent his time in this room for so long, weighing all the options, but later in the evening when Darius came to bring a meal for the alpha, he was nowhere to be found.

"Damn it!" Darius immediately mobilized all the warriors that came with him and asked Alpha Tony to ask his pack members if they saw the alpha.

"I saw a black beast, heading toward the west," said one of the pack members and a handful of people confirmed that.

"West?" Darius' brows furrowed.

The west area was not safe, because there was a rebellion there. They staged a coup years ago, in order to take down the king from his throne.

"He wouldn't really go to the west, right?" Darius felt like he wanted to pull his hair.

Meanwhile, Zenith did exactly what Darius had feared the most. He was heading to the west, where he sped up in his beast form, alone. It was easier for him to move without his little entourage, especially since his beast was very agitated for not being with their mate.

Zenith didn't sleep a wink. He didn't even stop to rest, as he rushed through the forest and swamps, until he saw her beast.

The fur of her beast was the color of brown, but under the sunlight, it looked almost golden. She was way smaller than Zenith's black one and obviously, much slower than the alpha as well, even so, she attempted to run away once she saw him.

Chapter 110

Do You Want to Ride Me

Despite knowing she wouldn't be able to outrun the alpha's beast, Dawn still tried to escape from him. She was even shocked that he actually managed to find her.

She didn't want to talk to him, not yet. Dawn still needed time to gather her thoughts.

Yes, it was something that happened in their past lives and nothing like that had happened in this lifetime and Zenith had kept his promise that he was going to fix it.

Unlike Blake, he kept his word and accomplished the unthinkable. Dawn didn't even think that turning back time was something that you could do, but Zenith did it. At what cost? Every magic has a price that you have to pay.

Dawn didn't want to talk about it just yet.

Therefore, in her desperate attempt to get away from him, she ran, knowing she had no chance of escaping.

However, the black beast actually didn't stop her when he caught up to her. Instead, he ran beside her, as if they were taking a leisurely walk together.

Annoyed, the brown beast stopped and barked at the other beast, Dawn even attacked Zenith in her beast form. But anyone who saw this would just laugh at her clumsy attempts and how the alpha let his mate nip at his neck.

Dawn intended to bite his neck and cause some serious 'damage' to him, but the black beast surrendered to her. He didn't even try to dodge her attack and at the last second, Dawn changed her mind.

She was furious beyond words, but she didn't have the heart to actually do any harm on him.

Dawn shifted back into her human form. She couldn't preserve her beast form because she was too exhausted and angry. Thankfully, she didn't need to block her thoughts from him, because she had been pulling away from Zenith for quite a few days now.

"Get away from me!"

Zenith shifted into his human form as well and stared at his mate, and upon looking at Zenith, Dawn gasped. He was haggard.

The alpha looked like he had been lost in the desert and didn't have enough food and water for days. His eyes had sunken and he looked skinnier, not only that, even his stubble had grown.

Zenith always appeared presentable. He always took good care of himself, whether it was in their first life or this life.

No. There was a time when he looked like this in their first life, it was right before Dawn killed him. After so many years that they didn't see each other.

"No. You can be mad at me, I will take it, but please don't run away from me. I am worried."

Dawn gritted her teeth. He was worried about her. He was not even angry. "I don't want to see you! Get away from me!"

"If you don't want to see me, it's fine. I will not appear in front of you anymore, but let's go back. You can be angry with me in a safer place."

"I said, I don't want to see you!" Dawn screamed. "I don't have a home! I don't have anyone now! Leave me alone!"

The Moonlight pack was not her home anymore and she couldn't call the northern pack and the palace as one for obvious reasons.

"I can't leave you alone here, especially when you intend to go to the west, where the rebellion took place." Zenith realized where Dawn was heading when he remembered their last meeting. "For now, it's still not safe there. When you got there in our first life, you went there ten years from now."

"I don't care!" Dawn snapped, she knew that she was being a brat, but it felt nice to lash out at someone. It felt good to vent her frustration.

"If you don't care about yourself, at the very least, you should care about our child."

There was a pause and then the air stilled. Dawn felt the time stop for a few seconds when she heard what Zenith said.

"Pardon me?" Suddenly, she became polite. "What did you say?"

"You are pregnant, Dawn. I will be doomed if I let you walk to the west and enter their territory when you are vulnerable like this." Zenith took a step closer, he didn't want to overwhelm her, but they really needed to leave.

"No... but, how?" Dawn was being foolish. She was so confused and this news was very sudden.

She didn't remember getting pregnant in the early years they were together, but then Zenith reminded her.

"We did the deed, right? We mated and I marked you."

Now Dawn remembered that they were not truly together in the early years when Zenith took her to the north in their first lifetime. It was only a few years later that they mated and he marked her.

"Can we go back now? You can be angry with me as much as you like, but I need you to be safe." Zenith took another step again toward her and this time, he caressed her cheek. To his relief, Dawn didn't avoid his touch.

Even with dust on her face, her hair all messy and her dress looking beyond dirty, she was still beautiful.

"Let's go back, okay?" The usually cruel alpha from the north, seemingly had abundant patience when he faced his angry little mate. People wouldn't believe it if they were to see this.

Dawn pursed her lips; she furrowed her brows. "How will I know if you aren't lying about this pregnancy?"

"I was the one who first told you about your pregnancy, even in our first lifetime."

He was right. Dawn remembered that. "I am really pregnant; I can't shift into my beast. It will harm the baby."

A pregnant she wolf could shift into their beast during the pregnancy, but it would harm the baby. It was fine in the early stages of the pregnancy, but the more the baby grew in their mother's womb, the higher the risk to lose them if the mother shifted into their beast, while heavily pregnant.

"Do you want to ride me?"
