

Resume 45

Ex-Husband Wants Badly to Resume Their Marriage Chapter 45

Kiss Me Before Leaving

They soon entered a luxury store.

The woman was choosing clothes and bags, while the man was replying his text messages. Sharon hid outside the door.

She could see the man's face clearly from this position. She gritted her teeth.

What was Asher doing? They stayed in the luxury store.

Yadira handed a bag to Asher and asked him, "Darling, I fancy it. Can you buy it for me?"

The shop assistant said, "Lady, you have a good taste. It is our new collection of the season. There are only two such bags in the South City, both in our shop."

Hearing this, Yadira liked the bag even more.

She held Asher's arm and said, "Then I'll take this, okay?"

Asher intimately pinched her nose and said, "Alright, I'll buy it for you."

As he said that, he took out his card and said to the shop assistant, "Are there two such bags? I'll take them both."

The shop assistant smiled and took the card.

"Okay, just a moment, please."

Yadira, who was smiling just now, got instantly upset.

She let go of Asher's arm and said, "Are you going to send that woman a gift again? Every time you buy me something, you'll buy another for her. If you are so reluctant to leave her, stop being with me."

Asher held her shoulder and said, "Well, baby, don't be angry. I've been with you most of the days in this month since I came back. I should give her some compensation. You can pick whatever you like in the shop. I'll only buy them for you. I won't buy them for her this time."

Yadira poked him in the chest with her finger and said coquettishly, "That's right..."

They came out of the luxury store and left the mall.

Asher put the exquisitely packed boxes in the car and went to the hotel next to the mall, holding Yadira's shoulder.

Along the way, Sharon quietly followed behind them.

They were so immersed in the joy of an affair that neither of them noticed Sharon.

When they arrived at the hotel, Sharon also took the elevator and stood in the corner under the cover of many people.

When they got off the elevator, she followed them and slowly walked behind them.

Asher seemed to notice something.

He turned around to take a look.

The moment he turned around, Sharon paused in the doorframe beside her to hide herself.

However, she did not expect that this door was not locked.

It was opened when she hit the door.

Sharon thought that she would fall or hit the wall hard.

But she fell into a warm embrace.

Sharon raised her head and met the man's deep dark eyes.

What a coincidence! Jameson raised the phone with one hand and looked at her calmly.

Sharon could guess what he was thinking through his cold and indifferent eyes.

This man must be thinking, "Look, one month separation and you're in such a hurry to throw yourself into my arms."

Before she figured all his thoughts out, Jameson's thin lips twitched slightly, as if he were about to say something from the bottom of his heart.

Sharon was afraid the Asher would discover her and she couldn't get any evidence of his cheating on Tiffany.

Before Jameson spoke, she hurriedly tiptoed to cover his mouth with her hands. She closed the door by the way.

A strange silence fell in the room.

Only someone was still speaking in Jameson's phone, "...Mr. Proctor, are you still listening?"

Jameson lowered his eyes and took a look. Sharon immediately realized.

Her hand was about to burn and she hurriedly withdrew it.

He held the phone and said, "Yes."

"About the development of resort hotels in Singapore..."

"Send the complete project to my office within two days."

After saying that, Jameson hung up the phone.

Then the room became quiet again.

He did not speak, nor did Sharon.

It was the first time that they had met each other after a bitter quarrel in the hotel a month ago.

In the end, Sharon couldn't bear the pressure and gave a hollow laugh, "Mr.Proctor, what a coincidence...."

"It's quite a coincidence that you ran into me in my hotel."

His words were full of mockery.Sharon kept silent.

Were all the b*st*rds in the world have something in common? A b*st*rd opened a hotel.

Another b*st*rd was going to spend the night with a woman rather than his girlfriend in this hotel.

Sharon explained, "Mr.Proctor, I didn't know this was your hotel.I came with someone else."

Jameson said, "Is that so?"

Sh*t! Did he believe her or not? Sharon took a deep breath and said calmly, "Whatever you think, I'm not here for you anyway."

Jameson narrowed his eyes and said, "Then tell me, who are you looking for in the hotel?"

Sharon opened her mouth, but she suddenly stopped.

She wanted to tell him to let her alone.

He didn't have to know who she looked for.

However, she quickly found that it was improper to say so.

No matter what, the person standing in front of her was her big creditor.

She had better not make things difficult for him.

If something unexpected happened, she might discuss with him about delaying an installment of her debt.It would be too silly of her to defy him.

Only fools would defy their creditors.

Sharon smiled gently, "I'm here for a friend.How about Mr.Proctor?"

"What does it have to do with you?"

It didn't matter.She just asked casually.

Jameson put away his phone and said impatiently, "How long do you plan to stay here with me?"

He came to the hotel for a regular meeting.

When he suddenly received a work call, he randomly opened a room to answer it.He didn't expect that she would accidentally enter the room.

Jameson absolutely did not believe such a coincidence.

It seemed that a period of separation was somewhat effective.Only then did Sharon remember that she didn't come here to quarrel with him.

Asher should have entered his room by now.

She took two steps back and said, "Sorry, I'll excuse myself."

At the same time, Asher had a guilty conscience.

He felt a little uneasy today.

Although he didn't see anyone back then, rationality told him that he couldn't stay any longer.

However, when he suggested leaving, Yadira still hugged him tightly, "Just tell that woman and you can be with me forever."

Asher smiled and didn't answer her directly.

He obviously enjoyed having an affair without breaking up with his girlfriend.

He took Yadira's hand and said, "Alright, baby, I'll see you tomorrow. I really have to go back today."

When they reached the door, Yadira hugged his waist and said, "Kiss me before leaving."

Asher hugged Yadira and kissed her.

When Sharon opened the hotel room, she saw their kissing.

She hurriedly stepped back.

She didn't have time to explain to Jameson behind her.

She just pushed him into the room, quickly took out her phone and took a picture of their kissing.