

The Ex-Husband's Revenge By Dragonsky

Chapter 1977

Chapter 1977

"How's this then, Angus, Old Hughes? Did you change your mind yet about us winning?" Devon snickered. He placed his hands behind his back in a stance of triumph, as though he already secured his victory!

However, the reality was not too far off from his expectations; to triumph over the Thompsons, he summoned every last one of his guards, especially those at the Almighty State or Semi-Almighty State, to come with him, leaving only Declan, his second-in-command, to hold down the fort at home.

Whereas the Hughes and the Thompsons, on the other hand, came unprepared and possibly brought only four or five Almighty Warriors along at most!

There was no way they could match up against the Hiltons at all!

"You-" Both Angus and Alan's faces sank at this realization. Just as Devon predicted, Angus brought only three warriors at the Initial Almighty State with him, whereas Alan, who arrived in an even greater hurry, managed to summon only two!

They had only five Almighty Warriors in total, and the best fighter they had was Alan himself, who was already at the Intermediate Almighty State.

However, the Hiltons had two Intermediate Almighty

Warriors and seven Initial Almighty Warriors! It was clear that the cards were in their favor!

"Angus, Old Hughes, seeing that we're all in the same boat, I'd like to give you one last chance! If you leave right here and right now, I can pretend as though none of this happened, but if you refuse to do so, I'm afraid I won't show you mercy anymore from here on out!" Devon sneered. He knew full well that although they were in a clearly advantaged position, the Hughes and the Thompsons were not easy opponents. If the three of them were to get into conflict, this would not work out in the Hiltons' favor, as they would have made two new enemies just like that.

On the contrary, if Angus and Alan were willing to retreat right then and there, the Hiltons would not only be able to seize Leon, but it would have spared them the trouble of having created two new enemies!

However, even if Angus and Alan insisted on standing their ground, the Hiltons would not go down without a fight, and according to the situation at hand, it was highly likely that they would win!

As long as the Hiltons managed to defeat Leon once and for all, he was certain that the Thompsons and the Hughes would not be willing to hold a grudge against them for so long over one person. This was not realistic at all!

"No can do! I've already made it clear that if you want to harm Mister Wolf, you'll have to go through us Thompsons first!" Angus replied coldly, his attitude unwavering.

"Yes, we Hughes agree! I won't sit by and let you hear Mister Wolf just like that, Old Hiltons!" Alan sneered, also unwilling to relent.

"Well, well! All I can say is you asked for this! Since both of you have death wishes, I'll gladly help you fulfill them!" Devon was amused by this, then, without a second word, he gestured for his warriors to charge. "Seize them, and bring that Leon Wolf fellow to me-alive! As for the rest, don't kill them, but don't hesitate to hurt them when necessary!"

"Yes, sir!" the Hiltons charged forward, unleashing their fiery wrath against their severely outnumbered opponents!
