Chapter 2459

Hugo, don't bother trying to fool us! Cynthion Group is just a pharmaceutical firm with no fame. They had nothing here in the western region, so why would other families fight for a chance to work with them? Besides, it's not a big deal even if other families want to work with them. The profit they offer is too low. If even we struggle to accept it, others would feel the same as well!" Jayden sneered and argued.

"That's true!"

"It's indeed quite unlikely!"

Caleb and the elders were all relieved at his words as they all agreed with what Jayden said.

People were often moved by selfish intentions and all families in the western region would prioritize the family's gain. The profit Cynthion Group offered was far too low and did not include company shares.

Such a deal was practically a charity case and other families would not accept it either. Hence, Cynthion Group might not be able to find other partners.

"No, Uncle. You've underestimated Cynthion Group! They made at least 437 million or above from that one sales drive I attended. Though the profit Cynthion Group offers sounds little, any family that works with them will at least gain a profit of 650 million annually. There's no risk to this investment and there's a high return. Why would other families hesitate to work with Cynthion Group?" Hugo said.

"What? Did you just say that twenty percent of Cynthion Group's profit would amount to close to 650 million per year? Really?"

Caleb and the elders were all stunned.

Though the Morrisons were the most powerful family in the western region with a total worth of up to billions, their annual profit would add up to roughly a billion once tax and business losses were deducted.

if the Morrisons could truly gain 650 million or above through cooperating with Cynthion Group, this would be a significant gain.

Due to Cynthion Group's unique condition, all the Morrisons needed to do was help in various aspects and did not need to bear any risk at all for the profit.

Others could only hope for a chance at such a wonderful deal, yet they turned it down for their pride.

Instantly, they all realized just how foolish they were. "It's true. 650 million is just a rough estimate I made. It can be even more," Hugo nodded and briefly explained what he saw in the sales drive.

Though Cynthion Group's total profit was confidential, Hugo was talented enough to determine that Cynthion Group would 400 to 500 million for each sales drive they hosted.

All Cynthion Group needed to do was hold a few sales drives and they would make a great fortune. Indeed, Cynthion Group's financial potential and capability surpassed Hugo's anticipation, with the sheer profit from each sales drive going up to 650 million or above.

Combined with the profit made by selling ordinary pills such as Energy Nurturing pills and Circulation pills, the sky was the limit.

This was precisely how Cynthion Group managed to become the most famous new enterprise in the southern region within a matter of months.
