The Ex-Husband's Revenge chapter 2464-After spotting one another, the young woman looked shocked and dragged the man next to him over. "Hey, isn't that Renee?"

"Ariella! Why are you here?" Renee was equally shocked.

The young woman before her was Ariella Oxford, the second unwed daughter of the Oxfords and one of the few friends Renee had in the elite community.

The Oxfords had a long history of producing martial artists, but they were not as powerful as the major families.

However, the Oxfords' ancestors were related to the Morrisons so the two families were friends for decades.

Since Ariella and Renee were around the same age, they grew up together and considered each other sisters.

"Oh, I'm here to dine with my boyfriend," Ariella said, pointing at the man next to him.

The man was Joshua Hacket, the eldest son of the Hackets.

Like the Oxfords, the Hackets were also an ancient lineage of martial artists and were business partners with the Oxfords for years.

A little over a year ago, Joshua and Ariella met and the two soon fell in love, becoming a couple.

At this point, they were already exploring the possibility of an engagement.

"Mister Hacket, it's been a while." Renee glanced at Joshua and greeted him.

As Ariella's best friend, she saw Joshua a couple of times.

"Indeed! Miss Morrison, you've grown even more beautiful since we last met."

Joshua smiled and stared intently at Renee.

Not only was Renee the eldest unwed daughter of the Morrisons, but she was also exceptionally beautiful and her beauty was unmatched in all of the western region.

Though Ariella was beautiful as well, she could not hold a candle to Renee's beauty.

Joshua saw Renee a few times, but he could not help feeling captivated each time he saw her, so this time was no exception.

If Arielle was not next to him, he would not stop himself from staring at Renee for a while longer.

"Renee, who's this?" Arielle noticed Leon and was instantly confused as to who he was.

"This is Hugh Wolf, a friend of mine. Hugh, allow me to introduce the second daughter of the Oxfords, Ariella, and the eldest son of the Hackets, Joshua,"

Renee introduced them.

"Friend? Renee, is he your boyfriend?" Ariella glanced at Renee, then at Leon pointedly.

"What?" Renee was shocked as she did not expect Ariella to misunderstand.

"Ariella, that's nonsense. Hugh is a guest of the Morrisons, not my boyfriend," she explained.

"No? I don't think so! Renee, I saw you coming downstairs from the hotel. Don't lie!" Ariella refused to believe it and leaned closer to whisper in Renee's ear with a smirk, "Renee, you look reserved most of the time, yet here you are in a hotel with your boyfriend in broad daylight. Have you finally come to your senses?"

She even batted her eyes pointedly at Renee.

This was the best hotel in the area and for a man and a woman to be seen together coming out of a hotel room, they were likely engaging in unspeakable activity in the room.
