

The Ex-Husband's Revenge By Dragonsky

Chapter 257

Chapter 257

On top of that, she was very beautiful herself, so she quickly attracted quite a few looks at her.

As everyone looked at them, Leon and Janice were led into a room by the waiter. They sat down in front of each other.

After ordering their food, the two of them quickly fell into silence.

They did not see each other for a long time, so they became somewhat strangers to each other.

After a long time.

“Leon, how have you been the past few years?”

“Janice, how have you been?”

Leon and Janice tried to break the silence at the same time, and they asked the same question without knowing.

After asking that, both of them were stunned, not expecting such a coincidence.

Janice could not help but laugh, revealing her sweet smile.

“Why are you following me?” Janice rolled her eyes at Leon.

“That...”

Leon scratched his head awkwardly, “It’s probably because we haven’t seen each other for so long, but I don’t know what to say.”

“Same here. I actually had so much I wanted to ask you, but I forgot about it the moment I met you,” Janice said demurely.

“That’s right! Time passes, and things change. I haven’t seen you in so many years, and it feels like time really is unforgiving!”

Leon could not help but lament.

“What do you mean time is unforgiving? You’re not even that old. Can you stop acting like you’re a poet?!”

Janice was amused. After that, she seemed to think about something, and she said, “What is it? Are you not over your divorce?”

“That’s definitely not the case. I was a little sad at the start, but I’ve already gotten over it. I actually feel like it’s a good thing,”

Leon shrugged and said.

“A good thing?” Janice found it strange.

During the gathering, she found out that Leon got a divorce not too long ago.

She thought that Leon would be sad, and she even thought of how she could console Leon. Yet, Leon seemed to have gotten over it without a single word from her.

“You don’t know it, but I lived like a piece of trash with the Mansons. I even lost my dignity as a man...” Leon laughed at himself, briefly telling Janice what happened.

“Your ex-wife is so despicable! You were loyal to her, but she went seducing another man. She even kicked you out of the family. How vicious!” Janice seemed very angry for Leon’s sake.

Leon smiled, not saying anything.

If he had not been kicked out of the Mansons, he would not have coincidentally saved Iris, and he would not have found out about his inheritance.

It was probably fated. There was nothing to complain about.

Janice suddenly remembered something, “That’s right, Leon. What was up with Cynthia Shear at the hotel? Is she your new girlfriend?”

“Of course not! She’s a Shear, a noblewoman. There’s no way she’s my girlfriend,” Leon shook his head and said.

“Then why were you dating her at that hotel?” Janice was curious.

“You misunderstood it

I was meeting her for a business deal, it wasn’t a date...” Leon explained simply.

“So that was it! I thought that you were so amazing that you managed to get with someone like that. It shocked me!”

Spread the love