The Ex-Husband's Revenge By Dragonsky Chapter 258

Cynthia realized that she overthought things.

After all, Leon was just an orphan. He did not have much of a background.

Furthermore, Cynthia was the jewel of the Shears. She's not just immensely beautiful, but rich and powerful as well. She had so many men after her, so how could she have her eyes on the ordinary Leon?!

"Janice, what are you working as right now?" Leon asked, wanting to know more about Janice.

"Oh, I went into a big company after I graduated. I got quite lucky, and I'm already a department manager. I make a few thousand a month."

Janice was a bit pleased with herself. After that, she remembered Leon's situation, and she said, "Leon, I remember you mentioning that you're a presidential secretary at a cosmetic company."

"That position isn't too bad, but a secretary still usually handles errands in the end. It's mostly a woman's job, and there's not much power for you, nor will you have much of a future. It's not a good long-term plan."

Saying that, Janice paused for a moment before adding, "I have quite a good relationship with the head of my department. If you're willing, why don't I recommend you to her? She could arrange for you to be a supervisor."

"If you do well, you'll get the chance to become a manager. It's better than running errands as a secretary!" Janice was quite an elite at the moment. She knew the position of a secretary very well.

If it was a female secretary, it would be easier to get the recognition of the higher-ups.

However, a male secretary was another matter. Other than running some errands, the future was very bleak.

Leon was still young. If he wasted his youth on a job without a future, it would have it harder in the future!

"There's no need, thank you for your kind thoughts. My job is quite good, I don't have any plans on getting a new job for now," Leon shook his head with a smile.

"That... Alright, everyone has their plans. If you're looking for a new job in the future, you can look for me," Janice stopped there.

To her knowledge, most presidents of companies were men. She could not understand why Leon was willing to be a man's secretary. It was too strange.

Of course, if he knew that Leon was working for an amazing beauty, the most beautiful of the four great beauties of Springfield City, she would have understood Leon!

Leon and Janice both ate as they talked. There was a lot of laughter as they seemed to relive their college days. They quickly got closer, returning to how they were before.

"Waiter, bill please!"

After they ate, Leon waved for a waiter.

"Sir, hello. Your bill will be five hundred dollars. Will you be paying by cash or credit?" The young waitress smiled politely.

"What? Five hundred? It's so expensive?!" Janice was shocked.

Even though she was the department manager at her company with a salary of a few thousand, five hundred dollars on a meal really was a bit too luxurious.

"Miss, we're one of the best restaurants in Springfield City. Five hundred is really not too expensive," the waitress still sounded polite, but there was a look of disdain in her eyes.

Initially, she saw that Janice was demure and incredibly pretty, so he thought that Janice and Leon were from some rich family.

Yet, it seemed like they were just some commoners. They really did not know their palace, coming to such an expensive place when they had no money!
