

The Ex-Husband's Revenge By Dragonsky

Chapter 362

Chapter 362

Leanne was quite unhappy as she spoke.

“Yes, your mother’s right. Leon is quite a good man,” Horace nodded, approving of Leon.

Leon was powerful, but he was not arrogant like Theodore. Instead, he was humble and well-mannered.

That was a good man who was worthy of his daughter’s future!

“Mom, dad, can you please change the topic?” Janice’s head hurt.

After coming back from the hotel, her mother was in her face the whole time, causing her a lot of grief.

“What kind of attitude is this?! You just refuse to listen no matter what I say, are you trying to frustrate me to death?” Leanne said angrily.

“Whatever, I’m going to take a walk in the park,” Janice could not stand her mother at that moment and found an excuse to go out to calm down.

She was pushed too hard by her mother, and her thoughts were affected somewhat.

She suddenly felt like she could possibly listen to her mother’s suggestion and try things out with Leon for a bit.

Even though her heart lacked a certain something for Leon, it might actually appear if they date each other for a while.

“Don’t go! Can you tell me if you’re going to agree or not first? Come back right now!” Leanne was furious.

She wanted to stop her daughter, but Janice was quick, and already went downstairs.

“This brat is going to be the death of me!”

Leanne was more and more unhappy as she thought about it. She hurried to her window, wanting to call her daughter to come back.

Janice’s family was in a three-story building in a small neighborhood.

It did not take her that long to arrive downstairs.

Leanne stood next to a window and was about to shout for her daughter when something strange happened.

From not far away, a silver-gray MPV suddenly stopped in front of Janice.

The door opened, and two muscular men wearing black masks suddenly rushed out of the car,

Janice was shocked. Before she could even react, the two men already grabbed her shoulders and forced her into the car.

Leanne was shocked at the sight. They were wearing masks, so they were not good people. She immediately realized that her daughter was in danger.

“Who are you? Why are you grabbing my daughter?!” Leanne shouted.

If the windows did not have railings on them, she would have jumped right off.

Leanne did not know if they noticed Janice at all, but they did not seem to care. Their actions were incredibly quick as they sped away!

Leanne panicked, and almost fainted on the spot.

“Leanne, what is it? What happened?” Horace realized that something was wrong when he heard Leanne’s voice, and he quickly ran out.

“Horace, it’s not good. Janice was kidnapped...”

Leanne grabbed Horace’s arm and her voice trembled.

“What?” Horace was shocked, and he hurriedly looked out the window.

The car already disappeared, and he saw nothing.

“Leanne, are you sure you weren’t mistaken? We have no money and no power. We never offended anyone either. Why would they kidnap Janice?” Horace was uncertain and wondered if Leanne mistook things.

“I’m not blind. How could I be mistaken?! They even had black masks on. They were clearly thugs,” Leanne recounted everything briefly.

“How could this happen? Who did it?”
