Not only that, but he could not help noticing how tense the entire atmosphere appeared to be, as though a fight was about to break out.

He was a little puzzled as to what happened.

“Well...” Jacob quickly briefed him on the events that transpired.

Anson was shocked to learn of all this. He immediately glanced in Leon's direction and asked in curiosity, Mister Lowe, who's this Leon Wolf that you speak of? How'd he manage to be friends with both Harvey Shear and Fane Poole? What an amazing feat!”

“I'm not sure either, but I hear he's an orphan...” Jacob replied.

“An orphan?” Anson froze at this.

However, knowing that Leon hailed from nothing and was not the son of a powerful family made him change his mind about the man. He could not help growing disdainful of Leon at this.

“Mister Collins, Harvey, and Fane are trying to bully me. You have to help me...” Jacob added quickly.

“Don't worry, Mister Lowe. We're friends, and I won't leave you here for death,” Anson said good-naturedly but did not agree to help him.

“Are you trying to cross the Shears, Mister Collins?” Harvey said, scowling.

“Of course not! In my opinion, Harvey, this isn't a huge problem at all. Why don't I try to mediate this conflict so that things won't be so tense? Can you do that for my sake?”

“Well, how are you going to do that?” Harvey asked, beginning to relax.

Now that Anson joined in, both sides were finally of equal power. It would be great if they could successfully mitigate the conflict, but even if a fight broke out, no one would be at a disadvantage!

“Why don't you get Leon Wolf to let Xander go, and in return, Mister Lowe won't hold him responsible for Xander's injuries? That way, both sides will benefit from a peace offering!” Anson suggested, smiling.

“That sounds fine!” Jacob piped up. As long as Leon was willing to let Xander go, his dignity would be preserved. Anson's suggestion would benefit him.

Even though just a few minutes ago he demanded Leon get on his knees to beg for mercy and break his arm in compensation, he was willing to let that go in favor of a peace offering!

With both Harvey and Fane on Leon's side, this would be an insensible request!

“What do you think, Harvey?” Anson turned to Harvey.

The Four Major Families were more influential than the Southern and Northern Kings, which was why Anson asked Harvey's opinion, thinking that he was the mastermind behind all this. As long as Harvey compromised, he was certain that Fane and Leon would agree too.

“Um...” Both Harvey and Fane turned to stare at Leon.

When he saw their reactions, a surge of warmth spread across Anson's face in embarrassment. He went into this thinking that Harvey was the boss, but it turned out, the orphan was the one who called the shots!

This astounded him.

“No! Xander and Brody were both involved in kidnapping my friend, and I will not forgive them for this! I won't let him go so easily!” Leon shook his head in determination.

“Are you trying to embarrass me?” the color drained from Anson's face.

“This has nothing to do with you at all; it's a question of principles!” Leon said calmly.

“Well said, punk. I've never come across anyone who dares to one-up me like this—you're certainly the first!
