Chapter 381

Read The Ex-Husband's Revenge By Dragonsky Chapter 381

“Seeing that both Harvey and Fane chose to stand on your side, I’ll give you another chance; if you let Xander go right now, I can pretend as though nothing happened and let you walk out of here unscathed. If you choose not to, however, you’ll bear the consequences of my wrath!” Anson began to get angry.

It was one thing for Harvey to embarrass him in front of everyone—after all, they were equal in ranking and thus could not do anything about it, but this was not the same for Leon.

How dare this orphan refuse his peace offer!

Anson was outraged by this.

“1...” Leon was just about to reply when all of a sudden, Janice interrupted him with an expression of concern, “Leon, why don’t we just let this go? After all, I didn’t even get hurt.”

She tugged on his sleeve in an attempt to get his attention.

She always thought that Leon’s friendship with the Shears and Fane was built on sheer chance and luck, but now, after witnessing both Harvey and Fane insist on standing up for him, she finally realized that she underestimated Leon all this while!

This was no doubt a shocking revelation for her.

However, despite the shock, she still knew that Leon’s status was far below that of Jacob and Anson, considering he did not hail from a powerful or influential family at all.

Therefore, even if Harvey and Fane could help him now, this did not mean they could protect him forever. She did not dare to imagine the consequences if Leon were to cross both Jacob and Anson just for her sake!

She could not bear to let Leon suffer for her sake.

“No! I’ve already said this before—I will stop at nothing until I get revenge for how they treated you!” Leon declared, swatting Janice’s cold hand away.

The truth was, he knew full well how risky it was for him to cross Jacob and Anson, but he believed that true men should stick up for the people they loved.

He already began thinking of Janice as a close family member, and anyone who dared to hurt his family had to pay the price!

This was non—negotiable!

“What an arrogant boy! Well, Mister Lowe and I have vowed to protect Xander, and I’m curious to see just how you’ll match up against the two of us!” Anson said, cackling.

Xander and Brody were overjoyed to hear this. They were disappointed when Jacob almost surrendered but, to their surprise, their entire situation took a turn for the better when Anson appeared!

Even though there were two against two, this was still the Northern King’s territory, and Anson and Jacob would have a clear advantage.

If a fight were to break out here and the Northern King was alerted, this would no doubt reflect poorly on Leon and he would have to meet the Northern King’s wrath!

“Anson, pick on someone your size, like me! If you insist on helping Jacob Lowe, I shall challenge you to a duel!” Harvey laughed as he stepped forward to block Anson’s way.

Fane, on the other hand, began to hesitate.

The Northern and Southern Kings were enemies, and if his only opponent was Jacob, he would undoubtedly stand on Leon’s side, but Anson’s appearance changed everything.

Anson was the heir to the Collins family and was one of the youngest martial artists in Springfield City—his power was on par with that of Harvey’s.

Therefore, if Fane were to continue helping Leon and inadvertently make Anson his enemy, this would bring inconvenience and possible danger to his father, the Southern King!
