Chapter 106 Confusion

Tristan looked at Zoe's reaction in front of him.

His eyes became even darker.

It was indeed Valerie.

Why was she in the Fisher family?

All Tristan's doubts rushed into his mind.

He clenched his fist and, for some reason, felt a slight relaxation in his heart.

Not dead.

She did not die.

Tristan let out a sigh from his mouth, with a hidden needle in his heart that had been there for a long time.

Disappeared quietly.

A knot in the heart unraveled.

Suddenly, he realized that no one else at home knew

His bad character made him smile again.

"Zoe, don't be nervous. I wouldn't tell anyone. When you were little, at the amusement park..."

"I have already met your sister."

After speaking, he draped his coat over Zoe and returned to the hall alone.

He was searching for Kieran's figure

The corners of his mouth curled upwards in a smile.

In the midst of a crowd, I spotted Kieran engaged in a conversation with some one else.

He watched as they were communicating, sitting on the side, then turned his head to look at Reese.

Indeed.

It was similar to what he had guessed.

Valerie is currently with the Fisher family, and the Fisher family is still treating her well.

There was naturally bias against the Horton family.

No wonder Samantha's attitude toward herself was getting worse and worse during the previous competitions.

He looked at Reese in front of Galen, as well as the main members of the Fisher family, and received nothing but their cold expressions.

And there was also perfunctory handling.

Tristan suddenly found it very funny.

He focused his attention on Kieran, waiting for him to be available.

Kieran caught a glimpse of Tristan staring at him intently from the side.

In those eyes, there was a hint of mockery.

Tsk.

I said a few words to my friend, and he stepped back, pulling Tristan and walking toward the corner.

"What's the matter? Don't waste my time."

"Hey, big brother's temper is still so bad."

Kieran's eyebrows furrowed tightly.

He didn't want to have too much communication with Tristan, he looked at Tristan sharply, waiting for him to speak.

"Oh, don't be so harsh. I came to ask you, I heard that you saw a little girl today who looks a lot like Valerie. If it really was Valerie, what would you do?"

Tristan's words sent a shiver down Kieran's spine.

He excitedly approached and tightly grabbed Tristan's shoulders.

"What were you? Are you saying that girl was really Valerie?"

"Hiss! Are you crazy? I haven't seen her, so how would I know if it's Valerie or not? I was just saying 'if!'"

Rubbing his sore shoulder, he forcefully pushed Kieran away and looked at him with a displeased expression on his face.

Kieran snapped back to reality and realized that he had just lost his temper.

"Cough, cough, if it really was Valerie, of course she would be brought back home!"

"Hmm."

Tristan, who was still massaging his own shoulders, suddenly burst into a cold laughter.

"Bring her home? And then what? I heard she ran away on her own back then. After so many years have passed, do you think she would still be willing to go back?"

Tristan's words tore open the deepest layer of shame in Kieran's heart.

In my mind, I recalled the girl's attire just now.

If what Valerie said was true, then her current life is no worse than the Horton family's.

Did I bring it back just for her own good?

For the first time, Kieran had a question.

His rare silence made Tristan particularly pleased.

“I didn’t feel like talking to you, I went to rest.”

“You couldn’t rest, Mom was looking for a partner for us, so you couldn’t rest today either.”

Tsk!

Tristan’s recently lifted good mood suddenly plummeted to the bottom.

But I couldn’t refuse Reyna directly.

Chapter 107 I’m No Longer Part of the Horton Family

““Hahaha, you don’t have to worry, just like Derry said, I still have a stake at Calvin’s place, they can’t take me away.”

It doesn’t matter even if I encountered someone from the Horton family today. I had my own way to deal with it.

And, when I turned eighteen, I definitely had to move out on my own.

“Don’t worry, do you remember a few years ago when they arranged my funeral? My household registration has already been cancelled, even if they find me, I won’t admit it.”

The words were spoken without a doubt.

Now all the favorable conditions were on Valerie’s side.

But Derek still had some concerns.

Over the past decade, although she has developed a good relationship with her family, he always wanted to deepen his bond with her.

She would shrink back.

Clasped the fists tightly.

The appearance of the Horton family this time, for him, was neither good nor bad.

“Alright, you guys should also hurry back. The protagonist cannot stay away for too long.”

Derek showed his uneasiness for the first time in front of Mics.

Mien’s eyes widened

Confusedly, I followed Derek out

“What’s wrong with you?”

Mica cautiously grabbed Derek’s arm and asked.

Derek let out a long sigh

“Mien. I asked you, did you ever want to have a heart-to-heart talk with Val?”

“Ah? Yes, yes!”

Speaking of this, Mica straightened his back, not wanting to embarrass himself in front of him.

“How come, haven’t you talked about it?”

With a look of doubt and a hint of mockery on his face, Derek glanced briefly,

“Did you succeed in chatting with her? Do you know what she was thinking inside?”

Click...

The newly arisen pride was shattered after Derek’s words were spoken.

Shattered into pieces.

“Um... no...”

40 Wouchers

This is where the problem lies.

Valerie's heart door simply couldn't be opened!

He sighed wearily.

"Let's go back to the hall, the banquet will be over after lunch."

After it ended, I will have a good chat with Valerie.

They had just left on their front feet.

Afterwards, Galen said that he was old and decided to come back and rest.

When he walked into the study, the door of the room was opened again.

It was Valerie.

"Valerie, what did you want to tell Grandpa?"

Galen, who received Valerie's message in the lobby, immediately told the guests to leave and went to the study.

You should know that Valerie would never send a message unless something happened!

Realizing that something was not right, Galen's heart started to beat unusually fast.

"Grandpa, I'm sorry for the trouble, but I need you to run an errand."

Valerie apologized to Galen with a slight bow, feeling embarrassed.

Oh dear! Girl! Didn't I say you don't have to treat grandpa like this!"

Galen reluctantly approached and took Valerie's hand, sitting down on the sofa.

“So, what was it that you wanted to talk to Grandpa about?”

Valerie was also not vague and spoke out her thoughts.

“Grandpa, today the Horton family found me. One person has already recognized me, although she promised not to tell anyone else in the family.”

“But just in case, I still want to move out for a while...”

“No way!!”

Before Valerie finished speaking, Galen immediately stood up, raised his voice, and prevented Valerie from continuing.

“Grandpa, I, I didn’t say I wouldn’t come back, I just went out to stay for a few days.”

Galen closed his mouth.

He is already in his 70s this year, and the only thing that really concerns him now is Valerie.

I heard that she was moving out at the first moment.

His heart couldn’t bear it.

“Grandfather, a few years ago, when the Horton family arranged my funeral, in order to give me a household registration and facilitate the process, I approached Jayvion and became a part of Jayvion’s family...”

“It’s an emergency now, if they really found out I was with the Fisher family, they would definitely come to deal with you.”

When the departing car appeared at the door, Valerie let out a long sigh.

Finally, I could leave.

Today, the Horton family deliberately gained some attention for themselves, albeit small, but it was enough.

With the savings she had accumulated over the past few years, she was ambitious and pondered how she could rival the Horton family with her own power.

I turned my head and glanced at the Fisher family's mansion.

She pursed her lips.

Grandpa, Derry, everyone, wait for me to come back!

With a determined mind, Valerie held her own device and entered the car.

Galen stood in the study, watching as the car at the back door grew farther and farther away.

He suddenly sighed, slightly hunched his back, and watched the car getting farther and farther away.

"Master... We could have kept Miss from being discovered by the Horton family, so why did we let her go?"

The butler stood behind Galen, watching his figure.

Uncertain questioning.

"Ah... Valerie, these past few years, although she has been studying hard and our relationship has gradually improved, there is still a barrier between us."

Today, she didn't actually need to go out herself, but she still slowly made the Horton family's youngest daughter notice her, as well as the eldest of the Horton family.

The Fisher family knew well what she wanted to do.

So Galen understood that he couldn't stop if

"Please keep an eye on her and help her secretly whenever she faces any difficulties."

"Yes, sir."

The butler lowered his head and nodded.

Galen glanced outside for a moment, but eventually turned back to the hall.

After Galen's face came out, it was completely different from before entering.

The air pressure on him was lower than before.

Derek looked at Galen's expression, and his heart skipped a beat.

A bad thought crossed his mind.

"Mica, go and see if Val is still in the room."

"Ah?"

Didn't you just come out not long ago?

"Go quickly!"

Derek's eyes darkened suddenly, and Mica was frozen in place by his sudden senmuelles

"Okay. I went to see "

Derek turned the wine glass in his hand and walked toward Galen.

"Grandpa, what happened?"

Galen looked at his grandson who was coming over.

The recently arisen had mood suddenly improved.

He was curious to see how his grandson would react after knowing that Valerie had left.

“Not much.”

I will not answer right away,

Derek looked at Galen, his eyes narrowed slightly

“I have already asked Mica to go and see Val’s room. Are you sure you don’t want to tell me?”

Galen widened his eyes, indeed, after nurturing him for so long, his intuition was truly extraordinary.

“After the banquet was over, we will talk properly. It’s not convenient to explain it to you now.”

Looking at the banquet hall filled with so many people, Derek started to feel a bit anxious,

The gaze toward the Horton family became even more unfriendly.

The banquet ended only after lunch in the afternoon. It was originally planned to continue until the evening, but Galen rested in the evening.

Derek ended the party with a thoughtful expression and a blank face,

The banquet ended, and the Fisher family watched as the last wave of people tell. They immediately gathered in the living room.

“Valerie left, she said she wanted to live alone.”

Galen got straight to the point

The reason for not mentioning it is because of encountering the Horton family

But everyone knew it in their hearts.

Chapter 109 I Won't Go Back

Yume on, let's take off our shoes and don't rum inside.”

Wearing her work uniform, Valerie smiled as she watched the child in front of her take off their shoes and am into the children's playground.

Valerie, who had been away for a few days, did not accept the job arranged fo r her by Galen. Instead, she secretly went to the mall under Kieran's supervisi on.

She wanted to observe the flow trend inside in order to lay a foundation for he rself

Among all the positions, only this shopping mall had the largest children's play ground, which hired part-time workers.

This children's amusement park was built from the first floor to the second floo r

The area was spacious, and there were staff members taking care of it.

This was the unique feature of this shopping mall.

Valerie's position was at the entrance, collecting tickets and also taking care of the children's shoes.

Just finished dealing with the last child, Valerie let out a slight sigh.

He reached out and took out his water bottle, and drank a sip of cold water.

Her eyes occasionally glanced toward a direction on the second floor.

I have been here for three days.

1046

From the first day I arrived, there was a gaze, faintly present, on me.

She looked over and there was no one.

This situation had been going on for three days, and after confirming that it was harmless, she stopped caring about it.

Now, focus on your work and carefully observe the entire work system of the mall.

Today

was a school day, so there weren't many people in the mall, and there weren't many children playing either.

Valerie

watched the children inside playing happily, with much gentler expressions.

She lifted her head and suddenly squinted her eyes.

On the second floor of the elevated track, for some unknown reason, there was a child lying outside!

"Manager!!!! Hurry up and send someone over there!"

Valerie's pupils contracted as she grabbed the collar of the resting store manager.

Her voice was filled with anxiety as she pointed her finger toward the little boy.

She did not shout loudly. The store manager followed Valerie's finger and instantly turned pale.

This track was built in the air tunnel facing each other on the highest building.

On top of the building, there was a green net, which served as the ceiling of the children's playground.

Valerie looked between the two tunnels and noticed a gap above them.

That little boy must have crawled out from there!

He was too young to understand what this gap was for

So he crawled out, but the height froze the boy in place, he didn't dare to move.

"Boohoo, Mom!"

The boy dared not look down and could only use loud cries to draw everyone's attention to him.

"Oh no! What's going on!! How did a child end up climbing outside!"

"It's so high here! If I fall, I will definitely break a bone!"

The staff immediately ran to the side of the aerial tunnel.

But they were helpless, after all, that gap was something they simply couldn't climb out of!

Valerie's eyeballs were rolling crazily, looking for somewhere to climb up. Just as she was contemplating, an old lady beside her took off her shoes and was about to rush in.

"Ma'am! Don't get excited, if you move around in your current state, your grandson will get excited and become restless."

The store manager prevented the old lady from going past.

The staff members have already gone to the warehouse to find a ladder and see if there is a suitable one.

If not, then I can only join the armed police.

Valerie snapped out of it and approached, grabbing the grumbling old lady

“Ma’am! Don’t worry! We will find a way to rescue him.”

The old lady, with red eyes, glared fiercely at Valerie.

“Pah! That’s because he’s not your child! If he were your own child, would you still be so calm?! Heartless creature!”

Chapter 110 I Won’t Go Back

This danger was only relieved when Valerie climbed up and hugged the little boy.

Kieran had been looking up at Valerie with a worried expression on his face.

It was not until the armed police arrived and rescued the two individuals that it finally came to an end.

“Valerie.”

After Valerie came down, Kieran went straight up and tried to reach out and grab Valerie’s arm.

Valerie managed to avoid the outcome.

“Mr. Horton, let’s talk after I finished work.”

Kieran looked at his sister, whom he had been searching for so long, and now she was really avoiding him like a stranger.

He felt very uncomfortable in his heart.

Valerie, on the other hand, didn't care about what he thought. She returned to her own workstation. With such an incident happening today, her work surely ended early.

Kieran didn't inspect anymore, just stood aside, waiting for Valerie to finish.

The person coming down from the second floor saw Kieran appear and no longer approached, concealing their presence.

Chapter 1101 Wort Go Back (1)

The work ended early, and the relevant personnel went to inspect the gap in the aerial tunnel, intending to fill it up.

Valerie came out carrying a canvas bag and saw Kieran waiting outside.

"Valerie..."

Kieran nervously looked at Valerie. After searching for so many years, but suddenly appearing in front of him, he didn't know what to say.

In the end, why was I so persistent in finding Valerie?

An awkward emotion arose in his heart.

"Valerie, let's have lunch first... Big brother will take you to eat."

Setting aside his thoughts, Kieran opened the car door for Valerie. Valerie glanced at Kieran and followed him upstairs.

The two of them sat in the back seat again, in the same position as when Kieran used to drive her to school back in the day.

"Mr. Horton, I needed to speak with you."

Kieran's fingers trembled involuntarily when Valerie called him Mr. Horton.

"Okay, okay, Valerie, you said, and... can you call me big brother..."

“Mr. Horton, I was no longer a member of the Horton family, and my household registration was gone.”

This sentence shut down what Kieran wanted to say.

Valerie became colder and more distant than before.

18:40 Vouchers

This made Kieran extremely embarrassed and sad.

The car once again fell into an awkward atmosphere.

The driver sitting in front, his eyes never stopped staring at Valerie since they met.

Is this the lady who ran away that year?

His eyes occasionally glanced at the rearview mirror, gazing at Valerie.

This matter should have been told to other colleagues earlier!

Kieran brought Valerie to a high-end hotel.

This should have been a place under his control.

“Valerie, what do you need from our eldest brother? You said, as long as it’s something I can do.”

Valerie also sat down without hesitation, but did not order anything.

“Mr. Horton, I can just talk, no need to eat.”

Kieran, who had just received the menu, froze in his seat.

“You, go ahead and speak.”

He held the menu in his hand for a while, but in the end, he sighed and put it down, giving in.

“Mr. Horton, let me make it clear that my household registration is no longer listed in the Horton family’s records. However, I have been kindly adopted by an other family, so I am no longer a member of the Horton family and will not return to them.”

Valerie’s calm explanation in this paragraph caused Kieran’s heart to ache.

Her hands were placed on the table, unlike Zoe, her hands were covered in yellowed calluses, extremely rough.

There were also some small scars on it.

How much hardship did this require?

He opened his mouth.

“Okay... I understood.”

A huge sense of loneliness instantly enveloped Kieran.

She was willing to endure such hardships in order to not return to the Horton family.
