

The Revived Me Surrounded by Adoration as a Supporting Role by Dedaul Chapter 158 -

Chapter 158 Truly Envious

“Sarah!”

Sarah’s mother is now furious, and her words are squeezed out from between her teeth.

Looking at my well-behaved daughter, her hair was messed up like this, and she herself suggested it.

As soon as she thought about it, she felt uncomfortable.

From junior high school onwards, she suddenly rebelled against herself, catching herself off guard and causing herself a lot of trouble.

The husband also blamed her for not managing well and deducted a lot of things for himself.

Now she is in the hospital, so she can’t blame him, but she will have a different opinion once she gets home.

In a short while, the police arrived. They had received news that Sarah had woken up and immediately came to the hospital to prepare a statement.

“Alright, family members, please step outside for a moment. We need to take a statement now.”

The police officers pushed the people out of the ward.

There was only one captain left inside.

He looked at Sarah, who had cut her hair short, and his eyes focused on the injured area.

But it was wrapped in gauze, so it was impossible to tell how much there actually was.

Hmm...

Let's start by describing the severity of the injury.

"Hello, classmate. Sorry to bother you. Are you available now to cooperate with our police and make a statement?"

Sarah nodded her head, accepting the request.

Next, she answered the police's questions very seriously.

Until the captain asked.

"Why were you there? Whose house did you stay at? How many days did you stay?"

When this problem came up, she hesitated directly.

He hesitated and didn't say it out immediately.

This was my own problem, I couldn't involve Valerie and Phil anymore.

"I, I... it was me who ran to my classmate's house, hoping that she would take me in. It was me who begged her not to tell anyone."

"Why did you escape from home? Did something hurt you at home? Don't be afraid, speak up."

The captain furrowed his brows for a moment, then quickly relaxed them, without revealing his confusion.

He asked Sarah questions in a soft and gentle voice.

But when asked this question, Sarah felt a sudden heaviness in her mouth.

Not even a word could come out.

I could only tightly clutch the blanket on the bed to express my refusal.

The captain waited for a few more minutes and let out a long sigh.

“Classmate, here’s the thing, if you don’t tell the truth, we will directly take away your classmates and Beatrice, who saved you today, to the police station for questioning.”

After all, you had been missing for almost a month, and this matter was still very important.

Even if they didn’t do anything bad to you, they still have to receive the corresponding punishment. If you speak up, their punishment will be relatively smaller.

As for your classmate, since she was not yet of legal age, she would only receive our criticism.

The captain carefully explained to Sarah.

Sure enough, when she heard that others would be punished because of her.

Sarah immediately lifted her head, with a look of confusion and panic.

“No, it’s not related to them at all. It was all in the past, and I insisted on disturbing them!”

Sarah was so excited that her neck turned red and her eyes were filled with tears.

The captain looked at Sarah like this, and he also felt a hint of pity in his heart.

To be honest, he didn't want to make Sarah tell the truth in this way either.

But the time consumed has already been a bit too much.
