Chapter 131 The Secret Base (1)

Derek finished washing the dishes and looked at Valerie in the living room, with a gentle smile on his face.

“Val, do you have the energy now? Accompany me to a place.”

“Yes! Let’s go, Derry.”

Valerie had long been ready, smiling happily in the living room, waiting for Derek.

Looking at the well-behaved Valerie, Derek’s heart was almost melting.

He approached and naturally took her hand, walking toward the bike shed and riding on the electric scooter.

“Where did we go?”

Valerie asked again, still not giving up.

“Keep it a secret, and hold on to me tightly.”

He grabbed Valerie’s hand and made her wrap her arms around his waist.

Valerie froze her body, her face turning red, but she obediently leaned in.

Feeling the slowly approaching warmth on his back, Derek felt extremely satisfied.

They drove away in a car.

Soon, the little car returned to the door, but then it drove away again.

Until they arrived at Derek's secret base.

"Huh? Why did you bring me here?"

"There was a surprise I wanted to show you. Originally, I had planned to show it to you after we were openly together in the future."

But now it's almost over.

The two of them held hands and came to a small hill. They arrived in front of the trees, and Valerie naturally wanted to let go of their hands and sit down.

But he was tightly grabbed by Derek

Derek led Valerie toward the back of the tree with a mysterious smile.

I was very familiar with this place, and I had also been to see it before. It was just a forest.

But Derek led her inside, twisting and turning, until they arrived at a vast open land.

There were only a few trees over there.

Unlike other trees that naturally grow on the mountain, those few were still somewhat thin and weak.

But Derek stopped in front of these few trees.

"Val, when you first came to our house, I still remember you had a bunch of fruits in your hands."

And on that evening, I ran out from the Horton family, holding this pile of fruits.

The image remained vivid in her mind.

She approached and touched these fruit trees.

Although short, it was very vigorous.

Radiating vitality.

The color of the leaves above was also particularly bright.

“Thank you! Derry!”

A wave of gratitude surged in her heart as Derek approached and gently ruffled her hair with a smile.

“No need to be polite, I just want to help you preserve what you value.

His eyes were filled with tenderness, but there was a hint of sadness in the depths of his eyes.

When I watched the live broadcast at that time, I saw her leaving the variety show with a smile. However, the next day, she was in a mess, with many broken fruits inside her coat.

She herself didn’t know where she wanted to go, but she still held onto this basket of fruits tightly.

How important this must have been.

“Derry, I understand the reasoning, but this still needs to be taken into consideration. Emotions are a two-way street, and only by nurturing them can we achieve stability and happiness in our relationship.”

Otherwise, I would foolishly keep watching you do things, and eventually there would be cracks.

Valerie quickly calmed herself down, as it was not the time to let emotions take over.

Seeing Valerie's emotions stabilize, Derek drove straight to the fastest speed and arrived at the doorstep.

"Dad! Mom!"

From a distance, Derek called out to Meredith and Raymond, who were about to get into the car.

The two of them had not even stepped in with their front feet, and then- they moved back out.

Is it really true?

“Yes, your mother is right. The old man is very angry now, and I don’t know what the Horton family did to make him say that he wants to reorganize.”

Raymond glanced at Meredith and, following her lead, earnestly answered Derek’s question.

Seeing that both of them said so, Valerie, who was behind, reduced her confusion slightly.

Tucker and Calvin were walking in the hallway, both of them remained silent.

In the end, Tucker broke the deadlock.

"Do you think what Grandpa just said to Mica, that there is really only the matter of Valerie and Derry getting engaged?"

“Do you believe such words? It’s already what time, would grandpa have such a boring time?”

Calvin stared at Tucker like an idiot, but his tone wasn’t enthusiastic.

As the oldest person, Randal eventually stepped forward and spoke. Everyone nodded in agreement and waited in the hallway, discussing quietly.

In the ward, Mica continued to perform cardiac resuscitation on Galen.

“Doctor, do you need a replacement?”

Mica watched the heart rate while thinking about what method to use to save Galen.

Sweat started to trickle down the forehead, drop by drop, sliding along the cheeks.

Suddenly, the heart rate began to return to normal, and Galen slowly opened his eyes.

Mica widened his eyes in shock and looked at Galen, who was awake with delight, although he hadn’t fully understood what was going on.

This paragraph once again made Mica’s eyes well up with bitterness.

Mica quietly took deep breaths under the mask, making sure no one noticed.

The other medical staff in the ward couldn’t hear clearly what the two of them were whispering about, so they just looked at each other, waiting for Mica to speak.

After all, among those present, only Mica had the strongest ability.

“I knew, Grandpa.”

Thinking of the old man’s instructions, Mica cleared his throat.

“Grandfather’s health was not good, but it could be alleviated to some extent. Now we can only let him rest well and not disturb him too much. The environment should also be kept quiet.”

After speaking, the whole family fell silent.

Everyone stood in their place, quietly watching Galen, who was surrounded by the bed.

Galen felt so healthy that he was about to burst into laughter.

“Don’t surround me like this, watching me like monkeys?”

“We listened and knew it ourselves, after all, Derek only invited him alone.”

That we appeared was an offense to them.

Calvin’s newly ignited heart was instantly extinguished.

I could only hide behind and listen to the important information in frustration.

Mica tightly clenched Galen’s report in his hand for a while, but eventually he reluctantly closed his eyes.

“Derek, I can only say it was my fault. I was arrogant and thought my medical skills were impressive, but today I couldn’t figure out what the underlying factors were in my grandfather’s body.”

Now we can only let grandpa rest and recuperate. If he rests for a long time, it will be good for his health. I will also help out with the family.

“You couldn’t see it now, don’t worry.”

A calm male voice once again resounded from a distant place.

The scene shifts to the second time when Valerie was being picked on by the people at the orphanage.

This time, before they even started, the pebbles began to fly toward her.

The group of troublemakers bullied others but couldn’t find the person who threw the stone.

I had to leave with a heavy heart before the pain of throwing this pebble got worse.

Afterwards, when Valerie was picking up plastic bottles, those inexplicably appeared empty bottles beside her.

When the walls of the room were leaking and there was water all over the floor, those discarded pieces of paper came in through the door crack, giving me the opportunity to spread them on the ground.

The onlooker Valerie began to keep silent, just silently watching her past self.

When I was in difficulty, suddenly ‘Mr. Long Legs’ helped me.

At that time, Valerie didn't think so much, but when she saw herself as an observer, she realized.

At that time, when I saw 'Mr. Long Legs' coming to help me, there was joy and relief on my face.

She reached out her hands, wanting to touch her past self.

"Ah, I don't know where to find thicker and better clothes. The weather is so cold, Valerie only wore so little."

The familiar sound that couldn't be any more familiar entered Valerie's ears.

She looked incredulously toward the back following the sound.

Almost transparent Galen, crouching behind, was pondering where to find better clothes for her to wear.

"Grandfather!"

Valerie shouted loudly.

I wanted to approach him and touch him, but there was a transparent barrier in front of me, preventing Valerie from moving forward.

She could only watch as Galen did everything for her.

She was extremely shocked in her heart. Was her Mr. Long Legs from the previous life her grandfather?!

faint and his anxious expression.

After waking up, Galen followed closely behind me, never leaving my side.

A face full of worries.

Her lips trembled until Galen heard the doctor announce his own countdown to death.

Galen's tears ultimately pierced Valerie's heart.

Silently, with tears of pain held back, Galen embraced himself, wanting to burst into loud sobs.

But those hands still passed through her body.

Valerie didn't feel like continuing to watch.

"Why did you show me this?"

With a hint of choking, Valerie asked with red eyes.

However, neither of them answered immediately, and the solemn atmosphere could also be felt, indicating that their moods were not very good.

The scene shifts to the last mountain I climbed.

At this moment, she appeared sickly all over her body, with a gaunt figure.

Before I left, I used to be like this.

As Valerie watched her departure once again, a slight ripple of emotion stirred in her heart.

The feeling before death was very subtle.

The calm male voice suddenly spoke slowly, his tone gentle, as if he wanted Valerie to relax a little.

Then slowly, they narrated the exchange cost between the two of them.

“Little girl, after grandpa woke up this time, the punishment was over, but on the other hand, he didn’t have much time left...”

“Why!!! Haven’t I already taken over Grandpa’s terminal illness? Then why does Grandpa still have to bear all this?”

Valerie didn’t understand. She shouted excitedly toward the empty sky.

“I was still young, I could endure it for my grandfather again! This time it’s not a terminal illness, it’s okay!”

Valerie patted her chest and anxiously tried to make herself understood to the two of them.

Unable to hold back her emotions, Valerie suddenly burst out, speaking loudly and pleading with tears in her eyes to these two mysterious individuals.

Since I entered the Fisher family, my grandfather’s love for me can be said to surpass everyone else’s.

With a gentle smile on oneself, all the good things were taken for oneself at the first time.

For her, he even personally picked off the flowers worth hundreds of thousands in his yard, put them in a pot, and gave them to Valerie.

Anything is fine for oneself, just don’t let oneself see a girl cry.

He quickly called out to his partner standing by.

“You quickly need to figure out a solution!”

“I was about to say, don’t rush me.”

The two of them muttered for a while, and then a calm male voice spoke up, gently addressing Valerie.

“Little girl, calm down first and listen to what we have to say.”

Valerie had been trying hard to keep herself calm, and at this moment she heard them calling her, with a gentle tone and even a hint of soothing comfort.

She sobbed, trying to stop herself from crying.

Valerie's mind gradually cleared, and upon hearing Caleb's words, she also understood the sequence of events and the outcome.

She said softly with a slightly anxious tone.

"Two brothers, I'm sorry for my attitude toward you earlier, but I really want to see Grandpa get better. I'm a little anxious."

"So as long as I had it and could take it out, I would definitely take it out."

The two of them smiled silently at each other. Suddenly, Archie stepped forward, extended his finger, and poked the face he had been thinking about for a long time.

"Oh! It's really soft! Caleb, come and poke it too!"

Archie's eyes widened instantly, and he quickly grabbed Caleb's hand, urging him to come and poke Valerie's face.

The two of them poked cautiously, completely lacking the tension that should have been present at the moment.

Not eating or drinking and only relying on nutrient solution, the body was still very weak.

Galen watched Valerie slowly waking up.

Recalling a dream, she remembered her two grandsons saying that she had severed ties with her relatives in exchange for her own health in this lifetime.

Although she doesn't have much contact with the Horton family now, it is not an easy thing to actually say that she has cut off ties with family members who are not related to her by blood.

Twice, Valerie came to take the responsibility for herself.

She still smiled foolishly.

How could there be such a silly granddaughter?

Galen hoarsely spoke, his eyes fixed on Valerie.

Valerie's eyes cleared up, and she turned her head to look at Galen.

The old man smiled kindly at himself, with a slight sense of weakness all over his body.
