

The Revived Me Surrounded by Adoration as a Supporting Role by Dedaul Chapter 26 -

Chapter 26 Be Targeted

Valerie took a deep breath with her nose to relieve her discomfort.

She stopped and pulled Mica to her.

“If you want to take off your glasses. just do it. It’s okay.”

Mica was shocked to hear that.

“I’ll take them off tomorrow...”

Valerie shrugged her shoulders and let it go.

They had their lunch quietly and had classes peacefully.

But the relationship between Valerie and Mica was well grounded.

In the next cooking class and gym class, the students needed partners. Naturally, Valerie and Mica were together.

And they talked more and more casually.

It made some students in the class envy Mica.

Kids were usually fond of people who were stronger.

Valerie stood out and fought back the third graders. It deeply moved her class mates.

They wanted to approach Valerie now, but none of them was brave enough to make a move.

Because they had been mean to Valerie.

“Valerie, I think the others have something to say to you.”

Mica was sensitive. He noticed kids around and whispered to Valerie, who was doing stretching exercises beside him.

“I know.”

Mica closed his mouth. Now he understood why the others didn't dare to talk to Valerie.

Earlier, when people put thumbtacks under Valerie's table, Mica didn't join them. But he also didn't stop them.

Moreover, Mica had even threatened Valerie.

Thinking about it, Mica felt more and more ashamed.

He felt so awkward that he wanted to stamp his feet.

Mica understood that the students were too ashamed to approach Valerie.

Besides, Valerie had a strong aura.

She was always expressionless and indifferent. People were too afraid to talk to her.

The sun soon set, and the school bell rang.

Mica walked to Valerie.

“Valerie, where do you live? Do you need me to send you home?”

Without even looking at Mica, Valerie packed her school bag.

“You don't need to. I live far away. It'll take one hour to get there and go back.”

Mica opened his mouth and wanted to say something. But Valerie had already left the classroom with the school bag on her back.

“It's very kind of you.”

Derek was watching Mica and Valerie from the front. He couldn't help but laugh.

Mica immediately looked embarrassed. But he turned to Derek.

"Thank you for helping drive those people away today."

Derek waved his hand casually.

"Don't mention it. I did that because they were too noisy."

While talking, Derek grabbed his empty school bag and left the classroom. He had finished his homework and put it under his table.

Watching Derek leave, Mica pulled his schoolbag straps nervously.

He stood there and thought for a while. Then, Mica made up his mind. He ran out of the classroom and rushed to the school gate.

"Go to my grandfather's place!" Mica said to the driver.

"What? Okay."

Mica's excited tone dumbfounded the driver for a moment. But the driver reacted quickly.

Those days, Mica had been unhappy. He didn't talk and went home with his school bag gloomily.

The driver also didn't know what to do.

Mica's unusual performance today really shocked him.

The car soon entered Donald White's house, which was worth tens of millions of dollars.

"Grandpa! Grandpa!"

“Mica! What brought you here today?”

Donald put down the knife and fork in his hands, welcoming his adorable grandson with a grin.

Every time he saw Mica, Donald felt happy and warm.

“Mica, who did this to you?”

Donald looked at Mica, who was standing in front of him. He noticed the bruises on Mica’s exposed arms.

Donald could easily tell that the bruises were caused by hitting.

But Mica looked determined. There was no panic or fear in his eyes. Mica pulled down his sleeves to cover the bruises.

“Grandpa, I want to learn medical skills from you. I’ll be good and study hard! I want to be an awesome man!”

Hearing that, Donald was more furious.

“Mica, tell me. Do you get bullied at school? Is that why you want to learn from me? If so, let’s quit school. It’s my fault. I shouldn’t have sent you to school.”

While speaking, Donald started sobbing sadly. His eyes turned red.

Jennifer White, Mica’s grandmother, came to Donald and patted Donald’s shoulder softly.

She looked at Mica tenderly.

“Mica, why do you want to learn from your grandpa? Is that because you don’t want to go to school?”

Mica shook his head.

“Grandma, I want to go to school. I got bullied today, but a girl helped me. She is even shorter and younger than I am. I want to be strong so that I can protect her!”

Kids’ thoughts were simple.

They wanted to protect people who were nice to them.

As long as there was a way to be strong, they would be devoted.

Donald and Jennifer were shocked.

“I see. Mica, from today on, I’ll teach you medical skills. But remember to protect yourself well too.”

“I know! Thank you, Grandpa!”

Mica was so excited that his clear voice broke.

With a smile, Jennifer handed Mica his fork and knife. They had their dinner in the dining room simply.

The atmosphere in the class got slightly better.

Every time she came to the class, Sophie could feel that the students were nicer and nicer to Valerie.

Sophie was dissatisfied, but she didn’t dare to show it up.

It was okay as long as Sophie wouldn’t cause any trouble.

The next day, Valerie got off the bus and waited for Mica in place.

A black van pulled up in the distance. Mica with loose hair got out of the car. His stockings came up to his knees, and his fair skin was flushed because he was shy.

Mica had bright eyes like stars. People who saw them would be astonished.

Mica was a pretty little boy.

He was so adorable, like an elf lost in the jungle.

Mica embarrassedly hiked his short suit pants up.

Last night, Jennifer changed Mica's hairstyle and removed his glasses.

Mica looked totally different today.

People on the street looked at Mica with astonishment.

Mica grabbed the schoolbag straps nervously and looked at the bus station.

As he expected, Valerie was waiting for him there.

Mica was instantly happy and ran over.

"Valerie, good morning!"

Mica was in a good mood, and his tone was light.

Valerie looked over. When she saw Mica, her eyes slightly opened wide.

But Valerie acted cool soon.

"Good morning. Let's go to class."

"Okay!"

Seeing Valerie's response to his change Vaca nodded with satisfaction. Then, they went to the damn gether
