Chapter 66 She Is So Soft

Lamar didn't stop the car and began explaining carefully to Ramona at the door.

Ramona's doll-like face was serious as she listened to Lamar. After he finished speaking, the anger on her face also disappeared.

She turned her head and looked at Valerie, who was still drowsy and squinting her eyes, in the passenger seat.

She tightened the cloak around her and approached the passenger side window.

Bending down and looking inside, Valerie's little face directly reflected in Ramona's sparkling eyes.

Hmm? Why does it feel a bit familiar?

Unable to remember for a moment, Ramona moved closer and carefully looked at Valerie.

Flushed cheeks and irregular breathing.

As a weak and sickly person, Tucker's biological mother, how could she not see it.

This is definitely a cold!

"Darling! Hurry and call the family doctor!"

"Ah? What's wrong? Are you feeling unwell? Where does it hurt?"

Lamar's nerves suddenly tightened when his own wife demanded to call the family doctor.

He hurriedly came to Ramona's front, scanning up and down, with a worried expression on his face.

Ramona scoffed and rolled her eyes at Lamar.

She reached out and tapped Lamar's arm, pointing to Valerie in the passenger seat.

"The little girl was feeling unwell, she must have caught a cold from sleeping here last night."

So that's how it was.

Lamar let out a big sigh of relief and gave Valerie a complicated look before immediately turning around and calling the doctor.

Ramona, on the other hand, opened the car door and carefully picked up Valerie, placing her in her own arms.

So small, so soft...

Although the son was like this when he was young, girls are ultimately different from boys.

Ramona's mood was the same as Lamar's at the beginning, both were a wonderful feeling.

She quickened her pace and tightly wrapped Lamar's coat around Valerie, not allowing any cold wind to seep in.

"Hmm? What is this?"

Galen had just returned from watering the flowers in the garden.

I saw Ramona walking into the room with a bundle in her arms.

His face was full of confusion. What was he going to do so early in the morning?

“Dad? Good morning. I can’t explain it clearly now, but Dad, come up and take a look together.”

After Ramona finished speaking, she carried Valerie inside. At that moment, the family doctor had also put on his white coat and hurriedly followed Lamar into the room.

Galen acted quickly and grabbed Lamar’s arm.

“What were you doing? What were you carrying back with you?”

“Oh, dad, the little girl caught a cold, I brought her back to have a look.”

Lamar pushed Galen’s hand away and walked into the room in a hurry.

Galen and the butler were completely baffled by this.

However, this did not prevent Galen from taking big strides forward when he heard that Lamar had brought back a little girl.

Girl! Little girl!

He did not change his expression, but quickly walked into the room.

When Galen saw the girl on the bed for the first time, he stood still and didn’t move.

The butler, looking from behind, also widened his eyes. He exchanged a glance with Galen.

Both could see the shock in each other’s eyes.

“Lamar, where did you bring it from?”

“Ah? When I came back from work in the morning, I saw her sleeping alone in the corner of the gazebo on the slide in the park near our house.”

There were also a pile of fruits around me.

Galen and the butler locked eyes once again, but this time, Galen’s expression was a bit serious.

Lamar rarely saw such a serious expression.

My heart skipped a beat.

“Dad? Can’t we bring him back? When I called her, she shouted Tucker’s name and said Tucker is her dad...”

Lamar wanted to explain things clearly to Galen, but he was stopped by the other party.

“I knew her, she was Miss Horton from the Horton family. These days, Tucker participated in a variety show where he was her intern dad.”

These two pieces of news made Ramona and Lamar’s heads explode for a moment.

“Ah? Tucker became a father??”

“Was she the Miss of the Horton family??”

The two of them spoke out the points that shocked them, and their gaze once again turned to Valerie lying on the bed.

After all, one of them was working and didn’t have time to look at their phone, while the other went out shopping and learning flower arrangement with her sisters, and also didn’t like looking at her phone.

Naturally, I was not aware of these things.

Chapter 66 She Is So Soft

The world was really amazing.

Galen's expression still looked a bit unpleasant.

His mind had already started to speculate why Valerie would appear here alone.

You should know that the Horton family has been a one-and-a-half-hour drive away from the Fisher family.

"You guys show it to her first, and also buy some ointment to apply on her body wounds."

After Galen finished speaking, he turned around and left the room. He brought the butler with him and went to Derek's room, knocking on the door.

"Please come in."

Derek had already woken up and when he heard the knocking at the door, he thought it was the butler coming to call him for breakfast.

But the one who came in was Galen, who usually doesn't come in.

Derek's hands stopped instantly as he organized his backpack.

"Grandpa? Why did you come to my room so early in the morning?"

"Hey, brat, what's up? Why can't I enter your room anymore?"

Galen vigorously rubbed Derek's head until Derek was about to explode. Then, he reluctantly withdrew his hand and looked at Derek's messy hair, smirking triumphantly.

"Tell me, is there anything you want me to do?"

Derek would never have thought that his own grandfather would suddenly have a change of heart and come to see his beloved grandson.

He continued to pack his backpack, waiting for Galen to speak.

“Valerie came.”

Bang...

The pen case in hand was not held firmly and fell onto the table, making a crisp sound.

At the same time, in the Horton family, Reese’s coffee cup also heavily clattered on the dining table.

Valerie ran away from home, and immediately after, Jayvion quit his job in front of his grandfather and refused to take his salary.

I left the Horton family with Valerie overnight.

Although he sent a job advertisement to a specialized butler company last night.

But he still felt uneasy in his heart.

The household servants were afraid to do things boldly.

Afraid of being teased by Reese, one had to be extremely careful.

“Don’t come back, none of you!”

Reese’s chin, stubble slowly emerged, and his spirits were not so good.

Obviously, he didn’t sleep at all last night.

Chapter 67 Kieran, Be Nicer to Your Sister

Kieran’s eyes were filled with exhaustion, as he had not slept all night.

Last night, the house was like a battlefield. Valerie’s determined look when she left made it impossible for him to fall asleep.

He drank cup after cup of coffee, and the throbbing in his head came in waves . He looked at the fish-belly white sky and made a phone call to his secretary.

“Did you investigate the backgrounds of those who bullied the young lady, as you were asked to?”

“Bo, Boss, we have found it. I already sent it to your email yesterday...”

The secretary, who had just finished busying herself and lay down, startled at Kieran’s words and replied in a dazed manner.

“Take a look at which ones among them we can acquire, acquire all of them. For the ones we cannot acquire, see if there is any possibility of collaboration. If there is, cancel the acquisition. If there isn’t, spread the word that the Horton family will no longer collaborate with them in the future.”

Kieran’s sudden command made the secretary extremely unhappy, but she still obediently complied.

Who said their own salary was high?

But the secretary was puzzled.

Shouldn’t this kind of thing have been done a long time ago?

Why did you have to wait until now?

When Valerie clarified during the live broadcast, it should have been posted on the same day.

The boss was really strange.

At half past seven in the morning, which was the peak time for people to go to work or school, everyone simultaneously unlocked their phones.

All the headlines were about the Horton family explaining Valerie's previous live broadcast, warning and punishing those who bullied Valerie.

Abigail and her parents, along with their entourage, scolded and beat their own daughter severely at home in the past. They were filled with fear and apprehension, as the Horton family remained silent, which made them even more terrified.

Now it's better, the thing really happened.

They stared at their daughter, suffocating, as she looked at them with fear in her eyes. They opened their mouths.

He cursed and vented useless anger.

How come it's only now that you're sending this?

Yeah, I thought the Horton family would show up on the day Valerie livestreamed.

So many people, they must have been punished before being released.

"Oh my god!!! The company I work for is among the ones that got acquired!"

I, I also have... boohoo, please spare me, don't go bankrupt, the children also need to eat.

Well, let's leave it to fate...

People looked at this explosive news, and comments started pouring in.

Everyone was talking about whether their own company was inside or just discussing the essence of the matter.

The internet was once again filled with chaos and confusion.

But Kieran didn't care about all of this. He watched as the secretary finalized the acquisitions and, after issuing the announcement, he stood up and stretched his tired back.

Walked out of the study.

He thought all night about where Valerie would go, but in the end, he couldn't figure it out.

"Go to International Noble Primary School."

"Ah? Oh, okay..."

The drivers in front all released the handbrake and were ready to drive to the company, but Kieran suddenly changed his mind, shocking the drivers.

The incident of Miss escaping from the Horton family has already been discussed in their servants' chat group.

Does the young master think that the young lady still went to school?

Chapter 67 Kieran, Be Nicer to Your Sister

The runaway child would not go to school.

But the driver still drove toward the school.

When Kieran arrived, the school gate had just closed.

"Hey, Kieran! How did you come here?"

"Security guard, I came to see the principal."

The security guard grandfather watched as Kieran gradually transformed into a successful person after graduating.

He smiled and asked Kieran to wait for a moment while he called the principal to ask if they could come in.

"Alright, come in. By the way, Kieran, did your family recently have a sister come here to study? You can tell Grandpa, and Grandpa can also get to know your sister in the future.”

Kieran

smiled awkwardly and couldn't bring himself to say that Valerie had run away from home. He could only say that he would talk about it next time there's a chance.

Then he/she walked away with big strides, no longer continuing this awkward topic.

Shane's office was just a stone's throw away, and occasionally, crying could be heard from inside.

Kieran, who was about to knock on the door outside, hesitated for a long time but eventually decided to put his hand down and wait for them to finish before going in.

Outside, he found a chair, sat down, and used his phone to instruct his subordinates to do today's tasks.

“Boohoo...”

After a while, the door opened and there stood Sophie, with tears streaming down her face, and Wilson, looking utterly defeated. They both held the termination forms in their hands.

Kieran immediately stood up and glanced at the two destitute individuals before going to the principal's office and knocking on the door.

“You came, what do you want to talk to me about?”

Shane's mood is beyond smooth now after two troublemakers were fired.

“Mr. Fisher, um... I wanted to ask, who is my sister's homeroom teacher? I have something I want to ask.”

Shane's hand paused as he was drinking tea. He raised his chin, indicating the Sophie who had just left, the former homeroom teacher before Valerie.

“You were fired.”

“Why is this?”

Shane glanced at Kieran and slowly spoke.

“Your sister experienced such an incident at school, and as a teacher, not only did they fail to handle it properly, but they also insulted your sister and engaged in inappropriate dealings with Wilson. What do I need such a teacher for? They are polluting the campus.”

Kieran stood still, looking toward the direction Sophie had just left.

“Did she insult Valerie?!”

Why didn't Valerie speak?

At his age, how could Shane not see how Valerie was related to this family?

He drank a sip of tea and sighed.

“Kieran, you were excellent. Back in primary school, you were the pride of all our teachers, even the school itself. Look at how successful you are now.”

But the teacher didn't remember, and didn't teach you to respect the elderly and love the young, and to treat everyone equally.

Your sister was insulted by Sophie, and you only found out today, which indicates that after she went home, she didn't even tell you guys. She doesn't trust you.

I also watched the live broadcast, but you, the Horton family, only released a statement in the morning and did not speak up for her in the first place...

I didn't know what my sister was like at home, but at school, she was a very serious and well-behaved child. This was the feedback I received from all her teachers.

Kieran now felt like he couldn't even breathe.

It felt particularly uncomfortable, pressing on the chest.

Shane looked at Kieran like this and let out a long sigh.

“Kieran, be nicer to your sister.”

Chapter 68 Where Did She Go?

Kieran felt extremely ashamed!

He lowered his head in front of Shane and dared not look up at him.

“So, what question did you want to ask?”

“|...”

Kieran couldn't speak.

He only felt that the air around him had become thick and difficult to breathe.

He was embarrassed to say that Valerie had run away from home because of their family relationship.

After a moment of contemplation, he still chose to remain silent.

“Nothing much, just wanted to maintain contact so that if there are any issues in the future, I can reach out to the homeroom teacher for immediate assistance.”

In the end, Kieran never said that Valerie ran away from home because of her family situation.

Shane waited for Kieran to tell the truth, but when he saw the conflicted and confused expression on Kieran's face, Shane sighed disappointedly.

“I'll pass it to you, and you can add it later when you go back. Alright, you can go back and get busy now.”

For Kieran, Shane's words were a godsend. He immediately stood up, bid farewell to Shane, and promptly left the office.

Shane watched as Kieran left, and he took out his phone to find Valerie's new homeroom teacher. He made a phone call.

"Lauren."

"Hey, Principal, what's up?"

"Did Valerie from your class come to class today?"

In the classroom, Lauren, who used to read early, quickly glanced at the attendance register.

"No, Principal, what's wrong?"

Shane's brow furrowed slightly.

"It's nothing. Her parents will contact you later and may ask you the same questions. Don't mention that I asked you."

Lauren suddenly understood and nodded in agreement.

Kieran returned to the car, his face looking very unpleasant.

"Returned to the company."

"Yes, Mr. Kieran."

The driver dared not speak too loudly, and the car moved forward slowly.

Sitting in the back seat, Kieran held his phone and started contacting his friends from his list, hoping they could help him find Valerie.

"Huh? What happened to your sister? She's missing? Don't worry, bro, I will definitely help you find her!"

12:55

This is a message from one of our friends.

But when Kieran saw it, he felt a wave of guilt in his heart...

He didn't seem as anxious as his friend had said.

He turned his head and looked at the seat where Valerie had been sitting before.

The little girl reached out her hand, wanting to touch the sky.

His eyes were filled with longing for the outside world.

That was freedom.

Was the Horton family tiring for her to stay with?

The more he thought, the more Kieran's head became muddled, and his heart grew increasingly anxious and heavy.

He vigorously rubbed his sore and swollen eyes.

Now, at home, only he should be looking for Valerie, and he is not sure why he cares so much.

Suddenly burst into laughter.

Kieran, oh Kieran, you also had today.

People even sneakily look for others.

He suddenly felt an indescribable chill and sadness.

Valerie, where were you now...

Valerie, who was being thought of by Kieran, lay drowsily in bed.

The fragmented images in her mind prevented her from opening her eyes.

My head was so heavy that I couldn't move at all.

Before leaving home, the Horton family's chaotic story and scenes were a bit annoying to her

It was too noisy.

She struggled to keep herself awake, exerting all her strength to quickly snap out of these noisy memories.

"Um..."

Ouch, my throat hurt.

Valerie slowly opened her eyes, everything appeared blurry and magnified.

What?

Where? Where is this?

Valerie felt a chill run down her spine as she vividly remembered being in a park before falling asleep.

So now, in this unfamiliar environment, someone saw themselves and brought themselves back.

But it shouldn't be, I am usually very cautious, as if someone is indeed approaching me.

He looked a lot like Tucker.

Tucker?

Valerie's heart was still a little flustered, but it calmed down slightly.

"Hey! Honey! She woke up!"

Ramona was excited, but she spoke in a hushed tone, afraid of waking up the sleeping Lamar.

Lamar waited at the door and heard his wife calling him. He hurried forward and gently looked at Valerie on the bed. Both of them crouched in front of the bed.

I watched the little girl wake up slowly.

“Where did our dad go?”

“I don’t know, after I finished speaking just now, I went out.”

Ramona once again approached Valerie, placing her soft, slightly cold hand on Valerie’s forehead.

“Is it a little better now, little girl? It was a bit hot.”

Ramona worriedly touched Valerie’s burning little face, and Lamar, unwilling to be left out, came to the other side of the bed and gently brushed Valerie’s face with the back of his hand.

“Well, it was indeed still very hot.”

Valerie felt the gentle greetings from the two people, and her initial alertness and worry gradually eased. She slowly opened her eyes wider, wanting to see clearly who these two people were.

“Thank you, thank you...”

The hoarse voice made Valerie’s throat itch, and she couldn’t stand it anymore. Valerie coughed loudly.

“Cough cough cough... cough cough.”

“Ouch!!! Drink water, drink water! Honey, pour some water! Warm water!”

“Good!”

The two of them cooperated skillfully.

Just like when Tucker was sick as a child, they never left his bedside, taking care of him every step of the way.

In Ramona's eyes, worry had already filled deeply.

"Good morning, Uncle Lamar and Auntie Ramona."

Suddenly, Derek greeted earnestly at the door.

The two of them looked toward the door in unison, with Galen standing behind Derek.

"Dad? Why did you call Derek over?"

"She was Derek's classmate."

Valerie, who had gradually regained consciousness in bed, knew whose home it was.

This was Derek's hometown!

She quickly got up and wanted to thank them.

"Well, um..."

As Valerie spoke up, Derek, standing at the door, furrowed his brow.

He suddenly approached, and Ramona unconsciously gave up her seat to him.

Derek looked at Valerie lying on the bed, her face flushed. He remembered yesterday's livestream, where she was by Wilma's side, with those sparkling eyes.

He remained silent and supported Valerie's shoulder, making her lie down again.

"You had a cold now, take good rest."

"However..."

"Take a good rest and don't worry about going to school. I will attend classes diligently. Once you feel better, I will make up the lessons for you."

Lamar and Galen widened their eyes, staring blankly at the little grandson/nephew in front of them.

So considerate?

Derek clumsily made Valerie's bed.

He glanced at the water cup on the bedside table and reached out to touch the cup's wall.

It got a little cold.

"Auntie Ramona, please boil another pot of hot water for her later. I'm going to school now."

After speaking, he glanced at Valerie again and turned around to leave the room.

Galen and Lamar exchanged a glance, and he followed behind Derek.

"Did you have a good relationship with Ms. Horton?"

"So-so."

Chair Where

Just so-so? Is this how you took care of it?

Derek entered the car and turned to look at Galen.

"Grandpa, take good care of her."

Chapter 69 This Is the Fisher Family

Galen's mind was filled with mixed feelings.

This is the first time that our mature grandson has shown interest in someone's appearance.

But he could also understand.

Valerie, this little girl, looked quite likable.

“Never mind, the girl is still having a cold, let's take good care of her at home for now.”

With this thought in mind, Galen briskly returned to the room.

Derek, in the car, leaned on the window sill with one hand, watching the scenery outside quickly flash by.

He recalled the first time Valerie was bullied in class by her classmates using childish methods, and her expressionless face.

And when she explained during the live broadcast, there was a muffled groan during the period when she was being beaten.

He twitched his hand slightly...

But when she was by Wilma's side, those eyes.

Really take a good look.

Since childhood, he was different from other children. He seemed to know more things and understood them quickly compared to other children.

He found many things boring.

Learning things too quickly without any freshness, coupled with being a member of the Fisher family.

The so-called friends around me, half of them are attracted by the background of the Fisher family.

No one understood his thoughts, and no one genuinely wanted to know what he needed.

The people at home just took it as him being arrogant and didn't think too much about it.

After all, in the Fisher family, everyone fought for what they wanted or simply spoke up.

So, I reduced the number of times I spoke and talked to people I didn't like, throwing in a few sarcastic remarks.

But not much.

Just when he thought he would spend his elementary school years feeling bored, Valerie appeared.

When Derek saw her for the first time.

He felt that his whole body was trembling.

He was small, but he could also see something from Valerie.

An incomprehensible sadness.

Tsk.

I didn't want to think about it anymore.

It was strange why she appeared so disheveled in her own house.

But still, take care of what needs to be taken care of.

They had a cold.

Galen returned to the room and found Valerie nestled in the blanket, chatting with Ramona and Lamar.

“Little girl, are you feeling comfortable?”

Valerie remembered wanting to talk to Galen, but she was pushed back by this old man.

“Derek asked you to lie down properly and talk to us while lying down.”

The old grandfather smiled as he looked at the soft and cuddly little girl lying on the bed, and his heart overflowed with warmth.

“Thank you, Grandpa.”

The little girl’s gratefulness struck a chord in the hearts of the three people in the room.

So cute!

The girl was really cute!

Galen paused to calm his emotions.

“Cough, cough, I know you, you are Miss Valerie from the Horton family. You also participated in the variety show with Tucker. Grandpa watched it too. You are amazing, and you can even cook and bake bread?”

“What? Dad, are you joking! How can she make bread at such a young age?”

Chapter 69 This is the Fisher Family

Lamar was quite straightforward in his emotions. He directly questioned aloud, and in response, he received a resounding slap on his back from Ramona.

“Would our dad crack jokes! You shut up first!”

Galen glanced disdainfully at Lamar, took out his phone, and found a compilation video of Valerie cooking and making bread.

“You see, look at it yourself!”

Three people, right in front of the person involved, disregarded whether the person felt embarrassed or not, and casually turned up the volume of their phones to the maximum, and started watching videos.

Help me!

So embarrassing!

Valerie shamefully buried her face in the blanket!

This was a scene of a large-scale social death!

What made her even more shy was Ramona's and Lamar's constant exclamations and praises.

She felt itchy in her heart when he praised her.

"Can I call you Valerie?"

After watching the video, Ramona immediately rushed to Valerie's side, her tone became extremely gentle, like coaxing a child, and the smile on the corner of her mouth never faded.

"Um, okay."

Valerie shyly nodded, and this small gesture made Ramona's heart burst with happiness!

She could hardly restrain herself from going forward to hug Valerie.

Galen laughed for a while and immediately regained a serious expression.

"Alright, Valerie, Grandpa has something very important to ask you now. Why were you sleeping alone in that park?"

Dong!

Valerie's shyness and embarrassment just dissipated.

She clenched the edge of the blanket with both hands, covering half of her face, only revealing a pair of anxious eyes.

How should she explain it?

Did you say you ran away from the Horton family? Took a bus to this suburb and didn't expect the Fisher family to live here?

And was also brought over by Lamar?

Why did she escape from the Horton family, and how should this be explained later?

The more she thought, the colder her heart became, and the panic in her eyes caused Lamar's pupils to contract.

His heart suddenly felt a pang of sadness.

He had seen a similar look in his eyes.

Just like Tucker when he was young, he was almost in a state of self-abandonment due to his weak health and frequent illnesses.

The despair and sadness in the bottom of my eyes were about to overflow.

He hurriedly stepped forward, patting Valerie's little head and using his body to block Valerie's gaze with Galen.

Galen was looked at with a hint of reproach.

"Dad! The little girl is currently having a cold! Why are you asking about this now? Are you still not letting her rest properly?"

After finishing speaking, he turned his head and gently smiled at Valerie.

“Valerie, we don’t need to pay attention to this strange old man. Let’s drink our medicine later and keep our bodies healthy!”

Ramona instantly looked up, wearing a strange expression as she gazed at her husband.

After Lamar and Ramona fed her the medicine, they let her continue sleeping and resting in the room.

At this moment, Lamar’s phone rang, and he quickly ran out of the room, walking far away.

“What happened?”

The person who came was Tucker’s agent, who had inserted himself to take care of his own son.

“Boss, the young master’s condition has stabilized. Do you think we should let him come back for a break?”

“Well, let him come back. The one at home is almost the same as the one at the hospital.”

Lamar sighed helplessly as his son’s health remained the same, still exhausted from the demands of the entertainment industry.

He still went in without taking care of himself, although he respected the child’s thoughts.

But he was really worried about Tucker’s health.

Helplessly, the agent had Tucker brought back and he returned to the doorstep.

Galen waved his hand, indicating both of them to go to his tea room to talk.

The three of them walked lightly toward the tea room, even when closing the door, they were so cautious.

“Lamar, quickly call your older brother and ask him to partially block the information about Valerie.”

Lamar had not slept for several days, and he was now exhausted. After hearing what Galen said, his mind had not yet processed it.

“Why, Dad? She is Ms. Horton. No matter how much you want a granddaughter, you can’t just snatch someone else’s daughter.”

Galen was about to throw the tea cup in his hand, but seeing the tired face of his son, he ultimately refrained from doing so.

“You have been busy lately and haven’t had time to pay attention to the news and the public opinion on the internet, so take a look first.”

Galen took out his phone and found the video of Valerie explaining live.

The couple leaned forward and huddled together to take a look.

The expression on their own son’s face was quite foul. In addition to being shocked, they were more amazed by Valerie’s logic and language expression abilities.

Until the video of Valerie being beaten appeared before their eyes, Ramona’s mouth had already started trembling uncontrollably. Lamar remained silent, frowning his brow as he pulled Ramona closer, wrapping his arm around her shoulder.

Patted gently to comfort.

Snap! Tucker promptly closed the computer.

The son’s eyes turned red, and Ramona also sympathetically sniffed her nose.

“Dad... what was going on?”

“As you can see, in the show, after Valerie’s wound was seen by someone, the discussion about how she got injured had already started spreading on the internet.”

However, the Horton family remained silent. Despite her plea on the livestream for them not to interfere in her matter, there was no response from them.

But would a normal family feel good seeing their daughter being beaten like this? Even if they don’t intervene, they should at least speak up on the day of the live broadcast to show support for their child.

Take a look at this again.

Galen spoke with reason and evidence, and showed Lamar the announcement that Kieran had instructed the secretary to release in the morning.

“This announcement came out around seven or eight in the morning, stating that those who bullied Valerie have already been severely punished.”

However, the announcement was only made by the Horton Group’s official account, and not all members of the Horton family came forward to support Valerie.

You found her in the park next to your house in the morning, indicating that she had already slept there overnight,

She left the program group yesterday afternoon, why did she appear here?

Do you understand what I mean?

She ran away from home.

Chapter 70 Just Settle Down

Before retiring, Galen was at least a general, so his guesses were usually spot on.

Lamar's current exhaustion has disappeared, and he only feels the coldness all over his body.

The child in the video did not have strong emotional fluctuations, but rather spoke to everyone seriously and orderly about the matter.

A look that says whether you believe it or not, whether you listen or not, but the fact is just like this.

The Horton family's attitude toward their children was visibly apparent.

Not very good.

"Oh dear! Poor child!"

Ramona couldn't stand it anymore, so she took a few pieces of paper and wiped her tears there.

"What should we do next? Just let her hide in the Fisher family like this?"

Lamar's mind came back a little bit.

He looked at Galen with confusion, wondering if it could really be the way he had imagined.

Galen snorted and turned his head, refusing to meet Lamar's gaze.

"Dad... Please don't make a scene. This is someone else's child, even if she has a cold now, if the Horton family comes knocking later, it won't look good."

"Hmph! They came knocking on the door themselves! The Horton family, aren't they so powerful? Since they're so powerful, they should come find me on their own! I'm not afraid of this old man! It's so easy for them to find me, it's practically doing them a favor!"

Galen was angry.

He was the one who directly confronted the live broadcast, and his dissatisfaction with the Horton family was quite significant.

Lamar rubbed his eyes with a slight headache.

"Wife, we..."

"Yes! Dad was right! It's too easy for them to find it. They're getting off too cheaply! It's best if they can't find it! Let them be desperate!"

Ramona was in high spirits now, nodding vigorously in agreement with what Galen said.

I wanted to persuade Galen together with my wife, but even my own wife is like this now.

Don't even try to persuade Galen, just seeing the look in their eyes could kill you instantly.

Lamar closed his mouth wisely and prepared to go back to his room to freshen up and rest.

However, before getting ready for bed, he obediently called Randal Fisher, the eldest son of the Fisher family.

As Galen's son, Randal was greatly influenced by Galen and has now stayed in the military, holding a high-ranking position.

"Hello? What's wrong?"

"Brother, I have something to tell you."

Lamar roughly told Randal about the matter, then quickly hung up the phone, cleaned himself up, and fell fast asleep in bed.

Confused, Randal on the other end of the phone still followed Galen's instructions and began working on the task at hand.

"Uncle Randal! I finished my training today! Can I take a rest now?"

Suddenly, the office door was opened by someone, and to everyone's surprise, it was Calvin, who had returned from military training.

Randal glanced at him expressionlessly and did not respond.

"Ms. Horton didn't know why she was brought back home by Lamar. Your grandfather now wants me to keep the news about her a secret, you..."

"What?!"

Randal hadn't finished speaking yet when Calvin, who had not been standing in front of him for long, immediately ran out of the office.

He was extremely curious now!

The Fisher family, Galen and Ramona, stood outside Valerie's room, occasionally opening the door and peering inside through the crack.

The two of them were quietly crouching at the door, watching. Calvin came in panting from outside, but they didn't notice.

Calvin, who was catching his breath in the living room, looked up and saw two suspicious individuals sneaking around on the second floor.

He understood in his heart.

They silently approached them, taking two steps at a time..

Galen felt a breath gradually approaching them, and he suddenly turned his head back to look.

Galen caught sight of Calvin's cheerful face.

Snap.

A loud slap landed on Calvin's arm.

Crunchy.
