The four people who crawled happily stopped after hearing the sound.

They all kept their limbs on the ground and turned to look at the gate, with joy on their faces.

But when they saw someone looking at them with the camera and the live-streaming equipment in their hands, their faces instantly froze, and there was panic and embarrassment in their eyes. Evangeline took a deep breath and pushed the door close.

The netizens came back to their senses and discussed more wildly.

[What happened just now? I think I saw Mr. Ferdinand. Is that Mr. Ferdinand? He had always been serious on TV. I didn't expect that he liked crawling on the ground as much as Evangeline?]

[Not only Mr. Ferdinand... About the other three, I've seen two of them on the gossip news. One is Hugo, an entertainment tycoon, and the other is Steven, a rich young guy in Hofcaster.]

[The last one I know is Finnegan, a famous psychologist at home and abroad. Everyone who is in the psychology field should know him.]

[Damn it! Are they all so powerful? I didn't expect the bosses to play so wildly in private while appearing graceful in public]

[Are they like this? Or are they influenced by Evangeline?]

[What do you mean by that? It's called being inspired by Evangeline and making them find themselves. Don't blame Evangeline.]

[I see, Evangeline is always the focus of attention. People are easily influenced by her.]

[Hahaha, you are damn right!]

At the gate of the villa, Evangeline said to the team, "Something went wrong just now. Let's do it again."

Then she opened the door again. In the yard, Arthur, Steven, Hugo, and Finnegan were sitting at a long table. Arthur was holding a cup of coffee in his hand. He looked very elegant and noble. Hearing the sound of the door opening, they looked at the door together as if they had just noticed them. There was a trace of surprise on their faces.

Steven forced a smile and said, "Evangeline, you have an interview today? Why didn't you tell us in advance?"
