

Rebirth Of The God Of War Chapter 15 by Chilton Buntun

Chapter 15 Hunger (Part Two)

"Aileen, I'm so hungry."

"Me too. But there's nothing we can do. Although it's hard, let's just endure it. We will survive this."

As she spoke, Aileen squatted on the ground with several food wrappers at her feet.

It was already the second day, and it had been more than twenty hours since the incident happened. It was only normal for them to feel hungry. When they were surrounded by monsters, they didn't feel the need for food. But now, they were getting hungrier and hungrier.

It stood to reason that when such a big thing happened, and survivors saw many monsters, bloody slaughtering, and horrific sights, they would lose their appetites. They would only feel nauseous instead of looking for food.

But the feeling of hunger was so strong that it even felt strange. It seemed that it only didn't come from the stomach but every part of their bodies.

Even fear and disgust couldn't stop people from feeling hungry.

What they felt was pure hunger.

And when they were hungry, of course, they had the urge to eat something.

It had been a long time since the monsters last appeared. Finally, someone couldn't help but go out to check the situation. And when he found that the monsters were gone for real, he shouted with excitement.

The people who had been afraid to go out finally came out of their hiding places. And the first thing they did was to look for food. Strangely, people felt hungrier this time. It was bearable at first. But then, it became so strong that even those who were used to living without food and clothing felt uncomfortable.

Fortunately, there were many shops, including a small supermarket, on the mountaintop park. There seemed to be sufficient food supply. Although people jostled for food, everyone had grabbed some.

Aileen managed to get six bags of instant noodles and a few bottles of water. She thought these would be enough for her and Dora to survive for a day or two.

But they didn't expect that they would feel hungry again only after two hours they had eaten.

It turned out that the food was not enough.

In the dark corner of the Golden Mountain, a tall figure struggled to sit up. Beside him were three cavemen lying on top of each other and were obviously dead. The head of one of them was even smashed.

If Calvin was here, he would have recognized this man because he had just met him not long ago. He was Barry, and he had killed three cavemen.

"Ouch, it hurts!"

Barry's body was covered with wounds, and the two most serious injuries were on his cheek and thigh. One could tell from the ragged edge of the wounds that the cavemen had torn his flesh off with their teeth.

Fortunately, the wounds were no longer bleeding. There was still pain, but he also felt itchy. This was a sign that his wounds were healing.

However, Barry didn't notice this thing. Aside from the pain, he felt nothing but only hunger.

He wanted to eat something, a lot of things actually. But he was in a forest, and all he could see around him were plants, rocks, and corpses. There was nothing to eat at all.

'No, I can't eat these corpses. These monsters are...No, no, no!' Barry's remaining sanity dispelled this idea in his mind. He slowly stood up and looked around to get his bearings. Fortunately, he was a bit familiar with this place. It was not far away from the mountaintop park. There must be something to eat there.

Barry had just taken two steps forward when a black figure suddenly appeared not far away.

It was a black caveman.

Obviously, the black caveman saw Barry too because his eyes suddenly turned green, and he pounced on Barry.

"Ah, monsters!"

The caveman's attack method didn't change at all. As soon as he approached Barry, he went for Barry's neck. Barry avoided his big stinky mouth, trying to deflect this disgusting thing with a slap. Then, he picked up a stone and smashed the caveman's head.

The three cavemen he had first killed had given Barry an impression that although these monsters looked terrifying, they were not as strong as he had thought.

But much to Barry's surprise, this black caveman was different. Instead of being shoved away, he grabbed Barry's arm, opened his big mouth, and bit Barry's forearm.

This black caveman was much stronger compared to the previous ones.

"Ahhh!" Barry let out a scream and wrestled with the black caveman.

The red mist on the Golden Mountain had already attracted countless people's attention. And when they found that they could not go up the mountain, the entire Nova City was alarmed.

After waiting for a day and a night, some of the family members of the people who had not returned from the mountain went to the police, and some rushed to the Golden Mountain.

A large number of policemen were dispatched to the Golden Mountain. They drew a long police tape at the foot of the mountain, forbidding outsiders to enter. Reporters from TV stations and newspapers swarmed in.

"Good day, viewers! Since yesterday, the Golden Mountain has been shrouded by red mist. And since this red mist appeared, no one could go up the mountain. It is estimated that there are three thousand people trapped in the mountain as of the moment. The governor has already given instructions to rescue them."

A tube of the high-concentration nutrient solution was enough to sustain a healthy adult through a day's heavy outdoor work. Calvin had consumed fifty tubes, but he was still hungry. It seemed that his stomach had become a bottomless pit. No matter how much he ate, it would just disappear without a trace.

The super evolution was unprecedented in history. And it was very likely that Calvin would be the only one in this world to experience such a thing. There was even no data for reference. Although he had prepared something, it was obviously not enough.

"Food! I must find more food as soon as possible. Without it, I don't know what will happen to me. But for sure, I won't end well."

The process of evolution required a lot of energy. If the energy was insufficient, the evolution would not be completed. At worst, it could even be life-threatening.

If possible, Calvin didn't want to take the risk to carry out super evolution. Actually, the best way was to build a solid laboratory and complete the super evolution in a medical capsule that contained a large amount of nutrient solution. But unfortunately, such conditions were difficult to achieve. Besides, there were only more than twenty days left before the apocalypse fully descended. There was no time left, so he had to take the risk.

Calvin squinted his eyes and made up his mind.
