

THE CEO'S RUN AWAY WIFE

Chapter 17 you have a beautiful hear

"The door is jammed," Daniel said, and Sara was looking worried but he was smiling to think in his mind that now he is alone in this room with her. She did not know she was trapped with the devil.

"Oh no, now how will we get out of here?" She said and looked panicked.

"I also forgot my phone," she said looking into her purse.

"Do you have a phone? We can call someone for help," Sara said and Daniel acted like he was looking for his phone in his jacket and pockets.

"Sorry, I think I also forgot it," Daniel said, and tried his best to hide his phone inside his jacket.

At the same time he switched off his phone too. Sara was banging her hand on the door and shouting for help but no one was there. For the last 15 minutes she had been asking for help but finally she gave up and saw that Daniel was not standing next to her, but he was sitting on the bed after going back. He was looking at her up and down again. She was wearing a white one piece.

"What are you doing?" she asked him, as he was not looking scared. He was not trying to get out of this room. He was looking cool, as he does not care if someone opens the door or not.

"I am watching you," Daniel said. She found him a little crazy.

"Why are you watching me?" she asked as he got up from the bed.

As he was coming closer she was looking for a way to run away. With an expressionless face he was heading towards her. She totally glued her body to the door in fear and saw his face get much too close to hers.

"I am watching you because you are the only beautiful woman in this room," Daniel whispered into her ears, and then looked into her eyes. Sara only looked at him silently.

"Did you understand?" Daniel asked and she quickly nodded her head.

"Why are you sweating?" Daniel asked, wiping her sweat and getting closer to Sara. He rubbed his finger from her forehead to her cheeks and smiled.

"Is this your first time getting close to a man?" He asked.

“How did you know?” She asked, and Daniel smiled.

“You are so scared that I can hear your heartbeat,” He said. Sara felt embarrassed. It was true. She never gets close to any other male. It was her first experience with this hot stranger.

“Why are you happy?” Sara asked him with a puzzled look.

“Because it’s good to know that I am your first,” Daniel said. Sara turned her eyes from him. She understood he was talking with a double meaning to her.

“I...” she opened her mouth to speak but could not say anything. There was no space between them. He had completely caged her in his arms.

“Please... move a little and... let me... go,” Sara said with great difficulty.

“My name is Daniel, what is your name?” Daniel asked, and moved a little, but not too much so that she would not feel uncomfortable.

“My name is Sara...” she answered, and Daniel smiled.

“Sara,” Daniel called her name and Sara looked up to him. He called her name softly, like butter.

“Sara...” He again repeated her name touching her face. She flinched away from his touch.

“I want to kiss you. Can I?” Daniel asked, and Sara was shocked to hear his question.

“What?” she said and he again closed the distance.

“Yes, I want to kiss you badly but I am controlling myself. Please let me kiss you,” Daniel begged, and it looked like he was getting out of control.

Sara was scared to hear him ask such a thing. She was alone in this room with him and he was talking like this. If she refuses then he could harm her too. So she nodded her head. She saw him getting near her lips and closed her eyes tightly. It was her first kiss. Suddenly she felt his lips on her cheeks and opened her eyes. He was kissing her cheeks, not lips. He saw she was looking shocked.

“Don’t worry, I will kiss your lips when you do not feel scared of me,” Daniel whispered, and Sara felt good but she could not understand why he was confident that she would let him kiss her again.

“Let’s go and sit,” Daniel said, moving away from her.

The whole room was full of gifts so they both were sitting on the bed. Sara switched on the TV to break the awkwardness of the room because Daniel's eyes were not leaving her for a second. As she changed the channel there was playing a romantic movie. It was good but suddenly they started to kiss each other passionately. Sara looked at Daniel who was still looking at her, and he also noticed that kissing scene. She immediately switched off the TV and threw the remote away.

"Please don't look at me like this. You are scaring me," Sara said, and Daniel saw she was really scared. She was trembling in fear, to think that he would do something wrong to her. He was totally behaving like a psychopath.

"What do you do? Are you a student? You look too young," Daniel questioned, and Sara looked up at him. Suddenly he was asking about her, not staring.

“No, I have completed my college. I am working in a company,” Sara replied and Daniel nodded his head.

“What do you do?” Sara asked. Daniel was happy to hear her speak. Finally, she was not scared of him. She was speaking freely.

“I have my own business,” Daniel said.

Sara looked at his watch, tie and shoes. It was all expensive. She was looking poor in front of him because Lucy did not let her change into new clothes. She brought her here as a servant. Sara pulled her dress down in nervousness because Daniel was also looking at her clothes and sandals, like she was doing to him.

“I am not rich like you. I am poor,” Sara said with a smile so that he would stop looking at her, but Daniel was shocked to hear this. No girl would say that she is poor in front of him. She openly told him her status. She was not trying to play with him. She was embarrassed because of her clothes.

“But you have a beautiful heart,” Daniel said and Sara stopped smiling.
