Chapter 21

21 – Do you think she's pregnant? Casper came out of the saloon looking different and even more attractive. The sides of his long hair were neatly trimmed with a long curly top. His sideburns blended into the low fade sides of his hair. Cathan had gotten a new hairstyle too, almost the same as Casper's but with a high fade to the side. As the duo stepped out, their resemblance became obvious. "Where do we go now?" Cathan asked Casper. "Grandpa's palace to show him the video," Casper nodded and they headed to the car. They kept receiving stares because of Casper. The way his all-black look with sunglasses made him so fierce and yet attractive, most people who weren't in the business field couldn't but wonder who he was. Today, he was only accompanied by Cathan, having left his remaining bodyguards to clear the mess in the punishment room. "Won't you inform him first?" No one visited grandpa without prior notice unless the old man had requested for the person beforehand. Cathan wondered what Casper was up to. "Why should I? He told me to bring it today." Casper wasn't just obeying orders but also had his suspicions. He realized how grandpa was never happy with him passing any of the tests and kept wondering if he had a heart for the Blade tradition. The drive to the palace was fast since Casper decided to drive. His driving was frightening because of the speed he used. When they reached the palace, Casper was duly informed that grandpa hadn't returned since last night.

· He pulled out his phone and dialed Grandpa's number but it was switched off. He tried to track his location but it was untraceable. Was he worried? No one could tell. If anything happened to Grandpa, then he should be the happy one. Casper finally left a note without the video for Grandpa. Since it was intimate, he would just show it to him and delete it afterward. He won't let anybody else including Cathan or Caleb see it. That would be an insult to Jenna.

When they returned to the manor, Caleb looked at them intently. "I guess it went well. Your haircut says it all." No one could tell if he was jealous or not.

"Yes, I was thinking you get a haircut like this too. Your hair is too long. Do you want to take after Grandpa?" Cathan taunted him. Somehow, Caleb realized their haircut must have been on impulse. Whereas at the mention of grandpa, he agreed to have his haircut as well. He didn't want to be like the old man.

Cathan stopped at the entrance when he saw a woman in the room who wasn't Jenna. He had mixed feelings but decided to talk to Caleb about it. So, only Casper went in. He felt some form of emptiness when he saw the well-laid bed. The sheets and all had been changed. Was he missing her already? He emitted a cold chill when he saw Shirley leisurely sitting on the sofa with a glass of wine.

Some women didn't know how to draw boundaries. After taking care of Jenna, she should have waited in the large luxurious living room but no. She was still here in his bedroom.

"How did it go?" He swallowed his fury and asked her. Jenna was more important at the moment.

Shirley dropped the wine on a side table and walked to him. She had changed from her pants and top into a red lingerie. Both her appearance and voice had an alluring blend to it. "It went well. She was reluctant at the beginning but eventually came around. Come to think of it, weren't you too hard on her? It was her first time and she could barely walk. If you ask me, she must be cursing you in her heart."

Casper felt something strange in his heart but his appearance remained cold and emotionless. He needn't ask how Shirley knew it was Jenna's first time. He saw the blood stains too but couldn't do much because Jenna was sleeping so peacefully, he didn't want to wake her but he never meant to hurt her and they both enjoyed it.

"Thanks for your services. I will transfer your payment now," he pulled out his phone but Shirley placed her left hand on it. Casper was irritated by her action but it didn't show on his face.

"That girl is too innocent for you. I'm available if you want to do it again or even now." She gazed into his eyes but due to his sunglasses, she couldn't decipher his emotions. At first, she thought Casper had no interest in women but after seeing what he did with Jenna, she wanted to be in her shoes. Who didn't want a strong, sexy man?

"Miss Shore, I'll transfer your money now. You can use the door." Casper pushed her hand away from his. He was like an iceberg, Shirley felt chills. If he could pump Jenna like that, then it meant that he had more energy left so why won't he take the chance?

"Are you sending me away?" There was disappointment in her voice.

"Do you want me to repeat myself?" The atmosphere in the room suddenly felt uncomfortable for her, she was embarrassed. This was her first time trying to give herself willingly to a man yet, Casper rejected her. "No."

She scampered out of the room away from the man who looked like he was going to hurt her. After that, Casper picked his phone and called Jenna. It kept ringing but there was no answer. After the eighth call, he feared that something must have happened to her and called Caleb but Cathan came instead. When he looked around, he called a maid to clean the room again before speaking with Cathan. "He's gone for a haircut," Cathan responded when Casper asked for Caleb. Since he was the one who dropped Jenna at home, it was better to ask of her well-being from him but since Cathan was acquainted with Kate, he could also help.

"Can you call Jenna's friend? Jenna isn't answering her calls. Cathan felt something off. Was Casper expressing worry? It was very strange. However, recalling that Jenna had saved Casper's life, he kept it to himself and dialed Kate's number, tapping on the speaker. "Cat," Kate's energetic voice sounded at the end of the line. Casper wondered the level of their relationship by the way Kate called him but continued to listen. He was worried about Jenna.

"How are you Kate?" Cathan asked.

"Good."

"What are you doing?" Cathan couldn't straightforwardly ask about Jenna and rather used such means. "Watching tv." "Alone?" Cathan imagined being with her but with Casper's cold demeanor, he returned to his senses.

"Yes. You wanna join me?" Kate teased him but Cathan turned serious, seeing that Casper was getting impatient with the formalities. "I thought you had Jenna. Why would you want me?" He asked. "Jenna has been sleeping since she got back. Cat, is your cousin a monster?" Casper knew it was because of the treatment he paid Shirley to give her and not what Kate and Cathan thought. Hence, he felt relaxed. Whichever way, when he heard Cathan's next question, he wondered if he was teasing him or serious. "Do you think she's pregnant?"

"No, I gave her pills. Your cousin won't want anything to do with her again and it will be bad to use pregnancy to complicate things, don't you think?" Casper felt slightly remorseful for telling her that. He didn't want anything to do with her? After she had stolen from him? They should just wait. Cathan knew that Kate might say hurtful words against Casper and said, "I will tell my cousin to be gentle with her next time. Just let me know when she wakes up ok? I apologize on his behalf." "Apology accepted but I don't think there will be a next time. I have to go now, she's awake." The call ended.

"You have been fucking her." Cathan wasn't expecting Casper to see between the lines from this short conversation but neither could he lie. He lowered his head, ready for his chastisement.

"Yes."

From his honesty, Casper's voice softened. He knew they were both treading on dangerous grounds. "Make sure to keep her safe and not let Grandpa know about it."

"Thanks." Cathan was relieved. Casper accepted Kate but then, he couldn't help asking.

"What about Jenna? Will you let her go?" Just as Casper was about to answer, his phone rang. The caller ID showed Grandpa so he answered it.

"Send me the video." The old man sounded impatient and angry but Casper was the least afraid of him and neither could he trust the old man. What if he circulated the video to embarrass Jenna? Casper would never forgive himself. "No, Grandpa, I can only show it to you."

"Fine, bring it to the office on Monday." For the first time, Casper was surprised that the old man didn't argue with him. It made him even more suspicious, wondering where he spent the night. Before he could ask, the call ended.

"Goodnews?" Cathan asked with expectation. Casper had passed all the tests now and would no longer be controlled, except for the part of his marriage. At Least for five months, Casper was a free man but Casper had other things on his mind. He couldn't tell Cathan because he wasn't sure yet. "I don't think so. Let's wait and see."
