Chapter 33

33 – Are you broke? “You trust me?” Casper’s eyes were like fire yet she didn’t lower her gaze. She meant it. Casper felt a satisfaction and peace he never felt before when she nodded in affirmation.

“I promise to not abuse your trust,” he whispered in her ear, making her shiver when his lips touched her earlobe. His soft lips began kissing her face gently before he captured her lips hungrily. “Arrrrgh,” Jenna moaned aloud when his lips moved to her jawbone. She was already wet and ready. Foreplay at a time like this was torture but how could she tell him? Despite how he set a strange fire inside her body with his burning gaze, he still looked so elegant as if he wasn’t doing anything to her.

The fire in his eye burned, making her hot all over. It was like he wanted to eat her whole. Indeed, he was the beast.

Howbeit, her eyes glinted when she felt his hard and thick cock lubricating her stomach with precum since he was taller than her. She reached out and touched it, earning a groan from him. Finally, he reacted to something. It was a good discovery.

The size felt big and warm in her hand but she was suddenly trespassed with fear when she recalled how sore she felt the last time and quickly withdrew her hand. “Will it fit?” Her voice was soft like the morning breeze, weakening the beast inside of him.

Something flicked in his eyes. He didn’t know if it was due to how innocent she looked when she looked up at him after causing a raging storm of allure in his veins. The corner of his lips curled up but almost instantly, it went back to its former glory. Did he just smirk, how could his emotions be responding to her? It was the first time his lips stretched to resemble a smirk since he was sent to the Blade academy for his training to begin. His heart was amused but his face showed no emotions. “Wanna try?” His hoarse voice enquired.

Jenna quickly nodded, her stomach tightening, as the waves of pleasure kept sweeping through her at their closeness. She thought they were going to postpone the bath and head to bed but what she didn’t expect was for Casper to lift and pin her to the glass wall, while he thrust his full length into her so hard, that she cried out.

He sucked on the crook of her neck, while the sensual pleasures rushed down her pussy. “Did it fit,” his hot breath fanned her neck as he sucked deeper, leaving red marks wherever his lips touched.

It was so fast and the pain seething. This was the second time but it still hurt. It might take some time for her walls to completely adjust to his size without inflicting pain.

“I feel overstretched,” she let out a painful moan, feeling full by his size, while he pulled to the tip and thrust into her again, with her back pressed against the wall and her legs wrapped around his waist.

Another moan escaped her, but this was a pleasurable one. She lifted herself slightly and wrapped her two arms around his neck, securing herself from his hard, wet, and slippery body. Casper had gone crazy by how hot and tight her moist walls felt. It wrapped tightly against his beast, pulling it inside of her.

He groaned as ripples of pleasure harnessed him, while he pumped her hard and fast, the glass wall-shaking like it would fall. Pleasure built up inside Jenna’s abdomen, she screamed in pleasure while her nails dug into his skin, leaving red marks on his back. Her action only increased Casper’s energy, making him thrust harder.

A wild shrill left her throat as her orgasm rushed in; she shivered violently, while he continued to pump her hard. His eyes darkened with pleasure, as his orgasm knocked him, earning a growl from him. He shivered and hugged her weak form while they took time to catch their breath.

Casper regulated the temperature of the shower before turning the faucet. The heat from the hot water relaxed his nerves but it wasn’t the same for Jenna. Her legs were numb, making her wrap them tightly around Casper’s waist. He didn’t put her down.

Taking his shampoo, he washed her hair thoroughly himself, since he already had his bath. It was only during cleaning her body with the towel that he allowed her feet to touch the wet floor but once he was done, he carried her back to the bedroom. The maids had already come to clean the room and served breakfast.

That was when Casper realized that they were running late to the office. They went to the closet together and Jenna realized that there were more female clothes than the last time. She couldn’t help asking,

“Why are there so many female clothes?”

“They are yours. I figured we might spend a lot of time together,” he said directly. He wasn’t even ashamed to admit that he only used Eve as an excuse to get Jenna here. He could have dealt with the bitch by himself but what fun would it be?

“But…” She wanted to tell him that it wasn’t right but from how he glared at her, it was as if he knew what she wanted to say.

“Nothing.” Jenna quickly closed her mouth. She didn’t understand how he could give her intense pleasure in one minute and give her chills in the other.

“Good.” He sounded indifferent, satisfied with her silence. “When you are done dressing, join me for breakfast.”

Casper walked to the entrance of the closet before turning to face her again.

“And remember, talking about that woman is forbidden from today. It’s just us.”

By that woman, Jenna knew that he was talking about his arranged bride. She opened her mouth, then shut it again after the realization of how cold he turned anytime she made mention of the other woman. But what did he mean by it’s just us? She wasn’t one to believe in fairy tales and couldn’t dream of him as her Prince charming.

When she went back to the bedroom, Casper was on a call so she went ahead to start eating when her phone rang. She went to pick it up, sliding her thumb over the screen. “Where did you go this time?” Peggy’s worried voice rang through the line before Jenna had the chance to say hello.

“In Casper’s house. I said it in the note.” Jenna went back to sit and eat while she spoke. It wasn’t good etiquette but she had to save time.

“Again? I read the note but thought you were joking.” Kate was boiling with anger. She couldn’t stand her best friend being used, even if Casper was her boss. Jenna sensed her agitation and quickly said to Casper’s defense,

“What? Tell me more.” The anger dissipated from Kate as she asked in shock

“I will, but not now. I’ll see you later in the evening.” She didn’t allow Kate to say anymore and hang up. Casper was already seated and when Jenna saw how he ate, her eyes popped.

“Are you staring because you like how I eat or I’m doing something wrong?” Casper maintained his posture while he spoke. He looked like a King.

“You eat like a royal,” Jenna said and lowered her gaze. Casper’s voice grated slightly. “Everything I do, I was thought, except…” “Except what?” Jenna’s ears enlarged with curiosity. Something flashed in Casper’s eyes, amusement filling his heart once again.

“What happened in the bathroom.” Casper paused when he saw her turning red. “Forgive me if I hurt you. I don’t know how to control it.” Jenna was weak after the whole ordeal and he realized that once again, he was too hard on her.

“I’m not complaining.” Jenna didn’t know any other way. She was getting accustomed to his style. Casper’s lips pursed as nervousness began to climb over him. The woman before him couldn’t notice it because he just appeared aloof. “Does it mean that I did it well?” He didn’t have any experience before so she was his measuring stick

“You are my first so how would I know?” She was just as naive as him. However, Casper decided, that he was going to read more about sex as well as watch a few movies to perfect himself. Still, he couldn’t help asking,

“How do you feel after?”

“Satisfied and…”

“And what?” He was very curious now. Perhaps his performance wasn’t as bad as he thought.

“Nothing.” Jenna chuckled and lowered her head. She felt uncomfortable talking about it so intimately.

“You don’t have to feel shy around me and you can stay here for as long as you want.”

Jenna was surprised by his offer. So many questions lingered on her tongue but in the end, she swallowed them all. She had already given him her word. She trusted him.

“Thanks but Kate will be leaving in three weeks so, I want to spend more time with her but if I miss you, I’ll come and sleepover. How does that sound?” She gazed at him from the corner of her eyes and asked.

Casper’s heart leaped with joy. He was afraid that she would say no but she agreed. “The best thing you’ve said today.”

Jenna smiled at his remark but didn’t speak anymore. The duo arrived in the office using the VIP entrance which was Jenna’s first time using it. She was grateful because no one would see that she came with Casper. She went to meet her teammates and Peggy had also reported to work.

Casper was in the middle of a very important call when Cathan barged in. “Lily is here to see you. She says it’s urgent.”

Casper said a few words into the phone before ending the call. Lily was the finance director and has never requested to meet Casper of her own accord. If she came today, then it was indeed urgent.

“I’ll see her then,” Casper said aloof. Cathan left and Lily walked in. Despite her professional look, a desperate frown lined the corners of her face, as she froze at the entrance of the dark office. It took time for her eyes to adjust to the dimly lit office since she has been in a well-lit one. When Casper saw this, he naturally wore his sunglasses and switched to bright lights. “Is it better?” He asked.

Lily nodded continuously and walked to his desk. “Yes, thank you.” She sat down and pushed a pile of documents before him. “A transfer of five hundred million has been made into an untraceable account.”

“By who?” Casper’s voice was so cold that the air around him made her uncomfortable. She froze.

“Speak,” he ordered her, his eyes dark. The good mood in which he came to the office was gone.

“I don’t have proof but I only suspect Grandpa.” Lily didn’t allow her confidence to waver while she spoke. From experience, she made the claim even without proof.

Casper’s gaze was darker and Lily wanted to run but she knew she couldn’t. She had to defend her claim. “Why would you suspect my grandfather of being behind something so criminal? Do you know the repercussions if it’s not him?”

Casper might not be on good terms with Grandpa but he was still his elder and he wasn’t ready to accept any false accusations against him.

Lily thought deeply, beginning to doubt herself. If it wasn’t grandpa, she could go to jail for this accusation. “I’m sorry but he’s the only one with all the passwords to be able to transfer and authorize at the same time.”

Her words hit Casper with discomfort but he remained indifferent. Aside from him and grandpa, no one else had the power to do so. Indeed, Lily might be right. “Return to your office. I will call you when needed.”

“Ok.” She went to pick up the folder she brought along.

“Leave them, I’ll send them to you when I’m done.” The air around Casper was still cold, making her relieved that he asked her to go. If she stayed another moment, she might die of a heart attack. He was so good looking but how could he be so cold?

She nodded and left the office without another word. A few minutes later, Casper dialed a number. It was answered only on the seventh ring as a young energetic voice answered,

“Hello,”

Casper’s eyes darkened but before he could respond, a familiar cold voice answered, “what do you want?”

“Someone answered the phone earlier, who is he?” Casper couldn’t let it go. No bodyguard or servant could answer grandpa’s call so if someone did, then the person must be special to him. “It’s none of your business,” Grandpa responded unfazed. Casper instantly pressed the flight mode and used the desktop phone to make a call. He had to satisfy his curiosity. Maybe he underestimated the old man in the first place. “Hunter, investigate the whereabouts of Grandpa for me now. I’m going to call him on the phone. You are free to track.”

Hearing the urgency in Casper’s tone, Hunter began pulling out his equipment, murmuring, “thank you,” for the fact that Casper made it easy for him. He gave him access to his personal phone. That was another level of trust.

After that, Casper tapped the flight mode icon on his screen to undo it and dialed grandpa’s number again. This time, it was answered on the first ring. “Sorry, I had a low battery.” Casper apologized to wipe any suspicions grandpa might be having but the old man seemed unfazed. “Casper was too busy to care about.” “So why did you call?” “It’s about the money you transferred from the company account. Are you broke?” Casper mocked the old man.
