Chapter 78

78 – I just want my life back Casper was always sure to never give her a way out. How was she supposed to return his heart? Even if the possibility knocked on her door, she wouldn't. Even if Casper were to marry Donna, Jenna wanted to remain in his heart forever. The selfishness was mutual. In a situation like this, she could only beg him.

“Casp, please don't do this,” she pleaded but Casper was upset. While he was finding a way for them to be together, she was planning on leaving him, which didn't go down well with him and he lost his patience. “Enough already. I can carry you if that's what you want. Haven't you created enough scene?”

Jenna's cheeks turned red as she looked at all the cars packed around them and the people staring, not minding how heavy the rain was getting. Some were even taking pictures. Instantly. She slid into the back seat. Casper asked Caleb to drive and sat beside her. He was afraid she might disappear or something if he wasn't there. She began shivering slightly from the cold so Casper turned on the heater. When they reached the manor, inside Casper's bedroom, Jenna flared up after realizing that she had given in without a solution to grandpa's threat. “You should have let me go. It would have saved a lot of people.” “What are you talking about?” Casper asked coldly. He would readily give his life for her but all she wanted was to leave him. Never. He won't allow it. Jenna had no choice than to trust him and spill the beans.

“Your grandpa has our sex video and will release it if you don't let me go.” She maintained eye contact to show that she was telling the truth but how could Casper believe it? He had long deleted that video after showing it to the old man. “It's not possible. I didn't share that video with anyone. I deleted it after showing it to him.” “I saw it myself,” Jenna countered. She knew in her heart that Casper wouldn't betray her but the fact remained that grandpa had the video and there was nothing they could do about it. Casper began to think through everything that happened that day. He gave the phone to grandpa when he was reading the document. How foolish of him? Grandpa outsmarted him on that day and he was going to pay the price the hard way. “Is that why you wanted to elope or is there something else?” Casper asked with remorse. He had misjudged her and betrayed her trust. If he had been just a little more careful, all this wouldn't be happening.

“Even if you fight this, the problems will only keep compounding. This has to stop.” Jenna was solemn with her words, Casper felt uneasy. She still wanted to leave him. “Even if you leave, it won't change anything. You have to stay.” He sounded so domineering that Jenna lost the strength to argue and slumped into the sofa. She was trapped between Casper and his family. However, she couldn't stand the shame of the video being released and neither could she allow her friends to be endangered.

She saw Casper walk into his study but didn't try to escape. The doors were already locked and most probably, the password should have been changed too. At that moment, all she could wish for was death.

In the study, Casper dialed grandpa's number. He spoke as soon as the call connected because he was greatly upset and spoke seriously and impolitely. “Grandpa, you should understand by now that if Jenna or anyone close to her gets hurt, I'll make sure to destroy everything you ever cherish in your life.” Grandpa was watching soccer on TV. His seemingly good mood was ruined from Casper's tone. “Have you lost your senses?”

Casper scoffed. “Yes, I lost it the moment you threatened Jenna with the sex video. Where did you get it?”

Casper could guess faintly, how he got the video but wanted to be sure that his perception was right, lest someone else got it.

“I have my ways but the sooner you marry Donna, the earlier you realize that you weren't born into an ordinary family.”

Casper's mood deteriorated even more at the mention of Donna. “Grandpa, I don't make idle threats and don't tell me that I didn't warn you.” Casper hang up after that.

The oldman was furious. How dare his grandson hung up the phone on him because of a woman? Besides, that unfortunate girl had disrespected him again, telling everything to Casper. By the time he finished dealing with her, she would regret meeting Casper.

Casper knew nothing about what he held dear and both his wife and son were safe. Therefore, he wasn't going to hold back. In Casper's study, he called Caleb on the phone. “Get someone to hack into the old man's phone, tablet, computer, or any visual devices he has and delete all videos.”

When it was about Casper and Grandpa, Caleb knew it was because of Jenna and didn't ask anymore questions.

“Consider it done.”

“Tell the IT team to secure the security system. Nothing should come and go through our server without my authorization,” Casper instructed firmly.

“Consider it done too.”

“Finally, tell this to Cathan as well. Keep an eye on your women. Don't tell me that I didn't warn you.”

Celeb was getting anxious this time. It seemed that things were becoming more risky than anticipated. “Casper, what is going on?”

“Grandpa is being funny. Just be careful.” Casper warned him and hung up. Caleb and Cathan had returned to the office but Caleb wished to see Casper for more explanation. Thinking through it, he decided to wait till the next day.

Casper dialed Hunter's number. He had given him the day off. “Tell those watching Caesar to get closer.”

Hunter understood faintly that Casper was planning to strike. “Well noted.” By the time Casper came out of the study, Jenna was already asleep on the sofa. From the dried tears on her face, she cried herself to sleep. It was raining heavily outside and office hours hadn't ended yet, grandpa caused their day to be like this.

Casper carried her to the bed and slept beside her, holding her in his arms. By the time they woke up, it was dawn. They were both surprised by how long they had slept.

Casper comforted and assured Jenna that everything was going to be fine and after having their breakfast, showering and all, they went to the office a little earlier than usual, since they had work to cover for the previous day.

Strangely, Peggy was standing in front of Jenna's door when they arrived. “Why did she come to work so early?” Looking at the worried look in Peggy's eyes, Casper could feel something off.

“Jenna, I've been trying to reach you but your phone was off.” Anxiety brewed Peggy's voice. Jenna was oddly unfazed. “I slept early and forgot to charge it.” “So you haven't seen it?” Peggy glanced between Jenna and Casper. Jenna's heart thumped, as she subconsciously stared at Casper.

“Seen what?”

“A sex video about you two. It's on everyone's phone,” Peggy revealed. Grandpa found his grandson ridiculous. Afterall, Casper didn't know the people dearest to him. He expected Casper to hack into his systems to remove the video so he sent a backup beforehand to his trusted hacker.

When they realized they couldn't access the company server, they targeted individual phones.’ Let's see how smooth your relationship will still be after this,’ Grandpa praised himself internally. He was watching them from a secret camera he had installed since he couldn't hack into the company one. He still had a few trusted people in the company. Jenna couldn't take it, running back to the elevator at once. Casper regained himself from the shock too late when the elevator door had closed. He rushed to the stairs, taking it four by four. By the time he reached the ground floor, Jenna was running towards the road but due to her high heels, she wasn't fast enough. It was just unfortunate that she was running into the road without looking

There was a car driving towards her at top speed but it seemed that Jenna hadn't seen it and kept running

She saw the car too late and froze, awaiting her death, which didn't happen, as a force lifted and swayed her off the road from behind.

They were both panting and no one said anything for a while. Casper carried her to his car and drove to his manor. He understood the effect the video had on her and it was all his fault or maybe not.

“Casp, I'm done. I won't work in the company anymore and I want out of this relationship.” Tears flooded her face and Casper's heart ached terribly. All he wanted to do was protect her but rather ended up hurting her. People were going to think differently about her from the video. Though he was also in it, it was easy to overlook it because no one would dare to speak to him about it.

“If you don't want to work in the company, I will set up another one for you but don't ever mention leaving me again.” Casper pressed her tightly to his chest while he spoke but Jenna pulled away and wiped her tears.

“I want nothing from you. I just want my life back.” Casper was feeling a bigger pain in his chest. “What did I do to you? Is it wrong to be in love with you?” The softness of his voice made Jenna to feel remorseful but if the old man messed her life because of the video, then there was also the possibility that her friends were going to be in danger. “I love you Casp, but I hate your family. I'm sorry but you have to let me go.” Casper understood her pain. How would she face her team members and colleagues? Still he would find a way around it but wasn't going to let her go. “We will talk about this later. I have things to take care of.”

Casper left her and went to the study, after making sure that the doors were all locked. He was about to make a call when one came through. It was from Caleb. “I'm sorry Casper. He already sent a copy to a hacker before we did the clean up. Right now, we have removed it from all phones but we can't erase it from the minds of those who have watched it.

Casper spoke calmly and Caleb was surprised. He couldn't discern the tsunami going through the man's mien.

“It's too late for regrets. It's time to use my last card.” Caleb was confused. “What are you talking about?” Casper didn't hide it anymore. “Grandpa has a son called Caesar. Hunter knows his whereabouts. Get him and eliminate him.” Casper paused and said, “no, just bring him to me. I'll do it myself” Caleb was greatly disappointed. “Casper, grandpa has a son and I'm just hearing about it? What happened to us?” Casper wasn't in the mood to dote on pettiness and jealousy from a grown ass man. “Nothing happened to us because if I had sent you on that mission, they would know and we wouldn't have gotten anything.”

Caleb knew that Casper was right. As a Blade, if he had been the one to handle the investigation on something like that, grandpa would have found out and targeted him. “But you could have told me after you found out.”

Casper was getting irritated and maintained his cool. He was in an even greater pain than before. “It doesn't matter. The fewer people knew about it, the better. You could have accidentally told someone about it.”

“It's alright. We'll get to it.” Caleb gave out. It was useless arguing with a man whose mind was made up.

Casper hung up and called grandpa. “Congratulations grandpa, it's time to make you feel every pain that Jenna is going through right now.”

Grandpa was unmoved, his voice irritating. “There is nothing you can do. If you don't get married to Donna, there will be more coming to her.”

Casper swallowed tightly and his eyes darkened with a murderous intent. The old man was unremorseful about everything. “We shall see about that. You talk too much.”

Casper hung up and left the study. When he opened the door to the bedroom, Jenna was lying unconscious on the bed. Fear flung him as he took a step closer and saw some sleeping pills.

The bottle was almost empty and when he touched her, her skin was cold. He instantly felt his breath cease.
