The Substitute Bride Doted by My Billionaire Husband By Sumpto Midway Chapter 822

Chapter 822 Father and son betray each other for a woman

His deep, magnetic voice rang in her ears, and North looked up at him.

Her eyes met his. His deep eyes filled with her reflection, so steady and calm.

“Bro, am I... in trouble?”

Raven touched her small face, then gently curled her thin lips. “You call me bro if you need anything. and if nothing else, you call me “Raven. You’re a realistic woman.”

Raven looked at the slap on her face. Her skin was so delicate, Miss Jones had put ice on her face just now, but it was still red and swollen. He lowered his voice: “Did someone hit you?”

North turned away without saying anything.

Raven pulled his hand back, saying, “I’ll take a shower first.”

He pushed open the bathroom door, and just then there was the sound of running water inside. He was taking a shower.

North sat bewildered for a moment, then pulled the blanket off the bed and hung the black jacket and vest he had left on the sofa on the hanger. His clothes were filled with the smell of him, a healthy and clean man.

Her slender fingers gripped the hard and cold fabric of the suit. She pressed her little nose to it and sniffed. This familiar and mature masculine breath made her somehow comfortable and infatuated. With him here, even if the mountain collapses or the earth cracks, she can rest assured. This is his unique charm.

North knew he’d cared for her for so many years and some things were ingrained in his bones. Even if she picked up the bones and dug her heart out, it wouldn’t erase the mark he left on her body. Suddenly, her eye sockets turned red.

At this moment, the bathroom door was pushed open, and a rush of fresh air rushed in. Raven came out, stood behind her, and asked, “What are you thinking?”

As soon as he stepped out, he saw this scene: she was bewikleredly hugging his clothes.

North held back her tears, saying, “Bro, I want to leave this place, leave the Dominos family, and never come back.”

The last time she left, she had just gotten out of Raven’s bed, but this time when she returned, she accidentally climbed into Tobias’ bed.

She felt sick.

It was too disgusting.

“North...” Raven stretched out his strong arm around her slim waist.

But as soon as he touched her, North’s soft body quickly stiffened like a block of ice.

She raised her eyebrows, her small hand pressed to her heart, looking uncomfortable.

“What’s wrong?” Raven asked.

A second later, North pushed him away, ran to the bathroom, crouched over the toilet, and started vomiting.

She didn’t eat anything and vomited all the bitter bile in her stomach.

Raven stood at the door looking at her. Her face was as pale as paper, like a broken doll, lifeless.

His eyes were dim. He knew she was cold. What he didn’t know was that she was now so resistant to being touched by men that he couldn’t even hug her.

As soon as the vomiting stopped, North’s body fell like a kite with a broken string.

Raven lifted his arms and picked her up, laid her on the big soft bed, covered her with a blanket, and said softly, “North, get some sleep. I still have some work to do. After I’m done, I’ll get you out of here.”

North buried her pale face in the soft pillow. She knew he was going to solve this mess.

Right now the outside world is probably chaotic. She closed her eyes, feeling so tired that she just wanted to sleep.

As her vision darkened, Raven bent over his tall frame, kissing her forehead, “Good night.”

North closed her eyes and soon fell asleep.

Raven looked down at her sleeping hand. In the dim light, he slowly narrowed his cold black eyes, a cold and sinister aura emanating from the bottom of his eyes....

The next morning

North was awakened by a melodious phone ringing. She slowly opened her sleepy eyes. There was nothing around. Raven was no longer there.

She woke up too late. It was eight o'clock in the morning. The morning sunlight penetrated through each layer of curtains, making the room warm.

She is no longer in the Dominos family.

While she was fast asleep, Raven carried her outside. She is currently sleeping on a bed in her own apartment.

She reached out her soft little hand, touched the cell phone on the nightstand, and pressed the connect button: "Hello, Miss Jones."

It was the phone number of her assistant, Miss Jones.

"North, how are you resting? If you rest well then leave Los Angeles. You have a lot of schedules."

Leaving Los Angeles?

Yesterday there was such a big incident at the wedding party, Miss Jones also said that her life as a star was about to end, but why did the storm suddenly stop overnight and it was already sunny?

"Is it Raven?"

"That's right, North. Mr. Dominos took care of everything for you. Last night, he blocked eight powerful entertainment newspapers in Los Angeles. Bad things happened to them, and those reporters left in panic. On Facebook, all posts about you were suppressed. Video and audio disappeared overnight. President Dominos used thunderous methods to wash the entire city with blood. Now talking about you has become a forbidden thing.

Raven has bloodbathed the entire city.

Few people get a chance to see Raven, the handsome and elegant man, the richest man in Los Angeles, take action, but once he does, it will surely be a thunderbolt of destruction,

As for this century's scandal, he said nothing and just raised his hand to cover the sky. He let her live in his arms, blocking all the rain and wind for her.

North's heart swelled little by little. Last night, he returned home despite the rain and wind but his appearance didn't change a bit.

However, he was killing people with thunder outside.

"North, when do we start to go?"

North heard the urge in Miss Jones' words. Miss Jones had never done this before and she seemed to want her to leave immediately.

“Wait, I want to see Raven before we talk.” After saying that, North hung up the phone. In the Dominos family at the moment.

Tobias sat angrily in the living room, hurling his teacup to the floor. He yelled, “Where’s Raven? Call him and tell him to come here! What does he mean he won’t let me out? Is he going to keep me here?”

The servants stood shivering in the corner, not daring to show any expression, fearing that Tobias would take out his anger on them.

Elio also broke out in a cold sweat. North knocking on the door last night was a good thing, but who would have expected it to cause such a commotion? Before he could handle it, a group of bodyguards dressed in black rushed in and pushed Tobias inside, locked the villa, and guarded the door to prevent them from going out.

They were imprisoned!

The Dominos family was about to fall apart. The son imprisoned his father here for a woman.
