

Chapter 20

The little bunny narrowed her eyes at me placing both her hand on either side of her waist like I snatched her favourite chocolate from her. Karan always gave me this look whenever I snatch his chocolate just to irritate him. I ignored her stares and turned my attention towards Juliet who seemed slightly uncomfortable.

"Miss. Hamen haven't I told you clearly just pass the information to her family? Then why did you bring her?" I pointed my forefinger towards the little bunny who was giving me a murderous glare like her mother but the only difference is green orbs replaced by blue.

"Sorry, Boss. Sweety was so adamant about coming here, that's why I brought her. I apologize to you." She said fidgeting her finger nervously while her gaze was solely on the floor.

"Look at me when you speak, you dammit!!" I snapped at her. I won't appreciate these kinds of attitudes and I wonder why dad hired her as my PA when lots of smart people were out there.

She immediately raised her head to look at me as an obedient child. I could feel she is shaking internally but who cares.

"I will stay here with Sweety." She said, her voice was barely audible.

"Leave." I gritted my teeth.

"Huhh?" She furrowed her brows like I gave her an endless task to complete in a day.

"Don't you hear me? Just leave." This time I used my harsh tone.

Chapter 20

I don't know who tried to harm her but it's clear that one of my employees wants to hurt her, maybe want her dead too. So, it's better to be cautious than taking risk and I won't trust anyone with this whether the person is her friend or not.

"I won't leave." I heard the little bunny's stern voice from my behind. When I turned around, I saw the little bunny was sitting on the chair far away from me and folded her arm stubbornly.

"Sweetie baby...." Juliet started to blabber, but I raised my hand to stop her.

"Don't touch my patience, Miss. Harman. It's better to leave if you wish to keep your job." I threw her a murderous glare. I know I'm acting like one of the pregnant women who were in angry mode but right this moment I don't care.

I strictly informed the doctor not to allow anyone to visit her until she gains consciousness.

She glanced at the little bunny who was stubbornly sitting far away from me and then looked at me. "Okay, boss. I am leaving but she hasn't eaten anything from the evening," She mumbled before walked away.

What did she think about me? Do I look like a babysitter? I cursed and sat there silently.

After a while, my stomach growled loudly begging for me to fill my stomach. I had a burger for my lunch and now I am hungry like a lion.

I glanced at the little bunny who has buried her both cheeks on her open palm and rested them on her knees, tapping her feet continuously on the floor.

"What do you want to eat?" I asked losing my patience. But the little bunny looked at me for what seemed to be a nanosecond, then turned her gaze towards the floor then started to tap the floor again.

"Stubborn," I muttered under my breath then took my phone to order the pizza because I am never fond of hospital food.

The pizza has arrived within half an hour and I'm more glad. I can do whatever I want; no one is going to question me because I own this hospital.

I took a slice of pizza and handed it to the little bunny. She is three and a half years old which means she can feed herself by own.

She looked at me and then my hand then again looked at me. Suddenly, her facial expression changed as her creamy skin turned into a shade of pink, it seems she is going to cry.

"Aren't you hungry?" I asked calmly, biting my inner cheek not wanting to scare her.

Slowly, she nodded her head.

"Then why?" Seriously, I have no idea what was running into her tiny brain.

"My mom used to feed me." She pouted, her eyes got glossy. My heart mellowed seeing her like that but I shook my head to get rid of those feelings and focused on her. The mother and daughter love is getting my nerve.

"Today your mom is not well so eat it by yourself." I handed her a slice of pizza and started to eat mine. But the little bunny didn't touch her food not even glance at the slice.

Chapter 20

I put the pizza on the box and set them aside for me before looking at her again.

"Are you going to eat or not?" I raised my voice. But seriously regretted it later a second. I shouldn't have done that, but she left me no option.

She whimpered and threw the pizza on the floor. "I want my mommy," She began to cry. Her face turned into a shade of red and I feel pity for this little bunny for the first time. I tried to convince her but she cried loud enough to make my ear goes deaf.

"I will feed you. Is that okay with you?" I asked but regretted it when I realize what was slipped out of my mouth.

"But monster won't feed" ...hiccup... "then how could you feed me?" She again pouted her lips, tears are pooling down her cheeks. Ahh!! Why it hurt me?

"First, don't call me a Monster. And yes, I can feed you." I said using one of my most calmed tones.

To be continued---

SURPRISE GIFT: 100 BONUS FREE FOR YOU

GET IT

Comments

Support

listen