handsome and good at martial arts!"

Chapter 24

Dan was sitting on an open-air platform on the top floor of the Crowne Hotel. The cigarette between his fingers was about to burn out. The sea level in the distance was sparkling, the seabirds circled in the air, and the white sails were decorated. The scenery was stunning.

The phone on the table vibrated. He got 500 dollar transfer.

Hector and Tristan looked at each other and smiled. They said casually, "Dominic, you're fortunate! Your wife is not only beautiful but also generous.

"This is the first time you've spent a woman's money, right? Does it feel good?"

Dan glanced at him and quietly put the phone back in place.

Although he was expressionless, he felt warm in her heart.

He didn't expect that Jane would transfer the money. He had calculated that she only had 500 dollars on her bank card.

He put the cigarette butt into the ashtray and rolled it a few times. A complicated expression flashed across his face as he looked into the distance.

"By the way," Tristan said in a low voice, "It's not convenient for Hector to show up, so gated the Hizack Company. Ava is a director of the company. Because her uncle is a shareholder, she is quite willful in the company.

Halfway through his sentence, Tristan wondered if he should tell him the rest.

Dan's eyes darkened. "Speak."

"She's also Adam's girlfriend." Tristan said with difficulty, "As for Adam, he's the director of Jane's department and her college senior. He has pursued her..."

He looked at Dan's face, which was as calm as ice, but his hands on the table were clenched tightly. Tristan coughed lightly and said, "Dominic, it happened when she was in school. It's not a big deal."

"Yes." Dan raised his eyelids. "Did I say anything!"

Tristan couldn't help laughing.

He didn't say anything, but it was more serious.

"Continue."

"Ava always makes trouble for Jane. That's why Jane didn't even sign a single order in the first month of work."

Dan's face grew darker and darker.

"Hey, what's so difficult about that?" Hector waved his hand. "Dominic, do you want to teach Ava a lesson? Leave it to me! By the way, I'll help you deal with that Adam!"

Tristan coughed hard and gave him an incurable look.

"There's no need." Dan's voice was cold. "It's not a big deal. It's eye-catching to set off a storm in such a small company. Let Jane deal with it herself. Don't worry about her."

"Oh, yes." Tristan echoed, "I understand what you mean. There's no need to waste time on people like Ava and Adam. At worst, Jane could resign. It's not like Dominic can't afford to raise her."

Dan replied with a "hmm" and poured himself a cup of coffee. After a moment of silence, his eyelids moved, and his eyes seemed to have a deep meaning.

"Jane went to meet a client today." With these words, he got up and left the rooftop.

Hector looked at his back and was stunned like a fool. Tristan was an intelligent person and quickly understood the meaning of these words.

"What's going on?" Hector opened his mouth wide. "That's the most annoying thing about Dominic. He never makes things clear."

Tristan smiled, closed his jaw, and ordered softly, "Go check it out!"

"Check what?"

"Jane's clients! Stupid!"

Hector was confused. "Didn't he say to leave it to her?"

Tristan rolled his eyes. It was tough to talk to such a person!

When Dan returned home, Jane had not returned yet. He looked at his watch. There should still be some time before she got off work.

She looked around. Although Sam had been busy with work recently, the house was still clean, and everything in the kitchen was in order.

He smiled lightly. She was already so busy, but she didn't hesitate to work hard and didn't complain. She was still responsible for the family expenses.

She seemed to want to spend the rest of her life with him.

For the rest of her life...

Could he stay with her for the rest of his life?

Dan frowned slightly. He was stunned for a long time before turning around and entering the bathroom.

He decided to focus on the present. He remembered that Jane had once said that this family belonged to them. As a husband, he should share some housework.

He chuckled and looked at the laundry basket. The laundry from a few days ago was still there.

Dan planned to wash these first. When Jane came back, she would be very happy.

He quickly poured out all the dirty clothes, but a small white thing suddenly came into view...
