

The Secret Heir Return To Wealth And Love Chapter 1367

The Secret Heir Return To Wealth And Love Chapter 1367

Chapter 1367

Ableson looked at the guy who just got a beating.

“Feeling pretty embarrassed, huh?”

The guy scratched his head, glanced at the second floor with a troubled look, “How the hell does she have such good hearing?” Ableson’s face changed slightly, “Felix has been training her hearing since she was little. The goal is to help her run away better.” With such good hearing, not only can she escape, but she can also predict the opponent’s actions more accurately during a fight.

1

Wait until she grows up a bit more All the old geezers here probably won’t be a match for her.

What’s more, her current teacher is Calvin.

“Furry!!!”

Just as he was thinking, Calvin’s voice came from a distance.

Ableson and the others instinctively looked over. They saw that Calvin was—walking just fine, but was bulldozed by Max, ending up flat on his back. Max seemed very happy.

Under the morning sun, his golden fur seemed to glow. He was wagging his happy tongue, running around the toppled-over Calvin.

Furry was Calvin’s nickname for Max.

Today, Calvin is also getting a beating from the golden retriever.!" someone muttered.

Ever since Calvin used Max's chicken leg as fertilizer, he completely offended Max.

The relationship between man and dog became extremely tense.

Rosalynn had just arrived at the company.

The legal department immediately sent over the documents signed by Luminary Enterprises, transferring the Evergreen Glades business, to Rosalynn. "Check carefully, don't leave any issues. These guys are good at this kind of thing." Rosalynn said coldly.

"Yes!" Hector immediately responded.

Rosalynn saw that he didn't leave, looked up at him, "Is there something else?"

Hector pursed his lips, "Wayne's will is still with me, should we announce it?"

Rosalynn's gaze turned cold, "Dead people's wills need to be announced. Is he dead?"

Hector had seen Rosalynn before.

He would always remember the first time he saw Rosalynn at his grandparents' wedding anniversary.

But the Rosalynn then and the Rosalynn now were completely different people. Both were strong women, but the current Rosalynn was too decisive and resolute. "My mistake." Hector immediately apologized.

Rosalynn ignored him.

Hector knew when to leave. At the door, he ran into Sean.

Sean saw his dejected look, "I told you not to mention it, but you just wouldn't listen."

"This couple, they're really cut from the same cloth." Hector sighed, "Wayne left so much inheritance, all she has to do is declare him dead, and it's all hers."

What Hector didn't say was, aside from buying trust funds for their two children, Wayne left all his assets to Rosalynn..

In his years as a lawyer, Hector had never seen a will where only a little was left for the children and the rest was given to the wife.

"After Secretary Tesdal's plane crash, even though many years have passed, President Silverman still insists that she is not gone. He has always been waiting, until Secretary Tesdal really came back. Now... even if it seems impossible to us, I want to wait for a miracle too."

"Miracles are called miracles because they are rare." Hector sighed, "Anyway, if one day she changes her mind, be sure to let me know."

"Okay."

Hector left with a heavy heart.

Sean knocked on the door and began his day's work.

Before Rosalynn left, she had already scheduled a doctor's appointment for Paige.

Although Ivy was short, she was tough as nails. But in the end, what made Paige leave was Hilaria's fury.

Chapter 1368

On the way to the hospital, Baillie was behind the wheel, with Paige riding shotgun and Cory, Ivy, and Molly in the backseat. "Honey, am I being irresponsible for making the kids worry about me?" Paige whispered to Baillie, glancing back at the kids. Baillie just chuckled and shrugged.

They arrived at the hospital. To Paige's relief, it didn't smell like she had expected it to.

After a quick check-up, the doctor confirmed that Paige's morning sickness was pretty severe. But it hadn't caused any other health issues, and he prescribed some supplements to help alleviate her symptoms.

On leaving the hospital, Paige was feeling noticeably better.

“Paige, do you feel better because we went out?” Cory asked.

“Maybe,” Paige replied thoughtfully. “I’ve been cooped up at home these past few days. Let’s go out and have some fun!”

After saying this, she turned her attention to Molly, who had been silent but alert—throughout the trip.

“Molly, is there anywhere you’d like to go?”

Molly seemed stumped by the question. She didn’t really have any specific ideas about where they should go.

“Ivy, where do you want to go?” she instinctively turned to Ivy.

Seeing the momentary look of confusion in Molly’s eyes, Paige felt a pang of sympathy.

“We can’t go to the amusement park. It’s too crowded and Paige needs special care. Next time I’ll take you there alone,” Ivy explained seriously to Molly. “You like the same things as Cory, right? How about we go to a science museum or a regular museum?”

Molly simply nodded. Wherever Ivy suggested was fine by her.

“Paige, what do you think?” Ivy asked Paige.

“Let’s go to the science museum first, then Ballie can treat us all to a grand lunch. In the afternoon, we can go to the museum, then buy some food that your mom likes, and then pick her up from work!” Paige said, brimming with plans.

Both Ivy and Baillie frowned at the same time.

“Isn’t that going to be too tiring?” they asked in unison.

“Can Cory handle it? Can Molly handle it? Can Paige handle it?” Ivy raised all the potential issues.

“Molly can definitely handle it!” Paige turned to Cory. “What about Cory?”

“I’m fully recovered,” Cory said helplessly. “It’s all good.”

“Great! The squad is officially on the move! Paige immediately announced.

Baillie just smiled and shook his head. What could he do when his wife was so full of energy? All he could do was follow her around and protect her carefully.

Lately, Ivy had developed a great interest in photography.

She was busy taking pictures all the way. At the science museum, during lunch, and even more so at the museum.

The museum they visited was full of exhibits of ancient clothing, jewelry, and jade artifacts..

Paige was happiest to see Molly.

She was a little reserved in the morning, but by lunchtime, she had become more outgoing, her laughter sweet and cheerful.

After the museum, the five of them raced to buy the food that Rosalynn liked, and then reached Bane Corporation before six, hoping to surprise Rosalynn. However, when they arrived at Bane Corporation, they only found Sean.

“Ms. Tesdal has gone to Bane Energy Corporation, there’s some issues that need addressing over there, Sean frowned, clearly unhappy. “I suggest you guys better not go...”

Paige and Baillie exchanged a glance.

“Alright, you go on ahead, we’ll take them home now,” Paige nodded.

Sean took off in a hurry.

Chapter 1369

Paige stayed put, muttering under her breath, “Another one’s giving her a hard time, so annoying!”

Baillie wrapped her arms around her waist, reassuring her, “Don’t sweat it. There’s nothing she can’t handle.”

The fact that Luminary Enterprises handed all of Evergreen Glades’ business over in just a few days speaks volumes.

“I’m just worried about her, Paige sighed.

Ever since Wayne’s incident, she didn’t even have time to rest. A mountain of issues was weighing her down.

The thought of it was so distressing to Paige.

Moreover, she couldn’t offer any help with what Rosalynn was doing, all she could do was fret on the side.

With the kids still around, Paige quickly composed herself. She took the kids and headed home.

It was still cold outside, and it got dark early. On their way home, the city lights were just coming on and the night was falling.

The kids, either tired or upset about not seeing their mom, were looking out the car window.

Cory was resting with his eyes closed.

Molly was wearing headphones, lost in whatever she was listening to.

Paige turned to Baillie and suggested, "How about grabbing something to eat before we head home?"

Baillie nodded, "There are some decent restaurants near Bane Energy Corporation. We can eat there before we go home."

"Can we?"/The kids immediately perked up.

"Sure, let's go with your idea. Let's hit the road!" Seeing the kids getting excited, Paige couldn't help but feel happy.

Baillie made a U-turn and headed straight for Bane Energy Corporation.

Back at Bane Energy Corporation.

Aherne sat across from Rosalynn, "Mrs. Silverman, I don't quite understand. Leaving a job isn't a big deal, why did you personally come all the way here? I'm not worth your attention."

Rosalynn was looking at the view outside the floor-to-ceiling windows in the CEO's office.

Compared to Bane Corp Center, this place was much quieter.

"Aherne, how many years have you been working with President Silverman?" Rosalynn didn't respond to his question but asked him one instead.

Aherne looked at Rosalynn.

To be honest, ever since Rosalynn came back to take over Bane Energy Corporation, every single day had been stifling for him. Those who didn't get along with him would occasionally use this to provoke him.

But the tables had turned. Wayne had passed away. Rosalynn lost her support!

This year had been the most comfortable year of his life!

Now, he was leaving with his team. It was her turn to beg him!

What a blast!

“I guess it’s been about ten years?” Aherne muttered to himself, ten years was nothing compared to Rosalynn’s sex skills. In the end, Wayne was still bewitched by her, giving t he CEO position that should’ve been his to a woman like her!

But, karma is a bitch, isn’t it?

“You started working with President Silverman right after you got your Master’s degree t hen.” Rosalynn nodded, “What a pity, even a dog can be well trained in ten years, but y ou can’t.”

Her words just dropped.

Aherne’s mind went blank. He looked at Rosalynn as if she was an alien, “What... what did you just say?”

Chapter 1370

“You know as well as I do, your rank and situation don’t warrant me coming down pers onally. So why do you think I’m here?” Rosalynn’s gaze was as sharp as a razor.

Aherne, a seasoned office worker, felt an indescribable sense of dread.

“Secretary Tesdal, you can’t just bully me like this. Just because you’re Wayne’s wife, you stole my CEO positio n, and now that I’m leaving, you’re here to humiliate me?” Aherne slammed the table and stood up.

“Who do you think you’re yelling at?” Felix snapped menacingly.

Aherne revealed a hint of fear.

Rosalynn held up a hand, signaling Felix to back down.

Felix stared at Aherne like a hawk watching its prey.

Outside the door, a crowd had gathered.

Hearing the commotion, their faces changed.

Several young men exchanged glances and quickly pushed the door open

“What do you think you’re doing!” Felix pointed at them, ready to step forward.

“Let them in.” Rosalynn said impassively, taking her seat at the CEO’s desk again.

“Secretary Teşdal, why won’t you let us leave?”

“Yeah, we’ve already handed over our work, why can’t we leave?”

“We just work for Bane Energy Corporation, we’re not owned by Bane Energy Corporation!”

People started to question.

-

Rosalynn looked at them coldly, “Did you think I wouldn’t know that you’ve pledged allegiance to a new energy team?”

The crowd, who were just yelling, immediately changed their expressions.

“What are you accusing us of?” Aherne responded quickly, “Are you implying that I’m stealing Bane Energy Corporation’s trade secrets for another company?”

“You nailed it.” Rosalynn stared at him, “Isn’t the core data of OTC471 your little peace offering?”

This core data was key to the joint project between Bane Corporation and the Rosso family. If other Energy Corporations got this data and completed the project ahead of time, Bane Energy Corporation would suffer significant losses. Moreover, since Bane Energy Corporation leaked the data, the Rosso family could also claim damages from Bane Corporation.

Aherne’s face started to change. “Secretary Tesdal, who told you all this? This is pure slander!”

Rosalynn tossed a stack of printed chat records in front of him, “Besides these, there are also audio and video recordings of you guys meeting, dining, and drinking with people from that company. Do you want me to play them publicly?”

“You...you had me followed?” Aherne stuttered.

“People give gifts to you, and they also give gifts to me.” Rosalynn replied indifferently.

“What do you want?” Aherne asked harshly.

“Firstly, when you joined Bane Energy Corporation, you signed a contract stating that you cannot work in the same industry and position for two years after leaving. I can approve your resignation, but if you guys want to go to that company, forget it.”

“We’re willing to pay compensation!” Aherne sneered, “A breach of contract? We can pay!”

The other company indicated that they would pay for any breach of contract penalties.

Rosalynn didn’t say anything. She took out her phone and made a call. It was answered quickly.

“Ms. Jared? Why do you need to contact me?”

“Marion, your research and development department has poached a team from my company, Bane Energy Corporation. Are you aware of this?”

“What?” The voice on the phone was full of surprise, “Ms. Jared, we used to be partners, how could I poach from your company? It must be done by my employees behind my back!”

“Whether you knew or not, considering our relationship, I want to give you a friendly warning.” Rosalynn said, looking at Aherne, “If your company hires any member of this team, I will surely think of some ways to put your company at the risk of bankruptcy.”