

The Secret Heir Return To Wealth And Love Chapter 1916

The Secret Heir Return To Wealth And Love Chapter 1916

Chapter 1916

These monks had never seen such a spectacle before.

Sure, Mary had passed away and they were the victims.

Yet, they were dubbed as heartless monks.

Martin was so furious, he was on the verge of tears

Just then, someone dashed out from beside Martin.

Before anyone could react, she rushed towards the woman and shoved her to the ground.

Then, there were several loud slaps.

“Erica Martin was shocked to his core.

“Erical

Larkin rushed over, and before Jeannie Oakley could react and scream in retaliation, he grabbed Erica and pulled her into his arms.

Jeannie was slapped several times.

She immediately got up and rushed towards Erica like a madwoman.

“Stop her!” Larkin ordered.

Several ordinary-looking men in plain clothes rushed over and pinned Jeannie to the ground.

“Murderers! The monks are murderers!”.

Jeannie screamed at the top of her lungs.

“Look closely, I’m not a monk!” Larkin retorted coldly.

Erica wanted to rush out and hit Jeannie again, “Your own daughter is crazy, don’t you know that? Why didn’t you control her! She killed a child and you still dare to babble nonsense here!!”

“Who are you! What’s it to you?!” Jeannie struggled fiercely.

She was used to working in the fields and was very strong.

The bodyguards almost couldn’t hold her down.

At this moment, Erica roared back, “I’m her mother! I’m the mother of the child you killed!!”

As her words fell, the entire place fell into a dead silence.

A leaf fell from a tall tree, spinning down to the ground.

“Nonsense! She’s an orphan, the police told me!” Jeannie regained her senses and began to struggle again.

Initially, she didn’t plan to come here after the little nun’s death.

But yesterday, she unexpectedly learned something.

Although it was quick, Madeleine seemed to have found a professional medical team this time, and not a scam.

Madeleine’s mother was very happy every day.

Jeannie thought her daughter was very beautiful.

If she could really be cured, she would have no problem marrying a rich man in the future.

In this way, her son would have money for his wedding.

After some thought, she rushed over overnight.

Unexpectedly, these heartless monks, seeing her as if they had seen something horrifying, wanted her to leave.

Left with no choice, she sat on the ground and cried.

Her only goal was to make the monks afraid of her causing a scene, forcing them to help her daughter find medical help.

Chapter 1917

Who'd have thought, just as the monks were about to crack, a woman showed up out of nowhere.

She beat her up, and even claiming to be the dead girl's mother!

If it wasn't for the cop who said on the day of the incident that the girl was an orphan and was taken in by the monks, she might have bought into the woman's story!

"You don't get it!" Martin shouted, his voice going hoarse, "Erica and her husband had already arranged to adopt Mary with the monastery. She is Mary's mother! You have no idea what you and your daughter have destroyed!!"

Erica felt like she was being stabbed in the heart.

If it weren't for Larkin supporting her, she would have collapsed on the spot.

"I don't care about any of that, I want you to cure my daughter now. Why did you save Madeleine and not my daughter?" Jeannie blurted out all at once, and continued to rant, "My daughter was getting better in the hospital, it was after coming here that she got worse because of you guys. You must cure her!! Otherwise I'll tear down your monastery!"

"How funny." Larkin said coldly, "do you know who arranged for the experts to treat Madeleine?"

Jeannie frowned, "I don't care who it was, but they have to take responsibility!"

"The person who arranged and paid for Madeleine's treatment was wife," Larkin said coldly, "your daughter is the murderer of our child, and you still dream of getting money and medical aid from us? Dream on!"

Jeannie was shocked.

"No way! How could it be you! What are the odds!!"

Her daughter randomly killed someone, and it turned out to be the little girl their benefactors wanted to adopt?

She would never believe such a thing.

Larkin didn't bother arguing with her any further.

He gestured to the bodyguard, who immediately handed him a phone.

Larkin dialed a number directly.

The phone rang a few times before someone picked up. Before Larkin could even speak, Faustina's enthusiastic voice came through, "Mr. Carter, I've been meaning to call you these past few days, to thank you!"

Larkin asked, "How's your daughter doing?"

"She's doing really well! Dr. Lange is amazing!" Faustina sounded like she had a lot to say.

But Larkin hung up the phone.

How could Jeannie not recognize that voice? It was clearly Faustina's.

She felt like she had been struck by lightning.

"Sir, madam... it's all a misunderstanding!" Jeannie immediately changed her tune, "Mr. Carter, Mrs. Carter, there's been a misunderstanding between us. That day, these monks looked down on us, which upset my daughter and triggered her illness! You're educated people, and you should know that when someone with a mental illness has an attack, they can't control themselves! Even if it's to prevent a similar incident happening in the future, please help us!"

Even as she was pinned to the ground, Jeannie tried her best to ingratiate herself with them, "You guys helped Madeleine, adopted orphans, you're really kind people! Please forgive my past mistakes, help my child, help our family!"

"Shut it!" Martin couldn't take it anymore, "I overheard you on the phone with your family that day in the monastery, you just want to cure your daughter without spending a dime, and then use her to make some money!!"

There were a lot of onlookers around.

After hearing this, they started to murmur amongst themselves.

Criticism and disgusted gazes all focused on Jeannie.

Larkin didn't want to waste any more words on Jeannie.

He left her with one sentence, "If she makes trouble in the monastery, just call the police and have her arrested, no need to waste time here. As for her slander and false accusations, Martin, go tell your master that I'll handle it and won't let the monastery suffer any negative publicity."

With that, he picked up Erica and headed straight for the car.

Jeannie watched as Larkin's figure disappeared into the distance, her whole body going numb.

She knew her plan had completely failed this time.

Disappointment and anger welled up in her heart.

Not only was she unable to cure that madwoman, she was also accused of using her daughter for money, and she might even have to take care of her for the rest of her life!!

She glared at Martin with resentment.

"Ah!!! You heartless monk! I wish my daughter had killed you too when she had the chance!!"

Summer break's winding down.

Chapter 1918

Lots of parents are hoping their kids will ace the new school year.

In the days leading up to the start of school, the monastery's been packed with folks praying non-stop.

A scene of Jeannie wailing at the monastery entrance was swiftly caught on camera by onlookers.

Among them, there was an internet celeb.

He wanted to get fame, so he edited the video,

He cut out only the parts where Jeannie was sobbing about the monastery reneging on its promise to help her sick daughter.

He then commented, criticizing that even holy monasteries are now run by phony monks hustling and bullying the poor.

Once the video was up, it sparked the celeb's fans into hurling slurs at the monastery.

Some even dug up the monk who blocked Jeannie, calling for their personal info to be exposed.

"I never step foot in these monasteries, they're all scams!"

"This is outrageous, this woman looks like she's from the countryside, probably doesn't have much money, they promised to help her, how could they back out!"

"They're too much! Hope the authorities step in and investigate this monastery!"

"That poor woman is crying so hard!"

"I know this woman, she's my cousin's neighbor, she's a good person, she must've been pushed to the brink to cry out in the street like this!"

The chatter grows louder.

But not long after the internet celeb started celebrating, someone found a more complete video near the monastery.

The irate viewers only found out after watching that the crying woman's daughter had a mental illness, and had just recently killed a young nun in the monastery.

"Oh my God, I looked it up, that poor young nun, she was an orphan, raised by the monks in the monastery. She was about to be adopted, and then she got killed!"

"I watched the video, let me sum it up, first, there were good people in the monastery, they came across a woman from a previous news story (she had a split personality due to trauma), they felt sorry for her, so they brought in a team of professional doctors, and covered her treatment expenses. This woman found out about it, and brought her sick daughter to the monastery, hoping for free treatment and help, then on that day, her daughter killed a young nun in the monastery. Now this woman is demanding the monastery to provide free treatment and help for her daughter, the monastery refused, so she's crying out. And this internet celeb is using this to stir up buzz."

A blogger was the first to piece together the incident based on online info.

The viewers got even more pissed.

The internet celeb quickly took down the original video, then posted an apology video, claiming he didn't have the full picture.

He only posted the previous video because he was misled into thinking this woman from the countryside needed help.

But at this point, there are still some people defending Jeannie.

“Shouldn’t we be more kind? I think we shouldn’t argue with a mad person, cure her, so she won’t hurt more people!”

“This might be controversial, but I think this is the power of a mother’s love. She just wants to save her daughter.”

“I hope that the people who offered help can see this mother’s helplessness, and help her daughter.”

As these opinions sparked heated discussions, another video was posted.

This video showed a standoff between Erica and Jeannie.

Most people who frequent the internet know Erica.