

Returning from the Dead: His Secret Lover Chapter 1171

Chapter 1171 Who Is The Silly One

That night, Sasha told Sebastian about her conversation with Sabrina.

Her gut instinct told her that Sabrina was acting weirdly and suggested bringing her to the hospital for a medical checkup. More specifically, Sasha emphasized that Sabrina should get her brain checked.

Fortunately, the darkness concealed Sebastian's face because he was at a loss for words.

"She's just in a bad mood. Why don't you take her out for a stroll? I'm sure she will feel better after getting some fresh air," he finally replied.

"Really?" Sasha remained doubtful.

Their conversation came to an abrupt halt when Sebastian grabbed her waist and pinned her under him.

"Darling, do you still remember how you yanked my ear in front of so many people?" he said in a low voice.

Trapped under him, Sabrina widened her eyes in surprise.

The audacity of him to bring it up! He was the one who ran off without any notice and returned with his body covered with injuries. Does he know how worried I was when he disappeared?

Sasha's brows drew together into a scowl. "It's your fault for not listening to me. Why did you go to such a dangerous place? Couldn't you inform me beforehand?" she retorted.

"Yes, Darling, it was all my fault."

At least he owned up to his mistakes.

Soon, she was distracted when Sebastian's hands began to wander across her body. "However, did you forget that your husband is the authoritative figure around here? You yanked my ear in front of so many people. What if I become a laughing stock at the White House tomorrow?"

Sebastian paused before he continued, "What if people see me and ask humiliating questions? They might ask if it's true my wife yanked me by the ear and punished me?"

The intimidating and ruthless man in the eyes of the public rambled on like a petulant teenager.

For a moment, Sasha was dumbfounded by Sebastian's tone. Her anger vanished in the blink of an eye.

That night, the loving couple shared a long and passionate moment beneath the duvet.

When Sasha woke up, it was already noon.

"Mommy, are you awake yet? Mommy?" Vivian hollered outside her room.

Since it was a weekend, Vivian's teacher would not be here. Naturally, the clingy little girl went looking for her mother as soon as she woke up.

Hurriedly, Sasha pushed herself upright.

"Ah!" The sudden movement caused her body to throb in pain, and she failed to hold back her pained cry.

Sebastian, that jerk! How rough was he last night? I can't even climb out of bed!

Her face crimsoned, so Sasha was forced to lie back on the bed for a little longer before she finally clambered out of bed to open the door.

"Vivi, you are awake so early."

"Yup!" Vivian handed Sasha the flowers she had picked from the garden. "Mommy, my best friend said that Central Square just opened a new theme park called Winter Wonderland. Can we go there today?" she pleaded.

Best friend? Despite being so young, she already has a best friend?

Sasha was stunned. "Sure, but you have to tell Mommy who your best friend is."

"She's Jessica from my art class! We get along very well. We even exchanged numbers and started chatting ever since. She asked me for Ian's number, but he refused to give it to her." Vivian showed her mother a picture of Jessica on her smartwatch.

When Vivian mentioned how Ian refused to add Jessica, a sad sigh escaped her lips.

Sasha was amused yet angry.

Time sure flies. My children are all growing up so fast. They all have their own social circles. Wait, did Vivi mention Winter Wonderland? Didn't Sebastian suggest bringing Sabrina out for a stroll? This is the perfect opportunity! I can bring both Sabrina and Jaena along. Besides, Jaena hasn't had the chance to play outside.

After agreeing to Vivian's request, she told the little girl to inform her brothers before heading to the second floor.

"Sab, do you want to head out?"

"Where are we going?" Sabrina had woken up early. When Sasha opened the door, she found her playing with Jaena.

Sabrina's good mood was infectious, as Sasha also found herself in high spirits. "We are going to Central Square. Vivi told me that her friend invited her to a newly opened theme park over there. Why don't you bring Jaena along? Since her birth, we have all been too busy to bring her out."

As soon as Sasha finished talking, Sabrina accepted her suggestion without a second thought. "Okay."

The former was taken aback by Sabrina's easygoing reply. Should I bring a few bodyguards along with us?

Because Sebastian was attending the Coopers' funeral, Sasha called to ask for his approval, to which he agreed. Happily, Sabrina, Sasha, Wendy, and the four children set off toward Central Square.

Since Sasha often took her children out on the weekends, she had gotten used to it.

On the other hand, Sabrina could barely remain seated. She would point at the scenery throughout the car ride and talk to her three-month-old daughter excitedly.

Chapter 1172 But I Really Like You

Sasha could not help but smile at Sabrina's antics.

"Sab, she's too young to understand anything," she teased.

"How do you know that? She's so happy. Look! She keeps looking outside." Sabrina ignored her and continued to croon at Jaena.

Sasha shook her head in exasperation.

Soon, they arrived at Central Square.

After Sasha got out of the car, she instructed Wendy to escort the triplets to the theme park. As for herself, she chose to stay back and help Sabrina carry the baby products, such as formula, diapers, water, and so on.

"Sabrina, is that you?" Just as they reached the mall entrance, a bespectacled young man jogged over.

Sabrina, who was pushing the stroller, came to a halt.

Similarly, Sasha stood still in surprise when she caught sight of the man.

Isaac? Why is he here?

"Mr. Sheerwood, you... You haven't returned yet?" she asked.

"Nope. I didn't leave because I was worried out of my mind. The guards at Red Pavilion refused to let me in, so I dropped by occasionally to check on Sabrina. When I heard that she ran back to Oceanic Estate, I panicked and stood guard outside for the entire night!" Isaac was as shy as ever.

Though he did not do anything wrong, his hasty explanation made him appear nervous.

He stood outside Oceanic Estate for the entire night? Sasha was shocked to hear this.

On the other hand, a look of displeasure appeared on Sabrina's face when he heard his confession.

'What are you doing? Didn't I tell you to return to Yartran? Don't let me hear something like this ever again," Sabrina uttered coldly and left with her child.

It had been a long time since Isaac saw her treat him like this.

Promptly, his face turned bright red as he gazed at her retreating back. The bashful man became even more restless.

Feeling sorry for the young man, Sasha stepped forward and consoled, "Mr. Sheerwood, it'd be best if you returned. You should stop trying to court Sabrina. There are plenty of women out there. I'm sure you'll find the right one for you." Her words were clear-cut and straightforward.

However, Isaac's head shot up.

"Why?" he asked. "Now that the father of her child is gone, I'm willing to take care of her. I promise you that I'll treat the child as my own. This time, my parents will not interfere anymore. I will do whatever I can to give them a happy life."

Tears began to well in his eyes.

Sasha was at a loss for words.

She never doubted his love toward Sabrina, for he had shown his devotion through his actions. Isaac spent half a year on that island with Sabrina and even decided to marry her.

Sabrina was caught between a rock and a hard place at that time, but...

Before Sasha could come up with a reply, Sabrina returned.

"Let me talk to him. Help me take care of Jaena." After handing Jaena into Sasha's arms, she whirled around to face Isaac.

Sasha was nonplussed, so was Isaac.

When he felt her cold gaze on him, he looked up and paled at the sight of the lofty woman standing at the top of the staircase.

Uneasiness prickled his skin. Isaac felt like he was a criminal about to have his sentence pronounced.

In a daze, Isaac found himself brought to a nearby cafe. As soon as he sat down, she pulled out a golden card.

"What's the meaning of this?"

At that sight, he raised his head immediately, feeling as if she had just humiliated him.

Instead of explaining, Sabrina waved her hand to signal Isaac to calm down.

“Listen to me,” she said in a firm tone, “I am aware of the feelings you have toward me. However, I’ve decided to devote myself to Devin forever. Once I married him, he became a part of me. I can never remarry. Take this card as a token of my gratitude for taking care of me on the island while I was pregnant with Jaena. The card doesn’t contain money but a property I purchased in Yartran. Since you and your family just moved there, it must be hard for you to settle. You’ll need it.”

Instead of avoiding Isaac’s feelings for her, she came clean and told him about her decision.

Despite her rejection, Isaac admired her for not leading him on.

Instantly, his eyes reddened with sadness. Though he was a grown man, he could not smother his sorrows and shed tears. As he had his head lowered, they splattered onto his glasses. Even the neighboring customers could hear his suppressed sobs.

“But... I really like you.”

When Sabrina got up to leave the cafe, she heard Isaac speak in a hoarse voice.
