Chapter 1576 She Wants To Go See Kurt

Last I heard, Vivi got into a fight with Kurt during summer break because he got a little too controlling in some aspects. I thought they already made up by now. Had I known that isn't the case, I would've suggested for Sebby to have Kurt study somewhere else instead!

Right as Sasha was starting to regret her decision, Vivian spoke up all of a sudden.

"No, that's not it, Mommy! I'm really happy that Kurt is going to study here! I won't be alone with him around! Could you tell me when he'll be coming over, Mommy? I want to go see him!"

In just a few minutes, Vivian sounded like a dead person who had come back to life.

Although Sasha found it a little strange, she answered Vivian's question anyway.

"I think he'll be handling the registration procedures this Wednesday. Your daddy has taken care of the tuition fees..."

"Okay, got it! Thanks, Mommy!"

Vivian then hung up the phone without even saying goodbye and ran off as quickly as her legs could carry her.

Sasha could only let out a helpless sigh as she placed her phone down.

Oh, well... I'm just glad she's not upset about it. I guess I don't have to worry about them being unhappy to see each other!

With that in mind, Sasha went back to what she was doing before the call.

Vivian was finally smiling again when she returned to the classroom, much to the relief of Sonia when she saw her.

"Did something great happen, Vivi? You look really happy!" she asked.

"Yeah! Kurt is going to further his studies here!"

Since Sonia knew Kurt too, Vivian made no attempt to hide it from her at all.

Sonia's eyes lit up with excitement after she heard the news.

"Really? That's amazing! I haven't seen him in a really long time. Honestly, I'm surprised that he's coming over. Which university did he get into?"

"Atlantius University!" Vivian replied proudly as if she was the one who got into the university instead.

The reason for that was that she genuinely cared about him, so she also shared his feelings of joy and sadness.

Oh my god! Atlantius University is a really prestigious university here in Yartran! Kurt sure is amazing if he managed to get in!

Sonia, too, felt really happy at the thought of that.

She was grinning from ear to ear as she said, "In that case, we can have Kurt join us this weekend! Since he'll be new here, it'd probably do him good to relax for a bit before classes start."

"Hmm..."

Vivian was a little convinced by her suggestion.

She's right! I'll have more excuses to ask him out on future dates if I can get him to come with us this weekend! It'd be awkward if I just show up at his university all of a sudden, after all!

Just like that, the two decided to go visit Kurt at Atlantius University in three days and bring him to the farm during the weekend.

It was a perfect plan, and Vivian finally stopped moping around as she looked forward to seeing him.

In fact, she got so excited about it that she could barely sleep at all.

Sonia headed over to her house really early on Thursday and called out to her at the door, "Hey, Vivi! I'm outside your door! Are you ready to leave the house yet?"

Vivian soon came running downstairs wearing a nice dress and a handbag over her shoulder.

She looked so pretty that even Sonia found herself captivated and stared at her with her mouth wide open.

Vivian had on a khaki dress that she had made herself. Although the color looked a little mature for her age, the sleeves and collar were decorated with light blue pearls which highlighted her fair complexion and exquisite facial features.

In fact, it even added an air of elegance to her appearance.

Noticing Sonia staring at her in silence, Vivian instantly lost whatever confidence she had built up.

“What’s wrong? Does it look ugly? I’ll go put on another dress right away!”

She was very conscious about the dress because she had designed it specifically for this little reunion of theirs.

Sonia quickly grabbed her by the arm and reassured her, “No, that’s not it, Vivi. I was stunned because of how amazing it looks! Where did you buy this dress? I want to get myself one too!”

Although Vivian didn’t say anything in response, she felt really relieved to hear that.

The two of them then took a bus to the nearest train station and began their journey to Atlantius University from there.

Despite her status as the daughter of a wealthy family, Vivian never acted like one whenever she was out and about.

Instead, she preferred to use public transportation such as buses and trains like most other people, a practice which even Sebastian found to be impressive.

Chapter 1577 Looking Forward To It

Atlantius was a city with a very long history behind it.

Although it was not as economically advanced as the one Vivian was staying in, it had a very rich cultural heritage and a much slower-paced lifestyle.

In fact, it was so similar to Jazona that anyone from that area would fit right in.

As it was autumn at the time, the first thing Vivian and Sonia noticed upon arrival was the golden and brown leaves scattered all over the streets.

However, the citizens were in no hurry to sweep the leaves away as they enjoyed the beautiful scenery it created.

For some reason, the sound of the leaves crunching beneath their feet seemed to soothe their hearts and ease their minds.

Vivian closed her eyes and tried to immerse herself in the beauty of it all.

Sonia, on the other hand, was busy trying to figure out the directions to Atlantius University using a map.

“Vivi, according to this map, it’d take us an hour and a half to get to Atlantius University by either subway or bus. However, we could get there in thirty minutes if we take a cab instead.”

“Then let’s take a cab.”

Eager to see Kurt, Vivian couldn’t be bothered to rely on public transportation this time.

The two then hailed a passing cab and headed for the university.

Being the chatterbox that she was, Sonia began asking about Kurt along the way. “Kurt is two years younger than us, right? That means he’s only fifteen now. My goodness, he must be a total genius if he can get into such a prestigious university at the age of fifteen!”

Vivian’s face was filled with a trace of pride when she heard that.

“Yeah! He’s super smart!”

“He really is! You know what, Vivi? I just realized the guys in your family are all really amazing! If I recall, one of your brothers is in National Defense University, and the other is working in a research institute, right?” Sonia asked.

As the two of them had been close friends for years, Vivian would tell her some stuff about her family.

As Vivian was a hardcore fan of her brothers, it was only natural that she would also tell Sonia about them.

“Yeah, they’re both really amazing. Unlike them, I’m so stupid that I haven’t achieved anything great even after studying for so long,” she replied, sounding a little dejected.

Sonia was quick to reassure her, “How are you stupid? You’re Lady Adalyn’s personal fashion designer, for crying out loud! That’s something most of us can only dream about!”

Unsure of what to say, Vivian simply lowered her head shyly in response.

Sonia was about to continue the conversation when Atlantius University came into view in the distance.

I wonder if Kurt will be happy to see me... After all, it was Mr. Frost who came to protect me that day. Does this mean Daddy has changed the person in charge of protecting me? After all, Kurt did agree to tell Daddy honestly that I'm dissatisfied with him, and that he would willingly be replaced.

Those thoughts got Vivian feeling anxious all of a sudden.

The cab soon pulled up next to the entrance of the university.

"All right. We're here, Vivi. Which course is Kurt studying? It'll be easier to find him if we know where to start looking. This campus is really huge, so wandering around aimlessly will get us nowhere," Sonia said.

Vivian pulled out a notebook from her handbag and replied, "According to my mommy, he's studying architecture."

"Huh?"

Sonia's eyes went wide instantly.

Architecture? That ridiculously talented genius is studying architecture? Shouldn't he be doing something like IT instead? Why would he pick architecture?

Although Sonia found it a little hard to believe, Vivian didn't think much about it.

She believed that nothing else mattered as long as Kurt liked what he was studying.

The two of them made it through the university's entrance without any issues from security.

However, it wasn't long before Vivian's young and beautiful appearance caught the attention of the students on campus.

"Are those freshmen too? They sure are getting a lot younger these days!"

"I don't know. Shall we go ask them?"

"Sure!"

As Vivian and Sonia were walking through the campus grounds, a pretty blonde girl approached them. She was accompanied by two tall and handsome male students.

"Hello, we're third-year students here. Is there anything we can help you two with?"

"Huh?"

The two of them, who were walking hand in hand, panicked upon hearing that.

"W-We're not students here. We just came here to meet a friend. He has only recently enrolled here."

"Oh, so you two aren't from here..."

The university students finally understood what was going on here.

I knew it! These two look way too young to be university students!

"Who are you two looking for? We might be able to help you if you tell us more about your friend," asked the blonde girl patiently

Chapter 1578 Meeting Kurt At Last

"We're looking for a guy named Kurt Lopez. He recently enrolled in architecture here. Where can we find the faculty for that course of study?" Vivian finally spoke up.

Her voice was mellow, and her hair was tied in pigtails that rested against her chest, revealing her exquisite facial features that resembled a pretty porcelain doll.

The two guys found themselves captivated by her beauty, and even the blonde girl was a little taken aback.

"The architecture building is that way. Come on, I'll take you two there."

"Okay! Thank you, miss!" Vivian said politely as she followed behind them.

As the campus was really huge, both Vivian and Sonia were sweating all over by the time they arrived at the building about twenty minutes later.

"All right. That building over there is the one you're looking for. You girls can go on ahead now."

The blonde girl didn't want to go any further, as she noticed the two guys had their eyes fixated on Vivian the whole time.

Just like that, the three students left while Vivian and Sonia made their way toward the building.

Sure enough, they saw the word "Architecture" written on the wall as soon as they reached the entrance.

Noticing a university staff ushering in the freshmen, Vivian ran up to her excitedly and asked, "Hi, has a student named 'Kurt Lopez' enrolled here recently?"

"Kurt Lopez?"

The university staff began checking the records after hearing the name.

Seconds later, she shook her head and said, "Nope. Are you certain that he is in this course?"

Vivian was sure that she had the right course, as her mother had provided her with that information.

However, the staff member's response instantly extinguished the flames of hope and excitement in her heart.

"Don't worry, Vivi. It's still early right now. Maybe Kurt hasn't arrived yet. I mean, he is flying all the way from your home country, so maybe we can wait for him here or something," Sonia reassured her.

"Yeah, that's probably the case," Vivian agreed.

With that, the two of them sat down at a bench nearby and patiently waited for Kurt's arrival.

The hours soon came to pass, and the staff member had already gone home at nightfall, but Kurt was still nowhere in sight.

"He's not coming..."

Having spent the entire day waiting, Vivian buried her face in her hands and began crying on the spot.

Sonia reached out and hugged her tightly as she consoled her, "Now, now, Vivi... Maybe he got caught up with something today. Why don't we head back first, okay? You can ask your mommy and daddy what happened before we come here again."

After what seemed like forever, Vivian finally stopped crying and slowly got to her feet.

She wasn't dressed warmly enough, nor did she have anything to eat since morning.

Is he really just caught up with something? I don't think so. I would've believed Sonia if she told me that earlier in the afternoon, but it just doesn't sound convincing at all now. I guess it's about time I stop being so naïve. He told me during summer that he wouldn't see me ever again. He said he'd ask Daddy to transfer him somewhere else so he wouldn't get in my way anymore. If that's the case, then it is possible that he chose to give up on studying at this university because of me!

Vivian thought to herself as the two of them made their way out of the campus.

She kept her head low the whole time, and her tears never stopped falling.

Sonia was about to try and comfort her when she noticed a figure walking in their direction up front.

His hoodie highlighted his slim and tall figure, and he was carrying a canvas bag over his shoulder.

"Ah!" Sonia exclaimed.

Vivian looked up in response, and she squinted her teary eyes as she tried to get a better look at the figure that stood before her.

Wait a minute... That's Kurt!

He had grown a lot taller during their period of separation, and his facial features looked a lot more exquisite as well. The dim lighting in the area cast a lonely shadow on the ground behind him, further intensifying the icy-cold aura that he emanated.

A look of surprise filled his eyes as well when he realized it was Vivian standing in front of him.

Chapter 1579 Walking Away From Him

All of a sudden, it felt as if time had come to a halt as their eyes met.

It wasn't until a few students walked past them that Vivian slowly regained her senses.

When Vivian finally saw the person she'd been waiting for, the overwhelming feelings that she buried in her heart exploded.

Without warning, she squatted down and burst into tears.

Upon seeing Vivian's tears, Sonia was at a loss, not knowing how to comfort her at all.

Kurt froze on the spot as he saw her cry her heart out. The muscles in his pale face tensed.

After a few minutes, Kurt was about to step forward to comfort Vivian. Yet, she suddenly stopped crying and wiped the tears off her cheeks. Vivian then lifted her head and rose to her feet.

"Sonia, let's go!" With that, Vivian spun on her heel and left without looking back.

Despite waiting for an entire day, Vivian ended up crying her eyes out when she finally got to meet Kurt. After her outburst, she left the scene without even talking to him.

Sonia couldn't help but feel puzzled by her friend's actions.

She shot a glance at Vivian's retreating back before looking at the young man, who was clearly stunned. What on earth should I do?

"Kurt, you're too much. Did you know that Vivi spent the entire day waiting for you? She even skipped her meals. What took you so long?" Sonia stomped her feet in frustration before she turned around and rushed toward Vivian.

Hearing this, Kurt was dumbfounded.

After a few moments, Kurt finally turned around to look at Sonia and Vivian. Unable to control himself, he clenched his fists and hurried after the duo.

What took me so long?

Truthfully, Kurt was delayed.

Besides, he never wanted to attend this university. I clearly told Mr. Hayes that I'd be content pursuing my studies at University of Technology. But after receiving the results of my college entrance exam, I ended up receiving a notification from Mr. Hayes saying that he'd enrolled me in this school.

When Kurt first learned of this, he was upset.

After all, he didn't want the past to repeat itself. Kurt had used to long after something that didn't belong to him. Although he knew he didn't deserve it, he couldn't bring himself to let it go.

In the past six months, Kurt had finally managed to rid himself of that mindset.

Why on earth did Mr. Hayes make such arrangements for me?

As a result, Kurt attended his first day of school without much enthusiasm.

Finally, Kurt managed to catch up with them.

However, he quickly realized that Vivian was one step ahead of him. She'd already hailed a cab and hopped into the car. Sonia, who was following closely behind, followed suit.

Helplessly, Kurt watched the car speed off in silence.

Though he initially planned to chase after Vivian, he stopped himself from doing that.

He remained rooted to the spot and watched as the car disappeared from sight.

Perhaps this is for the best.

In the cold night, Kurt continued to glance at the spot where Vivian once was. After a moment, he withdrew his gaze, and his eyes were again filled with indifference.

After that, Kurt headed back inside.

The next day, Vivian woke up with a pair of swollen eyes.

When she opened her eyes, she was greeted with the bright glare of the sunlight that streamed through the window. Nevertheless, Vivian remained seated on her bed for a very long time. She felt as if she had been trapped in a stupor.

"Ms. Vivian, you are finally awake. How do you feel? Do you feel unwell?" Upon knowing that Vivian had awoken, the housemaid quickly attended to her.

Vivian glanced at the housemaid with a dazed look. After several moments, she came back to her senses, and she felt slightly light-headed.

"W-What happened to me?"

"You were down with a fever. When Ms. Sonia sent you home last night, you were burning up. I called the doctor over to treat your fever. It looks like the fever has subsided," the housemaid explained hastily.

Oh, I was down with a fever... Vivian lounged on her bed for a short while before making her way to the bathroom.

"Ms. Vivian, I have not informed Mr. Hayes and Mrs. Hayes about your fever yet. Should I tell them about it right now?"

"There's no need for that," Vivian quickly replied.

I don't want Daddy and Mommy to be worried about me. Besides, they might blame Kurt for this. Daddy might get mad and punish him because of my sickness.

After Vivian brushed her teeth and freshened up, she finally headed downstairs to have breakfast.

Half an hour later, Vivian received a call from Sonia.

"Vivi, are you feeling better? Do you want me to drop by and pay you a visit?"

"It's all right, Sonia. I'm fine. I'll be heading to school after breakfast." After Vivian reassured Sonia that she would meet the latter in school, Vivian ended the call.

Once Vivian finished her breakfast, she went back upstairs to pack her bag. With that, Vivian wore her backpack over her shoulders and set off.

In hopes of distracting herself from her misery, Vivian planned to keep herself busy. Staying idly at home would only cause her to dwell on the sad memories.

Hence, Vivian boarded the bus and departed for school.

Unexpectedly, a young man boarded the bus when it halted at the next stop. When he saw Vivian sitting in the back row, he pursed his lips before walking toward her.

As Vivian was still feeling slightly unwell, she leaned her head against the window and tried to get some rest.

Nevertheless, her rest was interrupted when someone took a seat next to her.

Instinctively, Vivian whirled around to look at the person.

Chapter 1580 In A Good Mood

The morning sun that day had been particularly bright.

After several rainy days, the sun had finally emerged from the clouds. Its luminous rays painted the clouds golden and shone onto the city skyline. The entire landscape looked as though it was bathed in sunlight.

It was truly a sight to behold.

Vivian blinked her eyes to clear her fuzzy mind, and she took a look at the young man under the sunlight.

When the young man sat next to her, she saw his long, thick lashes and the faint glow radiating from his pale skin. Under the dazzling sunlight, his lashes cast shadows on his face.

His breathtaking beauty left Vivian momentarily stunned.

When she finally regained her senses, Vivian hurriedly averted her eyes away from him.

At that moment, she felt as if her heart was in her mouth. Vivian didn't even dare to breathe too loudly. Instead, she clutched her backpack to her chest and stared ahead.

All of a sudden, she didn't feel unwell anymore.

Instead, Vivian now felt extremely rejuvenated.

After he sat down next to her, the bus continued to move at an average pace.

Throughout the bus ride, the duo remained so silent that one could hear a pin drop. Despite being familiar with each other, Vivian and Kurt did not utter a single word. They didn't even exchange eye contact.

The awkward atmosphere made it seem like they were nothing but a pair of strangers.

Vivian clenched her fists so tightly that her fingertips turned pale. Although she wanted to say something, her reserved nature prevented her from initiating the conversation.

Hence, Vivian kept her mouth shut until the bus arrived at her school.

"I-I'll be getting off now," she muttered disappointedly. She had been waiting for Kurt to talk to her, but the latter merely remained silent all the way.

The only reply she received from Kurt was a slight nod.

His response made it appear as if they were strangers who'd occasionally bumped into each other on the bus.

Promptly, the excitement in Vivian was replaced by disappointment.

Her eyelashes slightly fluttered as she lowered her gaze. Without another word, Vivian grabbed her backpack and rose to her feet.

Upon noticing this, the young man moved aside to let her pass.

Vivian bit down hard on her lower lip. Before she could rush out of the bus, a cold hand gripped her wrist.

Right then, Kurt shoved two small packs of medicine into Vivian's hand. "Take this thrice a day. Don't forget to drink more water."

Stunned, Vivian looked at him with widened eyes and stood rooted for quite a while.

"Miss, are you going to get off the bus? I'll be closing the doors soon," the bus driver called out when he noticed Vivian's unmoving figure.

It was only then that Vivian came back to her senses and scrambled out of the bus.

Although Vivian had gotten off the bus, her bright eyes remained fixated on the bus as the bus drove off. Her heart pounded against her chest erratically.

It turns out that he knew about my fever. He even came all the way here to give me medicine.

Finally, Vivian's mood brightened. She gazed at the medicine in her hand as though they were the world's most precious jewels.

That morning, Vivian attended the school in a good mood.

When Sonia met up with Vivian, she instantly noticed that her best friend was in a good mood.

Sonia had been worried about Vivian, but after she saw a happy Vivian, she couldn't help but ask curiously, "Vivi, why are you so happy? Did your fever subside?"

"Nope, I brought along my medicine." Vivian continued to beam as she showed Sonia the two medicinal sachets cupped in her palms.

Sonia was rendered speechless. Medicine? Didn't the doctor give her a shot yesterday? Why did she bring this along with her? Furthermore, I can't tell why Vivi is so happy over two mere packets of medicine.

Vivian's behavior left Sonia utterly befuddled. Sonia kept an eye on Vivian that day and realized that the latter was doing fine.

Well, it looks like Vivi is perfectly fine now. Did those medicines miraculously heal her from her fever?

Sonia shook her head and let out a sigh of relief.

Since the weekend was just around the corner, Amelia, who had asked them out to the farm this weekend, came looking for them to confirm their attendance.

"I'm fine with it. However, I'm not sure if Vivi will go. I'll let you know after asking her about it," Sonia replied.

She was afraid that Vivian might bail on their plans because she had fallen out with Kurt the day before. Furthermore, Kurt and Vivian were supposed to go together.

"Vivi, are you still planning to go to the farm this weekend?" Sonia asked once she found Vivian.

"Oh?" Vivian who was doing her revision looked up at her. The farm...

Vivian hesitated for a brief moment. A dark expression loomed over her face. I want to go to the farm. But I bet he won't be willing to tag along. He wasn't even willing to show up when I waited for him yesterday. Kurt probably wouldn't have boarded the bus if I hadn't fallen sick. He probably just wanted to give me the medicine.

A seventeen-year-old girl like Vivian tended to overthink. In the span of a few minutes, her mood took a drastic change.

As a result, Vivian remained gloomy until school was over.

"Vivi, are you planning to go home today?" Sonia asked in surprise when she noticed Vivian packing her bag.

Because they were both staying at the dorm, Sonia and Vivian usually only returned home once a week. However, Vivian had already left the dorm to look for Kurt the day before.

Sonia couldn't exactly wrap her head around Vivian's actions.

Nevertheless, Vivian offered no explanation. After school, she hurried home.
