/ Returning from the Dead: His Secret Lover

“What did you say?” Sabrina suddenly paused her steps. She turned around and stared at Isaac as if he had gone mad. “Are you insane?”

“I’m not!” Isaac clenched his fists. His usually fair skin flushed under his glasses.

“I’m not insane. Sabrina, I’m serious. I can be the child’s father. I will treat him as my own and take good care of both of you. Please believe me,” Isaac said in a masculine tone.

At this moment, there was not a hint of cowardice in him.

He looked at her with a firm and passionate gaze while clenching his fists. He seemed so earnest and sincere that Sabrina could not help but tear up.

You dummy!

She looked away and closed her eyes.

The anxiety that she had forced down with much difficulty surged again, and hot tears finally rolled down from the corner of her eyes.

However, this emotional state did not persist.

She quickly wiped the tears away and said, “You’re overthinking. Why would I need anyone else to raise my child? Do I not have the means to support myself?”

“But—”

“He shouldn’t come to this world,” Sabrina said to save Isaac from his stupidity.

Isaac was stunned.

However, before he could say anything, Sabrina had turned around and quickly hailed a cab.

Seeing that, Isaac did not dare to delay and rushed into the cab with her.

With that, both of them left the hotel.

However, neither of them was aware that a black SUV was waiting under the lighted sign adjacent to the hotel. The people in that car did not stop observing them since they came out of the hotel.

“Major, should we follow them?” the driver, looking into the rearview mirror, asked when he saw that Sabrina and Isaac had left the hotel.

There was no answer or response except for a tense and chilling silence.

A few minutes later, a soldier Devin sent out returned.

“Major, I have completed the investigation. Ms. Hayes was here to look for her illegitimate brother, Solomon. I heard that he suddenly announced his resignation yesterday and disappeared. That’s why Ms. Hayes came here from Jetroina to look for him,” the soldier reported.

“She came here from Jetroina?” the driver asked with astonishment, but Devin remained impassive.

The soldier nodded and said, “Yes, this might be why Ms. Hayes was unwell last night and admitted to the hospital.”

“What did you say? Hospital?” Devin finally responded.

He sat straight and stared at the soldier.

“Yes, she was admitted to the hospital. I asked the doctor and found out that she had an upset stomach. I believe it could be due to her traveling long distances. She returned to the hotel soon after,” the soldier answered.

He had done a thorough investigation and even knew the exact time Sabrina returned to the hotel.

Devin sighed in relief. “How is she now?”

“I think she’s fine. The man accompanying her stayed with her in the hotel for the whole night. He must be taking care of her,” the soldier said.

The driver coughed immediately to warn the soldier.

However, it was too late. Devin’s expression had finally softened slightly a moment ago, but after hearing what the soldier said, he returned to his usual stern and intimidating self.

“Return to the base and inform other commanders. We will be transferring to Golden Triangle!” he ordered in a severe and furious tone.

Once they went to Golden Triangle, they would not be able to return here anymore.

The driver and soldier exchanged glances.

In the end, neither of them dared to say anything to advise Devin. They kept quiet and left the city with him.

Meanwhile, Sabrina still could not find anything about Solomon, and her abdomen began to hurt again. It was so bad that she could barely walk.

“Ms. Hayes, you shouldn’t ignore the pain. We must go to the hospital now,” Isaac said worriedly, gathering the courage to implore her to go to the hospital.

He could not remain indifferent, seeing that she was in pain.

The hospital?

Sabrina scoffed, “Why should I go there? Can you give me the map? I want to see if we missed any places.” She reached out and grabbed the map from Isaac’s hands.

Isaac was rendered speechless.

He looked down and saw a trace of dark red stain on her skirt.

Gritting his teeth, he rushed forward to carry her up.

Sabrina was shocked.

“Sabrina, even if you don’t want the child, you shouldn’t ruin your health. Please don’t be stubborn. We’ll go to the hospital now to deal with it before we continue to find your brother.”

With that, he carried her and dashed across the street.

Isaac sent Sabrina to the hospital.

She clenched her fists tightly upon seeing the doctor in the obstetrics and gynecology department again.

“What’s wrong? Did something happen? Didn’t I tell you to rest in bed if you want to keep the child? You’re bleeding so much again. What are you thinking? Do you not want this child?” the doctor scolded.

“It’s not true, doctor. I want my wife to stay in the hospital for treatment. It’s safer here, so can you admit her?” Isaac asked.

Sabrina did not expect him to change his mind suddenly.

Instead of asking the doctor to abort her baby, he requested the doctor to let her stay in the hospital to help her keep the baby.

Sabrina clenched her fists tightly again.

She refused to admit that she felt a little relieved at this moment. It felt as if she had escaped a disaster.

Why do I have such feelings? I thought I didn’t want the child and was eager to get rid of it. Didn’t I want to remove anything related to that man?

Sabrina hated herself.

In the end, the doctor allowed Sabrina to stay in the hospital and Isaac brought her to the ward.

Once Isaac got Sabrina settled into the hospital, he returned to his usual mild-tempered self and apologized to her, “Ms. Hayes, I’m sorry for deciding on my own. I know you don’t want this child, but you’re really in a bad shape. Let’s get you to recover your health first before you decide whether to keep the child, okay?”

Sabrina glowered at him. “Leave!”

She was so furious that she did not want to speak to him.

Isaac had nothing to say.

Meanwhile, in Avenport, Sasha did not sleep well the whole night.

She was waiting for news from Sabrina and had been waiting since last night until the following morning. Still, there was no news from her.

“What are you doing?” Sebastian woke up and was unhappy to see her checking her phone secretly early in the morning.

Why does she care about him so much?

When Sasha heard Sebastian's deep voice, she shivered instantly and quickly turned off her phone and set it aside. "It's nothing. I'm just checking the time. A teacher is coming here to give our children a lesson, so I need to wake them up earlier."

However, Sebastian did not believe her.

He suddenly raised the arm Sasha was lying her head on and flipped her into his embrace, leaving her stunned.

"You—" Sasha protested.

His eyes narrowed dangerously, and he gritted his teeth as he fumed, "I'll deal with you later!"

Sasha did not know what to say.

She could only watch him take her phone from the bedside table and key in her password to unlock it.

"Sabrina? You've been waiting for her to contact you the whole night?" Sebastian asked.

He finally saw what she was recently doing with her phone. Instantly, his furious expression calmed slightly and turned into confusion.

Sasha nodded while she was lying on his chest. "She told me she was going to Yaleview yesterday. I've been waiting for her to contact me."

"Yaleview?" Sebastian's expression turned sullen again. "Why is she there? Does she have nothing else to do?"

It turned out that Sabrina was also worried about making Sebastian angry if he knew that she was searching for Solomon. Therefore, she did not tell him that she had gone to Jetroina and Yaleview.

Sasha became a little nervous upon hearing him. "She... She went to find Solomon. Sebby, don't be angry. We are searching for him to relieve you of trouble. Now, Hayes Corporation is a mess, and you can't get away from the company. You have to investigate the matter concerning the Jadesons as well."

"Haha..." Sebastian rolled his eyes at her.

However, he was not angry. After hearing what Sasha said, he called someone on his phone. "Hello? I'm Sebastian. Are you still in Zarain?"

"Yes, why?" A deep and masculine voice sounded from the other end of the line.

Sasha leaned on Sebastian's chest and listened closely.

Is that Devin?

"Sabrina went to Yaleview to look for Solomon. I need you to go there to check on her. It's not safe there. Bring her back once you find her," Sebastian ordered.

Sasha's eyes glowed.

Is he really that kind? Since Devin is in Yaleview, does this mean that he and Sabrina will have the chance to be alone together? They may have the opportunity to talk things out with each other. Will it help them become closer?

Sasha could not resist a smile.

"Sure, I understand. I'll bring Sabrina back," Devin agreed. "But why is she looking for him here? If Solomon is here, I don't think she will let me bring her back until she finds him."

Upon hearing this, Sebastian glanced at Sasha, who was smiling, and said, "He's not there!"

Returning from the Dead: His Secret Lover Chapter 1023

/ Returning from the Dead: His Secret Lover

Huh?

Devin was not the only one who was surprised when Sebastian said that.

Sasha, who was lying on Sebastian's chest, was equally baffled.

Is Solomon not in Yaleview? How did Sebastian know? Did he receive news after sending someone to search for him last night?

Sasha became even more restless.

Devin asked, "Where is he?"

"You don't have to worry about this. Just bring Sabrina back and make sure that she's safe," Sebastian answered and hung up.

Sasha kept watching him. When he finally put down his phone, she could not contain her curiosity anymore. "Sebby, have you found Solomon? Where is he?"

Sebastian sneered when he saw how concerned Sasha was. He grabbed her by her arms to drag her off his chest.

Sasha was rendered speechless.

I've enough! Why did I never notice that he's easily jealous?

Sasha clung to him tightly and said, "Why are you angry? Sebby, why did I never notice that you're the jealous type?"

"What did you say?" Sebastian narrowed his eyes dangerously.

Sasha cowered and did not dare to continue.

However, she did not release him and continued to hold him tightly.

"Let go!" Sebastian said angrily.

"No!" Sasha insisted.

"Do you want to be punished?" Sebastian said.

Sasha took a deep breath and finally looked up from Sebastian's chest. "I'll let go when you're not angry with me. Sebby, I didn't mean anything when I asked about Solomon. I'm worried that something might have happened to him. He saved my life when I was badly injured after falling off a cliff. Now that he's in trouble, we should help him, right?"

Sasha looked at Sebastian pleadingly and proceeded to tell him what she knew.

She had received some information about Solomon.

Luke said that after Solomon disappeared, Jamie disappeared too. She was Solomon's secretary.

Sasha knew that Jamie was a Jetroinian and Ken's sister. In the past, Jamie had approached Sasha with this name.

Therefore, she wondered why she had disappeared after Solomon went missing.

Once Sasha knew about Jamie's disappearance, she had asked her people to stop investigating Solomon and investigate Jamie instead.

It was then she discovered that Jamie had been acting strange recently.

"Before we came back, Jamie had booked a room at Palace Hotel. I asked someone to keep watch at the hotel and found out that there was also a Jetroinian there," Sasha said.

"Who?" Sebastian asked.

"Haruto!" Sasha immediately mentioned a Jetroinian name.

Sebastian was stunned.

Haruto? Isn't he the doctor who saved Sasha in Jetroina? A Jetroinian came to Avenport and stayed in Jamie's room. What does this mean?

Sebastian frowned and loosened his hold on her arms. Then he caressed her fluffy hair with his warm hands. "I didn't find out where Solomon is, but I know he planned his disappearance."

"Huh?" Sasha had a bad feeling. "Why... What makes you say that?"

"Solomon has trained a few top executives over the past year. When I went to the company, I saw that they still had some projects in hand. So, even if Solomon was not around, it would not disturb the workings of the company," Sebastian explained.

He paused for a moment and continued, "Furthermore, all the files on his computer are neatly organized. Even the instructions and data are clearer than those that I gave him."

Sebastian's expression darkened when he thought that Solomon might have tricked him into playing a part in his plan. Veins throbbed on his forehead.

What the heck? How dare he involve me in his plan?

Sasha had nothing to say. Her heart turned cold after she listened to Sebastian.

What is that son of a b*tch planning?

“Sebby, if we investigate Haruto, I’m sure we’ll find Solomon,” she suggested urgently.

It seemed that Sebastian was no longer angry with Sasha about this matter.

He nodded and made a call.

A few minutes later, the personnel at SteelFort began to take action. They went to Jetroina to investigate Haruto and Jamie.

Sasha felt relieved after knowing that SteelFort was carrying out an investigation.

“All right, Sebby, we should get out of bed. There really is a teacher coming to give our children a lesson.”

Now that they settled the matter concerning Solomon, Sasha was tired of staying in bed and got up from it.

However, she had just moved when Sebastian pressed her back onto the bed.

“Hmm, are you abandoning me now that you got what you wanted?” Sebastian said.

Sasha instantly broke out in a cold sweat. “That’s not true. I was going to wake the children up.”

“Why do you need to do that? Don’t we have servants? Let them do their job. You should lie down properly and let me do what I want,” Sebastian replied.

The man pinned her down, rendering her speechless.

She had no choice but to sprawl over his chest again and say with a blush on her face, “Then... What do you want to do? It’s getting late.”

“What do you think?”

“What do I think?”

Suddenly, she understood what he meant and quickly avoided Sebastian’s fiery gaze. She tried to change the topic of their conversation.

“We can talk about Sab and Devin. I realized that you’re sweet beneath your stern exterior. You want Sab and Devin to be together, but you won’t admit it,” she said teasingly and drew circles on Sebastian’s strong chest with her fingers.

Sebastian narrowed his eyes.

Is she laughing at me? Does she want to be punished again?

Sebastian glanced down and saw Sasha drawing idly on his chest. His expression darkened.

He flipped her over and put a stop to her playfulness.

“Mmm... What are you doing?”

Suddenly, Sebastian pressed her underneath him and covered her mouth with his like a ravenous wolf, muffling her voice.

At this moment, an unfamiliar shout came from downstairs. “Mr. and Mrs. Hayes, you need to get down. An army is here. They said that they came from Jadeborough to protect us. Mr. Hayes—”

Sasha did not have the chance to catch her breath. Matters like this had never deterred Sebastian before as he continued to quench his thirst.

Meanwhile, Devin had assigned someone to return to Yaleview.

He did not go there himself but sent a vice-commander named Henrick Layton.

“She’s my younger brother’s sister, and she came to Yaleview to search for someone. Once you find her, send her to the airport straight away and meet us here,” Devin instructed and sent a photo to the vice-commander.

Henrick looked at the woman in the picture and was puzzled.

His younger brother’s sister? Since she’s his younger brother’s sister, doesn’t that mean she’s his sister as well? He’s heartless. Why must I be the one to go? Why can’t he go to her himself? It’s just a transfer. There are so many commanders around, so he doesn’t have to oversee the soldiers.

Henrick was confused.

However, since it was an order from his superior, he had no choice but to go to Yaleview.

At this moment, Sabrina had settled in the hospital.

“Ms. Hayes, can you stay in the hospital for a couple of days? I’ll search for Mr. George, okay?” Isaac was relieved that Sabrina was willing to stay at the hospital. Therefore, he decided to search for Solomon on his own.

Sabrina was sitting on the bed. After a moment, she glanced at him and nodded. “All right, be careful.”

“I will.” Isaac felt as if he had won a grand prize and walked away happily.

After he left, Sabrina rested on the bed for a while.

She did not know what she should be thinking. Her mind was such a mess that she did not know what she should do next.

Should I give birth to this child? What should I do if I do? He will not marry me. This child will be fatherless, and I will be a single mother. Will I be able to raise him for the rest of my life?

She clenched her fists tightly. She, who had nothing to fear in the past, was now frowning with anxiety.

“Excuse me. Do you know if a person named Sabrina Hayes is staying here?”

Suddenly, Sabrina heard someone asking for her outside her room.

Stunned for a moment, she then went to the door with a hand over her abdomen.

In actuality, she was hoping for a certain someone to come here.

She peeked out and saw a man dressed in olive green camouflage uniform and a military hat.

Unfortunately, to her disappointment, it was not the person she wished to see. She had never seen this man before.

The color completely drained from her face.

"Sabrina Hayes? We don't have someone of that name here." The nurse flipped through the medical records and shook her head. She did not know anyone of that name.

It turned out that Isaac had registered her with a fake name to avoid unnecessary trouble.

The soldier looked disappointed upon hearing that Sabrina was not there. He left soon after to head to the hotel Sabrina and Isaac had stayed in.

Sabrina stood by the door for ten minutes before dragging her feet back to her room.

She could not understand what was going on.

Emotionlessly, she stood by the bed and took out her phone.

Sasha: Sab, good news. Sebastian has asked Devin to look for you. Devin is also in the same place as you. You guys can finally meet each other.

Sasha: Sab, is he with you? Has he found you?

Sasha: Sab?

Sasha messaged her these half an hour ago.

Returning from the Dead: His Secret Lover Chapter 1025

How ironic!

Sabrina tossed her phone away and started picking up her things from the small shelf on the side.

After ten minutes, she came out of the ward, left the hospital lifelessly, and thrust her way into the crowd.

"Help! Help!" a woman, not far in front of Sabrina, cried out all of a sudden and Sabrina raised her head when she heard it.

Further down the street, a woman covered in blood stumbled her way toward Sabrina. Behind her, a group of men with machetes in their hands were chasing after her with maddened rage in their eyes. It was a horrifying sight to behold. Everyone on the pavement was terrified and did all they could to avoid getting caught up in it.

At that moment, Sabrina finally snapped out of it and immediately moved to the side, her face pale.

Nevertheless, as soon as the woman got close, she fell right in front of Sabrina and burst into tears of despair.

Sabrina's pupils contracted, but she knew there was no way she could offer help in that situation.

Instinctively, she stepped back even further. But right then, the woman raised her head and saw her.

"Ms. Hayes! Help me, Ms. Hayes!" The woman recognized Sabrina and started crawling toward her.

Sabrina was dumbfounded.

Kira!

"Over there! Hurry! She killed the boss' girl! Get her!"

The men saw Kira fall and charged toward her, roaring as they swung their weapons at her.

A mind-numbing cry reverberated along the street as Kira's leg was chopped clean off right in front of the public.

Sabrina was at a loss for words.

When she finally came to, the shock of the scene, as well as the gore in front of her, made her nauseous. She pressed her chest and vomited profusely.

It was too bloody and violent of a sight for her to handle.

At the same time, Kira was already out cold.

Seeing that, a man walked over and picked up the dismembered leg while another grabbed her hair, ready to drag her away.

Sabrina was speechless.

She was holding in the intense disgust she felt, wondering whether she should call the police when an army-green jeep suddenly appeared.

“What are you guys doing? Let her go!” a soldier in olive green demanded after coming out of the jeep.

When he saw what was going on, he immediately pulled out his gun and aimed at the group of men.

Are they from the special forces?

The men were keen to notice that those people were not from the police. They were soldiers from the special forces.

At once, the men dropped Kira and her dismembered leg and fled.

Only then did the soldier approach.

He knelt before the woman and brushed the hair and bloodstain off her face. “Ms. Woods? Is that you?”

Sabrina said nothing.

When Isaac arrived at the hospital an hour later, he saw Sabrina sitting right in front of the entrance to the operating theater.

Other than Sabrina, a soldier was leaning against the wall of the hallway, smoking a cigarette with an intense look on his face.

“Ms. Hayes, why did you lie to me that you weren’t in this hospital? If you didn’t lie and I was still in the hospital, this wouldn’t have happened to Ms. Woods!” the soldier exclaimed. “Also, why didn’t you help her when she asked for help? Aren’t you supposed to be amazing? Why did you leave her to die?”

Sabrina remained expressionless and held her tongue.

Isaac, however, lost his cool when he saw what was going on.

“Who are you to speak to her that way? Does Sabrina have anything to do with that woman? Why should she save her? Is she obligated to save her?”

“Y-You...”

The soldier was rendered speechless.

Isaac walked over to Sabrina's side and looked at her pale face as well as her hands that never left her belly.

He did not say anything and handed the bread and warm milk to her.

"Ms. Hayes, let's forget about this and eat something. Don't starve yourself."

Sabrina kept mum.

But with just that one line, Sabrina, who had been sitting there like a statue for over an hour, finally reacted as beads of tears came pouring out of her bloodshot eyes.

Seeing that, the soldier not far away snorted in disdain.

Isaac was not having it. He wanted to confront him, but Sabrina stopped him.

"It's okay." She finally spoke, her voice a little hoarse.

Then she picked up the bread and milk and started munching down.

Yeah. It's fine. Am I going to fall after coming so far? No way. I'm Sabrina Hayes. I don't falter easily.

It took Sabrina twenty minutes to finish the bread.

And after that twenty minutes, the doctor finally came out of the operating theater. At the same time, a familiar tall silhouette appeared at the end of the hallway.
