"She couldn't have gone too far. Go look for her. We need her alive. I am face the wrath from the alpha," one of them ordered, his eyes narrowing as he tried to look around. As they both shifted into their wolf form and ran away into the dense forest. I sighed, feeling the weight of the situation pressing down on me. I stepped out from the shadows. I needed to get away from here before they found me.

My feet pounded against the forest floor as I ran, the chilly night air biting at my skin. Panic surges through my veins, urging me to keep moving. I need to find my children.

As I ran, the distant hum of cars reached my ears, and relief washed over me. I knew those wolves wouldn't be foolish enough to come into the heart of the city in their wolf form. We, the wolves, always try to conceal ourselves from the human world and now as I become a human it is easy for me to mix into them.

I slowed my pace as I turned up another darkened street away from the street light. I nearly lost my footing before balancing myself. I rested my back on the cold brick wall, trying to regain my breathing. I looked down on myself. My clothes are torn a little. from below and my feet have some cuts because of running.

I shut my eyes tight, trying to stem the flow of lone tears escaping. Why hadn't Aries or Aiden noticed my absence? Didn't they realise I was missing? My mind spiralled into the thoughts of my children. The ache in my chest with each passing moment that I wasn't with them.

"But how the hell am I going to find them?" I whispered to myself, my voice barely audible as another lone tear escaped through my eyes. I longed to hold my children, to reassure them that everything would be okay. That was when I heard her voice again. Erica, my wolf. It had been ages since she spoke to me. How long has it been since she talked to me?

'Go to your mate. He has the only power to find your children,' she urged me. And I couldn't decide whether to laugh or cry at the irony. Even when she decided to talk to it was about to go back to the man who had shattered me.

me,

‘After all these years, you are still lurking in the shadows and didn’t show yourself, making me suffer like a human, I tsked at her. She is still weak. Like a mere presence but at least I had her within me.

‘You rejected your fated mate, Kiara. You knew you were going to get cursed for it. I can’t help you even if I am here with you,’ her voice echoing in my mind. I glanced down at my wounds which I had on my wrists and they still hadn’t healed yet so she might be right.

Chapter 41

‘So how are you here with me? Didn’t I lose you because of the curse?’ I asked as the confusion etched on my face.

“Your mate didn’t accept your rejection, Kiara,’ she explained, and a bitter laugh escaped through my dried l*ps.

After all these years, you talk to me only to push me to go back to him? Don’t you remember it is because of him that we are suffering..

‘But he is the only one who can help you, Kiara. Don’t be so stubborn and go to him. Don’t you want to hold your children? I want them. I need to know if they are safe or not, She said.

I contemplated over her words of her, as much as I didn’t want to admit it but she was right. Alpha King Killian held the power to find my children and could bring them back. to me. It was a bitter truth, but a truth nonetheless. Bracing myself, I pulled up the last ounce of the remaining strength within me and stepped out of the street.

I try to find the way out of the city. I don’t have money. But after a few minutes, I stood. in front of the forest, which I remember like the back of my hand. I ran into the dark forest, the rocky ground hurting my bare feet.

I never knew that I would be back here, back to his ground. This time, I carried a fire that would blaze through this pack and burn strong until I found my children, even if it meant swallowing my pride and begging him for help.

I saw how the wolves ran alongside the road, hidden among the trees and bushes, their eyes tracking my every move. This was the Alpha King’s pack, after all this pack’s security had always been tight. Word of my arrival would have reached their ears by now, by how the air thickened with each step I took.

I walked towards the manned gate. "Tell you Alpha that Luna Kiara is at the gates," I said, holding onto the little strength I had fighting that once I was able to enter I would find help.....

"Luna!" The guard at the manned gate gasped, my appearance must be shocking to him. His eyes glazed over as he tried to announce my presence to Killian or Alejandro through the pack's link. It didn't take a minute when he opened the manned gate for me to enter.

I took a deep breath before stepping into his territory again. I saw how the pack members emerged from the pack house to watch me. Their faces are etched with confusion, longing and shock. Why wouldn't they be surprised I came out of the dead. I don't know what their so-called Luna had filled their ears with. I noticed the absence of children playing near the alpha mansion like they used to do. I always loved talking to them and hearing about their school days. Things here seemed different now, almost dull and grey.

The once-thriving atmosphere had lost its lustre, not blooming and thriving as it did when I left. The thought gnawed at me. Was I the one who had caused this to them? Was my hatred actually reached so far as to hurt the innocent pack member of the Mad Grest Pack? That was not what I thought when I left this pack. They are not involved with the things that happened to me or my own pack...

With a heavy heart, I inhaled deeply as I stepped through the mansion gate. The surroundings look the same as when I left them. The overpowering scent of the Alpha King Killian, surrounded me as I set foot on his territory, causing my wolf to stir within.

Pack members trailed behind, gathering in the courtyard, their hushed whispers swirling with excitement and disbelief about my return from the dead. To them, it seemed like a blessing, the true Luna and the fated mate of the Alpha King had returned.

I am clear that this isn't resurrection from the death that they dreamed of. I wasn't here to return to them or their Alpha. I will make it very clear that I am here for my children and them alone.

Killian's Point of View

"Alpha King... Luna... Luna Kiara is back...." echoed through my mind-link, the words ringing like a sudden storm in the calm. My heart, once paused in the grip of awaiting, resumed its beating, each thud loud and painful against my chest. My wolf howled within. a mix of longing and pain. She is alive.

The first person to dash out of the room was Alejandro. The guard must have mind-linked him as well. I stood there grappling with the surge of emotions threatening to overwhelm me. My wolf demanded action, to go and hold her right now, but I needed to gather the thin thread of patience I had left.

Gathering the little bit of patience that is thin like a thread. I walked out of the office room. Taking a long stride through the living room to the alpha's mansion main door passed in a blur. I swung open the door without seeing how much strength I used because it nearly got pulled out of its hinges, but I paid no mind.

There she was, standing before me, and I couldn't believe my eyes. I watch, frozen in shock, as I look at the female with the same burgundy hair but a little shorter than she used to keep. My wolf is scraping inside my chest, aching to run to her and hold her. It feels surreal, the realisation that she was alive after all these years, while my wolf regretted everything that had happened to her and her pack.

Her eyes locked onto mine, and that familiar, relentless pull seized me. The bloody fated pull that kept my wolf sane and me on the brink of insanity. Closing the distance between us, I couldn't help but marvel at the features I had missed for four long years.

For four years, she had been dead, and for four years, I had been living like a lone wolf, without any mate. My wolf didn't want anyone except her. Yet my wife, my fated mate stands before me, alive.

"Kiara!" I called out to her, my heart pounding in my chest. Her eyes dropped and it seemed as if she was losing all her strength. She was about to collapse when I lunged towards her, grabbing her by the waist before she could land on the hard ground. And I felt that electric sensation my whole b*dy burned with the need as soon as I held her in my arms. Holding her in my arms, my wolf sighed in relief as if he had been deprived. of this intimate touch.

Her head rested against my chest, and I could feel the warmth of her b*dy against mine. Despite the relief she felt, her eyes still held the same hatred. My gaze shifted to the bruise on her face, and the protective instinct of my wolf took over. A low growl rumbled from deep within me as I lightly brushed her cheek.

“Who did this to you?” I demanded, my voice thundered with a dangerous edge wanting to kill that person who dared to harm the fated mate of the most powerful Alpha King's Mate... My mate.

She said something, her voice barely audible, but it still reached my ears. “Save them,” she whispered. Confusion etched my face. She clutched my shirt tightly before pulling me towards her as her l*ps lightly brushed my ears.

“Save your children, Killian. They need their father now more than ever,” She pleaded with what little strength she had left before she went into unconsciousness. But for me, it felt like sl*pping away through the ground.

I paced in front of the bedroom door like a wild lion trapped in a cage, my thoughts at whirlwind of confusion and anger. I don't know what to believe now... I feel deceived. Deceived by her. How come she is alive all these years and I don't know a s hit about it. Did Aiden know that she is alive? Why did they keep this from me?

Austin and Alejandro were also standing nearby and from their face, it is clear that they were as shocked as me. It is a good thing that my father had gone to meet the council in place of me, and Rihanna had accompanied him. I have time to get answers...

“Killian, you have to stop doing this. Otherwise, you will dig a hole in there,” Alejandro's voice echoed in the corridor as I forced myself to stop pacing a hole in the carpet. Taking a deep breath, I ran my fingers through my hair, trying to collect my thoughts.

“She will be fine, Killian,” Alejandro reassured me. After she fainted in my arms I didn't think of anything as my wolf wanted to save my mate. I carried her up before I dashed. towards the Alpha house, and urgently mind-linked Eve to come and attend to her. When she looked at her she was also shocked but I noticed a fear too.....

Now, an hour had passed, and Eve hadn't left that room. My wolf was restless, yearning to hold his mate close, yet I trusted Eve's expertise to ensure Kiara's well being.

“How come she is alive, Alejandro? I have seen two burned bodies in her lake house. And why would she live hiding from me?” I asked him as he was the only friend I had.

These are the questions that have been swirling in my mind for goddess knows how many times.

“Only she can answer for that, Killian,” he said as he patted my shoulder. That was when the bedroom door opened and Eve walked out.

“How is she?” I asked as soon as she stood before me.

“She is out of danger, Alpha. It is just that she is weak right now, and the fatigue and pressure took over her b*dy, causing her to lose consciousness. We just have to wait for her to wake up as she takes more time to recover...” She explained.

“Why does she require more time to recover?” Austin interjected, voicing the same concern that had crossed my mind.

Chapter 43

Chapter 43

Aiden’s Point of View

After that heated argument where Killain once again accused me of the thing I didn’t do, I was not sitting at the Eclipse Pack’s Alpha mansion. Every fucking time this happened and I had to give proof about me being innocent.

The Alpha Evo’s hesitation was clear in his eyes, and why wasn’t he. He had almost lost his excellent beta and I know he wanted Nickolai and Lucia to be Alpha and Luna after he resigned from his position. And now she was lying on the hospital bed not knowing how long.

If Evelyn weren't my mate, I would likely be rotting in a dungeon for crimes I hadn't committed. I sighed, frustration simmering beneath the surface. My warriors had been dispatched to gather information about the accident, but their report yielded nothing.

Pulling out my phone from my pocket, I dialled Kiara's number. We hadn't spoken in a while, and she needed to know what happened to Lucia. Lucia was more than just a pack member, she was my confidante and a pillar of support during Kiara's absence. She was the one because of her I was able to reunite with my sister. I can't let that fucker go.

I had called Kiara numerous times, and she still hadn't answered her phone. It had been a week since she left my pack, and her silence was becoming increasingly worrisome. Because nob*dy is safe right now and her being out of my sight it makes me anxious.

Rubbing my temples, I played the video again on my laptop, desperately searching for any clue that could lead us to the man responsible. A cup of coffee was placed on the table, drawing my attention. Looking up, I saw Evelyn standing there. Concern etched across her beautiful features, she gently came and sat on my lap enveloping me in a comforting hug.

"Don't worry, everything is going to be fine. What happened to Lucia is not your mistake. It is not anyone's mistake," she whispered softly, her words a soothing balm to my troubled mind. My wolf, restless and agitated, seemed to calm at her touch.

"I am also worried about Kiara. She hasn't replied to me or called me back. I don't know if she is fine or not.." I admitted as she continued to rub the soothing circle on my back trying to calm my wolf down..

My phone rang, and I hurriedly picked it up, hoping it might be Kiara finally responding. However, it was Killian on the other end of the line.

"Hello,"

"Did you know Kiara was alive?" Killian's deep, thunderous voice echoed through the phone, causing me to grip it tightly. How had he found out about this? I tried to hide my nervousness.

"You knew?" he asked, his tone mixed with surprise and irritation.

"Yes!"

"Now, imagine my surprise when I find Kiara has been growling lowly through the phone.

all these years, he

"How could you not tell me?" He whispered as if I had deceived him. It was Kiara's decision to remain hidden. She was happy away from him and I would do anything for my sister's happiness. I would not sacrifice her happiness that was the last promise I had made to my father. And I will do anything to keep this promise.

My wolf was already on the edge when he heard her name.

"Killian!" I exclaimed.

"You meet her? My wife, my mate I thought was dead for four years?"

"Yes... How..." Before I could complete my sentence his next words froze me.

"She has returned, Aiden. And she was weak and with so many injuries. I want you here now and be prepared for the war for keeping my mate away all these years. You know betraying me would lead to something more deadly. He ordered before cutting the call. That made my wolf jump up.

"What happened?" Evelyn asked, her green eyes as blue and filled with concern. Al Nickolai rushed into the room.

"Killian has found Kiara..." I replied, and the news caused their eyes to widen in surprise and worry. We had all kept this secret from Killian for a reason. When Alpha Evo found out that the doctor who saved his pack during the rogue Alpha attack was Kiara he was happy to see her again. He had always believed in her strength when she ruled side by side with Killian. And Kiara made sure that Alpha Evo supported her decision and he was happy to keep it.... Why would she go back to him?

I mind-linked my warriors to get the car ready. I am not going to let her stay there any longer. It must be Killian who found her and might have brought her back.

“Alpha Aiden, you should call Alpha Aries too..” Alpha Evo’s voice pulled me out of the thought. I don’t like that man a bit. He is suspicious. But it was because of Kiara’s blind trust in him. I was still kept quiet. That man sure is hiding so many things that we don’t know off...

“We don’t need to involve him in this..” I said, trying to brush off the topic as I hurriedly “Aiden, Kiara is a member of his pack now. He is her Alpha and if you go alone. I don’t think Alpha King Killian is going to welcome you with open arms. He is already suspicious of you. And Alpha Aries being her Alpha could be possible that he could do something...” He said and he is right. I know for sure Killian is more than angry right now. Why wouldn’t he? I nodded my head as I watched Alpha Evo walk to his office room where he would call Aries.

Killian Point of View.

After telling him, I cut the call. I had enough of all these things and now I will do what I had to do. It has been three hours and Kiara still hasn’t woken up yet. As much as I don’t want to admit it, my wolf is excited and nervous but what troubled my mind was her last sentence before sl*pping into unconsciousness.

my children...” That’s all I heard. Did she now have formed a family away from me? My wolf growled at the thought alone. He was displeased with this very own idea that Kiara had moved on.

The woman I had seen in the Ecl*pse pack, alongside that Alpha. A chosen mate to someone else, with a child by her side. The mere notion set my wolf on edge, a primal. desire for blood simmering beneath him. My fist curled involuntarily.

And Aiden has hidden my wife from me, the Luna of the Mad Crest Pack, and will be held accountable, just as the Blood Stone Pack Alpha that had offered her a place within his pack kept her hidden.

After that I let my wolf go for a run along the pack boundary. I let my wolf run for as long as he needs it. He needed to vent his anger somewhere and running in a wolf form was easier for him. That was when Alejandro mind-linked me.

“Alpha King, we have an intruder...” Alejandro said through the mind link.

Kiara's Point Of View

I opened my eyes, as greeted by the familiar scent of sandalwood that surrounded me. I blink opened my eyes, I took in the surroundings. I knew this room intimately. It was me who decorated every bit of this room with so much love and dedication but did I find the feeling to be reciprocated. No....

I tried to remember what happened to me all those past hours. I remember conserving with my wolf. I remember entering the grounds I never wanted to enter. I remember telling Killian to save his children. That is when my eyes widened in shock. I hurriedly and hissed in pain. My eyes went to my hands and legs which are bandaged.

sat up

I was in his pack. The Mad Crest Pack. Panic surged within me. I had revealed the existence of his children. No, No, No he can't find them. I got up from the bed and looked around searching for some clothes. My eyes went to a newly set of jeans and a top which lay on the couch. I wore them. Before I could think of leaving the room unnoticed.

The door opened, and I turned around to find Eve entering the room.

“Kiara, you woke up.” Eve exclaimed, as she rushed inside the room towards me. Instinctively, I leaped a little backward. What had I done? I shouldn’t have come here. I looked up at her, and from the way her eyes flashed, it was clear that she had already mind-linked him about my awakening.

She took a step closer to me, and I instinctively took two steps back.

“Don’t come any closer, Eve..” I said coldly. Trust had eroded, and I found it difficult to believe anyone in this pack. The members felt like nothing but backstabbers.

“I had already informed the Alpha, Kiara. He is coming here. Till then, let me check up..” She said, trying to be a good doctor that she has always been. I shook my head. negatively. I had no intention of staying here any longer. My only objective was to talk to Killian and seek his help in finding my children before leaving. That was the plan I had formed.

As I moved towards the door, a sudden dizziness engulfed me, and I grabbed the bedpost to steady myself. Eve rushed to my side, helping me sit back on the bed.

“Kiara, you have to calm down. You can’t rush here and there. You know that you have lost your wolf, and you need to regain your strength before doing something. You have been unconscious for the last five hours...” Eve said. I know that my b*dy has become weak but I needed to find Killian before they could do something to my children.

“Eve.. Where is Killian? Can you please call him...” I whispered softly. She got up the bed and came back with a glass of water. That was when I heard noise coming from downstairs. I got up from the bed and left the room.

“How can you hide her from me?” Killian’s growl echoed through the room and I winced at the intensity of his anger. I ran up between them, sensing the imminent danger knowing that this time they would kill each other.

“Kaira!” Aiden exclaimed, pulling me into a protective hug. I sighed in relief feeling the comfort of his arm around me. When I turned to look at Aries, his hand touched my chin as his eyes scrutinised my b*dy. A deep growl resonated behind us, making me turn to face Killian.

His eyes flickered between amber red and brown. His brows were knitted with tension. Jaws tightly clenched, he gazed at me and then shifted his attention to Aries.

“Why have you come here Kiara... You should have come to me if you needed help.” Aiden whispered softly, and all these while Killian stood there silently. I turned to face him. Knowing perfectly that only he can help me find my children.

“My childrens have been kidnapped!” I said as my b*dy trembled.

*社

Killian’s Point of View

“What!” I gasped, an unexpected surge of anger rattling within me as I looked at how that Alpha had secured an arm around her. The realisation hit me hard- she had already moved on from me.

“My son and daughter have been kidnapped,” she revealed. The news hit me like a punch to the gut. Apart from that girl, she also had a son with this Alpha. My fists tightened at the thought of her being mated to someone else. My eyes then went to her n*eck, still as bare as I had left it.

“What? When” Aiden yelled, and from his tone it was clear that he had met with her children. I was foolish to live like a widower when she was enjoying her life with someone else.

“I didn’t know who did this. I was coming back after meeting you and I decided to eat lunch in a cafe. I think they had mixed something in my coffee, and after that, I woke up in a small room. They kept me there for a week... They said they knew whose children they were....” She said before stopping herself mid-sentence and my brows knitted in confusion.

“This happened in a human city?” Fturned to look at Aries who tilted his head at me, not anticipating my concerned response.

Chapter 44

“Yes! The kidnapper said that they are going to kill my children,” She said as she trembled and I wanted to hold her close to me but Aries beat me to it, before pulling her in a comforting hug.

She took a deep breath. “Killian, you have to find them..” She said actually it felt more like an order and couldn’t help but tsk at her audacity. Having a child with someone else, she expected me to find them. It felt like a twisted joke.

“I can’t do it,” That was all I replied.

“Killian, please, you have the power to find them...” she pleaded, her eyes filled with tears making me feel a tight tug in my chest. Why would I feel this way? Yes that fucking fated mate damn pull.

“Why would I find them when you have an alpha around you,” I said, gesturing to the two men who stood beside her. She shook her head before stepping closer to me. The scent of her natural aroma overwhelmed me, and I almost moaned. She looked up to meet my eyes. Her beautiful eyes filled me with so much hatred for me.

“Killian... my children... they...” she seems to struggle with words. Hesitating to say or conflicting with what she is going to say..

“Spit it out!” I demanded.

“My children, you are their father...”

Chapter 45

Kiara’s Point of View

“What did you say?” Killian demanded, his stormy grey eyes started to flicker with an amber-red one. His wolf made its presence felt. The room is beginning to feel dominant. I was already weak to the core and he is not making anything easier. Aiden and Aries stood behind me ready to attack him if he did anything to me. I knew I needed to talk to him alone. I know this is not going to be easier. As he really didn't take this news well.

But as if he read my thoughts or intention, he asserted, "I need to talk alone with her," He said to Aiden, whose brows knitted in confusion. I sometimes wonder why my brother has to be so protective. It could sometimes be exasperating.

"No! I am not taking any risk here. If you wanna talk to her, talk to her here in front of us," Aiden insisted. And I sighed. Killian growled in response.

"Aiden, I think what he said is right. I need to talk to him," I whispered softly. He shook his head and stood firm in the same position. I turned to him and glared at him a bit, then I walked towards him.

"Just stay right outside the door. I know he is not going to do anything to me. If he wanted to hurt me, he would have done it when I walked in his territory," I whispered softly trying to assure him, but a small mocking laugh came from behind where Killian was standing.

"Just call my name, and I will come right away," Aiden said, as he glared at Killian who didn't bat an eye. His stormy grey eyes betrayed a sense of hurt.

I felt a light touch on my elbow and turned to look at Arics, who also didn't seem pleased with my decision. I held his hand, reassuring him, "I will be fine." Killian growled menacingly and furiously in response. Arics didn't say anything before following Aiden out of the living room.

I watched as they closed the door. I took a deep breath before Turning to look at him. "Let's talk in your office," I strongly said before walking confidently towards the wooden door.

Once we were inside his office, Killian pulled me by my arm, forcing me to face him. My hands automatically touched his chest, feeling the rapid beating of his heart.

"What the hell did you say outside there!" Killian's roar echoed in the office room. I quickly stepped away from him creating a big distance between us and said.

"The pregnancy.... I was pregnant when I left the pack... and they are yours," I tried to keep my voice steady, but it felt challenging to string together the words into coherent sentences. I was trying not to reveal my emotions because at this time I am having a tsunami of emotions in my heart and mind. For four years, I had convinced myself that they were mine, only mine. Now I was unravelling their world to him.

“You gotta be kidding me, Kiara? When did we do that?” He asked, as his brows knitted in confusion. I knew this moment would come. Why would he remember that day?

“The day we went to Red Bound Pack to sign the treaty with the Alpha Ezekial,” I explained and Killian’s frown deepened and I could tell his mind wheels were running as he tried to find this memory. He squinted his eyes at me.

“You were drunk that night during the celebration...” I added, pressing on that particular memory, but I knew he wouldn’t recall that I sighed. I was wrong to think that if I tried to remember him he would recall this memory. But why would he remember this beautiful memory... Oh, how could I forget that this was not a beautiful memory for him to cherish?

I took a deep breath as I found this room closing in on me, making it difficult to stand there. I was foolish to come here... Come to him. To this man who didn’t even know that I carry his children.

After some time, as if he finally remembered, he moved quickly, taking me off guard. He pushed me against the wall, pinning me under his hard b*dy by holding my covered shoulder. I could feel his tensed b*dy, his face almost touching mine. His sandalwood scent engulfed me, making my wolf purr at the contact. The anger burning in his eyes was so intense that I could sense he was ready to shift any minute.

“Get off me!” I fumed, what the hell is he doing right now? I struggle in his hold only to find it getting tighter than before.

“YOU TOOK MY CHILDREN AWAY FROM ME? KEEP THEM HIDING AWAY FROM ME AND DIDN’T SAY ANYTHING ALL THESE FOUR YEARS?” Killian roared in his alpha voice. And I don’t know but I seriously wanted to yell at my wolf, who seemed pleased at the way this man, who broke my heart four years ago, claimed my children as his....

He growled furiously at me, looking down into my face, pure anger radiating off from his touch. His once light stormy grey eyes seemed to be permanently getting more colour, as if he was suppressing a long-standing anger from his wolf.

“They are mine...” I said, trying to be strong as I pushed him off me. However, to my surprise, he managed to grab my arms and place them above my head. Tingles that I hadn’t felt for so long returned and this time ten times stronger. I felt like it danced on my skin.

He places his knee between my thighs, pushing his b*dy dangerously closer to me. His nose touches mine, and his warm breath tickles my l*ps.

“Killian! Get off me! Or I will shout for my brother...” I warned him because my wolf was far from scared. She is practically enjoying this closeness.

“Where are my children?” He yelled at me.

“That is why I am here, Killian... I don’t know... I already told you the truth... I was kidnapped...” I too yelled at his face. His eyes narrow against mine. He pushes himself off me and I see how he roamed in the room like a caged lion. I let him do this. I think. he needed it...

“Why?” He said as he turned to look at me. “Why didn’t you tell me about them?” He whispered softly.

“I did what I needed to do at that time, and I think I don’t have to remind you about the past...” I closed my eyes as the memories of him trusting Rihanna more than met knocked down my memory lane. How he thinks that I poisoned Rihanna because of jealousy.

“I was never cruel to you Kiara.”

“I am not going to talk about the past Killian... They are mine...” he cuts me off with a dangerous deep roar.

“And mine alone, and if you can’t help me to find them. I will find them with your help or not..” I met his roar. I am not going to back off now. I am clear on the purpose I came here after that I head to the office door. I wasn’t going to defend my behaviour from four years ago with him. He doesn’t deserve it. Not when he favours her.

I

“Wait...” His voice takes on a slightly gentler tone. “They are mine children also... I will help you....”

That was when the door of his office room opened, and the person I never wanted to see again stood before me. Her face was etched with shock as she looked at me...

Kiara's Point of View

"Killian..." She called out his name as she opened the door and met with me. Her eyes widened in horror as she witnessed the dead coming back to life. The shock on her face told me she had no clue I was still alive.

"You are alive?" Rihanna icily muttered, her face contorting with a mix of disbelief. I fought the urge to tsk at her and locked eyes with Killian, who still wouldn't meet my gaze. I really was a fool to come here.

"Very much alive, Rihanna, as you can see," I snapped, my tone dripping with irritation. I shot a disdainful look at her as she rushed in, taking her place next to Killian. I could practically feel the pain on her face, and a wicked satisfaction crept in.

'Sorry Alpha King. I tried to stop her, but she doesn't listen to me and the warriors, Alejandro chimed in, attempting to defuse the tension. "And Alpha Eric is asking for your presence, Kiara, he is waiting in his office room," Alejandro added, his eyes signalling towards me.

my

I took a deep breath, summoning every ounce of strength within me before stepping out to face him. I knew I had to tell him too and if he got to know the truth about children and me hiding them away from their rightful pack as they are the original heir to the pack he would definitely not be pleased with it.

"Kiara!" Killian's voice echoed behind me just as I reached for the door. I turned to face him, sensing his unease. He fidgeted, hesitating before finally speaking, "Don't tell father about..." My brows raise at his incomplete words.

My eyebrows shot up, curiosity piqued at his incomplete sentence. "About what?" I prompted, my gaze locked onto his grey one.

"That the children were mine," he blurted out. The revelation hit me like a thunderbolt, and both Alejandro and Rihanna reacted simultaneously, their surprise echoing in unison, "What?"

“Killian, I think I don’t need your help anymore. I can look for them,” I declared my voice firm. Why did he not want Alpha Eric to know about them? Did he too not believe that I was telling the truth?

“Wait, Kiara! You don’t understand...”

“Killian, I am a fool to come here thinking that you might help me find them... I shouldn’t have come here. Look, let’s forget this...” I began, but Killian’s vehement interruption halted my words.

“No!” he growled, his eyes blazing with frustration “You’ve clearly made an enemy out of someone, or your pack alpha,” he said with disdain. “and my children are feeling their wrath. You have failed to protect them...”

“What are you saying, Killian? Whose children?” Rihanna interjected as she tried to figure it out.

“F uck you!” I retorted, my anger boiling over as I swung open the door and slammed it shut behind me. My frustration and disappointment in Killian fueled my hasty exit.

As I stormed out, I glanced towards the sitting room as I walked out and found Aries and Aiden sitting in the silence. Their heads snapped up as they watched me leave, and Aiden and Aries were at my side in a flash as we walked towards the warrior of brother’s pack. I was in pain and no one would be able to understand this feeling.

my

Why does he think that it was Aries’s fault? The kidnappers clearly want to hurt them. because of him....

“Kiara... Listen to me!” His firm grip on my elbow pulled me back into the warmth of his chest.

“Don’t leave, let me help you!”

“Come back inside at least. Let me call some contacts, and see if there is any intel you have missed?” He suggested, a subtle plea woven into his voice.

“Killian?” Rihanna half laughs.

“Rihanna I want you to treat them with respect as they are now part of my pack,” Killian declared loudly, his alpha voice cutting through the tension. He gestured for me to re-enter the house, and I hesitated, caught in the internal struggle of trust and self-reliance.

I look at him for a moment, uncertainly clouding my judgment. Could I trust him? Could I entrust him with the safety of my twins?

“Killian!” Rihanna growls under her breath, her impatience is clearly seen.

“Enough Rihanna!” Killian roars back at her, taking even me by surprise. This was the first time I saw him taking a stand for me.

I walked back into the house, back into his office. He watches me as I take a seat at the other side of his desk. Aiden and Aries followed me inside the office room.

“Slowly, tell me every detail that happened to you when you were kidnapped,” Killian said as Alejandro stood beside him and took a seat on the chair. Rihanna strutted in, her high heels clicking on the wooden floor. Why did she have to be here? I thought that she wouldn't be a threat to my children.

自951%蘭

Chapter 16

“With all due respect, Alpha King, but I would prefer this talk would only be held among those I trust,” I asserted a firmness in my tone. I am not taking any risk here.

“Kiara, how can you talk to me like that... I am the acting Luna...” Rihanna pipes up, her words making me glare at her.

“Isn't that right, Killian?” Rihanna cooed as she casually touched his shoulder. A surge of bile rose in my throat at the sight of her touching my husband. I had to shake off such thoughts; I couldn't afford to let personal feelings cloud my mission. After all, he had chosen her over me, and I needed to accept that reality.

“No, Kiara, you mustn't think like that. Don't forget she was the one he wanted,” I reminded myself sternly. Once I found my children, I planned to take them away from him again. If he had already decided on a future with her, I needed to prepare myself to step away from his pre-planned life where I was not welcomed.

Lost in my thoughts, I felt Aries' hand gently touch mine, a silent reassurance that I needed to be strong.

“Rihanna has worked hard for the pack, Kiara. For the last four years securing the pack's safety. She has the right to attend this. As she too knows many humans who might help us find them...” Killian bluntly stated, shutting down any argument on the matter. I clenched my jaw but accepted the reality fine, she could be here, but I wouldn't let her near my children, not after the stunt she pulled four years ago.

"Start from the beginning without leaving any detail, because every small one matters here," Killian requested, his tone carrying a mix of urgency and determination.

I took a deep breath before recounting the painful details, "They knew that the children were yours, Killian, and it is that damn Rogue Alpha King..." My voice trailed off as I saw his fist tighten in anger.

"That motherfucker..." Aiden growled, mirroring the frustration and rage that simmered within me. My chest tightened at the memories, the ache of missing my children intensifying with every passing hour. Goddess, how I missed them. My heart was breaking even more from their disappearance as the hours went on.

Chapter 47

Kiara's Point of View

Killian had gone to talk to some of his spies who would go into the human city to find anything related to kidnappers. Aiden had already sent some of his men for a search and I was praying to the Moon Goddess that they could find my children as soon as possible.

"Are you $1 sure you want to trust Killian with your children?" A voice behind me breaks my thoughts. I turned to find Aries standing there, and we were in his office room, a temporary sanctuary from the chaos outside while Killian and Aiden conferred with their men.

"I don't know... Aries.. I just need my pups back," I confessed. The uncertainty weighs heavily on my mind. I was caught between my desperation for my children's safety and the complicated dynamics surrounding their rescue. Even my wolf, who had guided me into here, now seemed to have retreated into the shadows.

My attention shifted to Aries's hand, noticing he was carrying a first aid kit. It dawned on me that I needed to change my bandages. He lightly pulled me by my elbow, guiding me towards the couch as he tended to my wounds.

"It's okay I will be with you till we find Ry and Hanna. Do you know how worried I got when Aiden came to the pack? I was thinking the whole time that you're staying with him... I called you but you didn't answer any of my calls. I thought that you decided to leave my pack and go to the one you belong to.." Aries said as he changed the bandages.

"Kiara!" Alejandro calls standing near the office door. "Alpha Eric is asking for you," He said before giving a strange look to Aries who sat stoic in his place. I sighed. I thought I was saved from this awkward situation.

I walked toward his office room. The alpha mansion is huge and even after Killian took the position of the Alpha King he didn't take the office room which belonged to his father. Their relationship sometimes felt a little strange.

I stood in front of the wooden door which was embroidered with a wolf crafted on it. I took a deep breath before knocking. I heard a small come in and I pushed open the door. Alpha Eric does look old. That poison had done a great loss to him.

His eyes rose to me and his/brows knitted in confusion before sighing and shaking his head. I watched as he took the crane which was near his table and walked towards me.

"Kiara!"

"Alpha Eric," I greeted him with a bow.

Chapter 47

"Please take a seat, I know you need it," He said and walked towards the coach and I followed him.

"I had already talked to Aiden and I think I didn't get a chance to talk to you.." He said. before taking a deep breath. "I am sorry for your loss Kiara. Your father and mother were good people to me,"

A small lump started to form in my chest as I found it too difficult to breathe. Tears started to gather in my eyes as my memory went to the screams of my mother and father. I closed my eyes. I needed to be strong. I am not the weak Kiara anymore.

"I think the loss has already happened. Alpha Eric and my mother always used to say put mud on the matter. We shouldn't dwell on the past as it would only scrape the wounds which are yet to be healed," I strongly said. He nodded his head but didn't anything.

"I am taking my leave then," I said but his next sentence stopped me.

"I heard that your children had been kidnapped." He said it made me freeze on the spot. I gulped as Killian's voice echoed in my ears 'Don't tell anyone that they are mine...'

say

I turned to face him holding my breath. I am already in a situation where I am finding everyone suspicious

"Whose are they?"

I returned to the office room to find Killian in a hushed conversation with Aiden, while Aries stood by the side. Their discussion came to an abrupt halt as they noticed my presence. Rihanna was there too, standing closer to Killian, a small smirk playing on her lips. The rush of jealousy surged within me like a volatile volcano, ready to erupt. She always found a way to test my patience.

And somewhere in my mind I knew that it was not only jealousy it was something more... something closer to hatred....

"Each of my alphas has been informed, and they are already dispersed in the human city, ready to report any unusual activity should they find any," Killian informed me as I entered the room. I nodded, the weariness settling in again. I needed to rest.

"Okay, then it's time to leave," I declared, turning my gaze toward Aiden, who was already standing.

"We will head back to our pack. If you hear of anything, let us know immediately," I added, my eyes fixed on Killian.

Chapter 47

"You are leaving?" Killian took a step towards me. "You know I can help... Let me help," he muttered under his breath.

“Stay for one night. If we receive any news during the night, you’ll get it instantly. Otherwise, you won’t get it until the morning, and it will be too late to act on it,” Killian offered, catching me off guard. I hesitated; staying the night was never part of the plan. I never thought I would be back here, let alone spending the night..

I glanced up at Aries and Aiden, both waiting for my decision. Aries spoke up, “If she is staying, then I am also gonna stay,” earning a growl from Killian.

“Don’t worry, Alpha Aries, I welcome every pack, not much like you who chases. away guests from the door,” Killian retorted sarcastically.

“You can have your old rooms; they are still available,” he added.

Things were changing so fast, too fast for my liking and I didn’t really know how I felt about staying here overnight, returning to my old rooms. Knowing she and he shared a Toom.

“Okay..” I nod my head, agreeing only for one night.

“You should go to Aiden. Come back tomorrow morning but staying away from your mate and child was not the right thing to do now,” I said to Aiden.

“I am not leaving you here alone, Kiara.”

“Aiden, I am not alone. I have Aries. I knew he looked reserved and didn’t talk much but he is a good alpha. He took good care of me for these four years,” I reminded Aiden. Het looked hesitant but after convincing him for a long time he finally agreed only to come back the next thing in the morning.

I couldn’t sleep, not without my sweet boy close by. I head downstairs, wanting to know If Aries has found anything important. I find him with his head asleep on the kitchen table, laptop wide open. It was 3 am, he must have been so tired and thought he could push through the night.

I try to utilise my sleepless night as I take his laptop and start to search for anything. That is when a small message pops up on the laptop with only a few words.

Chapter 48

Chapter 48

Kiara's Point of View

I discreetly slipped out of the Alpha's mansion, relieved to find that no one had seen me. Pulling out my phone, I checked the address. It was a location I knew well from my time as the Luna here, as I often had to journey to human cities for medical supplies.

However, the reason the kidnappers had called me to this specific human city was puzzling. The Rogue Alpha King seemed to be adept at crafting intricate strategies to keep me away from his pack.

My instincts screamed that this might be where they were keeping Ry and Hanna. I couldn't afford to keep waiting idly, and the need to take action overwhelmed me.

I followed the navigation system in Killian's car, driving for about an hour until I reached a human industrial estate. A sense of horror crept over me as I realised the familiar surroundings. I had run away from a place like this before, and now I found myself back in another eerily similar one.

I parked the car right outside the abandoned building. Sitting inside, I waited for any sign of movement, but when none appeared, I knew I had to take action. Dawn was approaching, and time was of the essence after an hour-long drive. I couldn't afford to waste any more moments. I needed my pups back in my arms, safe and sound.

Stepping out of the car, I surveyed the area, searching for a way to enter the building. I couldn't shake the thought of whether anyone in the Alpha's house had noticed my absence. Aries might have woken up by now, and the address on the laptop could have caught his attention. The kidnappers wanted me to come alone, and if Aries arrived with Aiden, the chances of finding my children's location would be risky.

From seeing the surroundings it was clear that it is the wolf territory and I am sure that I can get away from this mere issue... I have this feeling that coming here alone was a big mistake because every bit of me told me to return back to the car. I wasn't meant to be here. And worst of all I don't have the alpha's permission to which this territory belongs to be here. Did this pack have my children?

As I searched for a way in, I came upon an unlocked door that needed to be replaced because it was loose and insecure. Surely a holding facility required increased security? As I entered the warehouse, the hairs on the back of my neck crept up.

This was an abandoned building... This was not good. Now I see that coming here alone may not have been the best decision I made tonight.

Empty cartons and broken glass scattered around the floor. I glance up only to find that the window has been busted in. The presence of pebbles, most likely thrown by teens, created an unsettling atmosphere. This place is creepier than the one I was confined in for a week. The lightbulb had not been changed, and part of the roof seemed to be damaged, maybe due to a storm.

Chapter 48

I did not want to be here, but I had to remember that my small children were trying to be brave for me. They must be hoping for me to come and save them. I silently persuade myself to proceed a bit further inside the building. I had to search for them.

"It won't be much longer, my puppies; wait for me, and I will rescue you both. Mummy is going to find you both, I said to myself.

I walked around looking for signs of clues and information about the pack territories I was invading.... I began to go steps that were just as broken down; the entire area needed sewing

Up:

I walked towards a room and opened it, only to discover that it was an office. Many of these places have offices upstairs, away from the packing floor, so possibly some information was stored here....

The room was dark and creepy. I took out my phone from my pants pocket and switched on the torch mode. It gives a nice extra glow of light. This place seems to have been abandoned for many years. Cobwebs and dust piled on the walls and furnishings, giving off a damp air.

I look through the offices, empty! Nobody was here. I head back down the steps into the old pack area. I want to save the remaining battery life of my phone's battery. In the dark, I searched for the light button and turned it on.

My instincts urged me to turn around, as the hairs on the back of my neck sprang up again...

As I did, I yelled, a pair of amber red eyes in the darkness watched me silently. Why wasn't I able to feel it? The furious red seemed intended to scare me away, but I refused to leave... Not until I get what I came for...

"Where are my children?" I asked strongly, trying to keep my hand which was shaking because of the situation I put myself in.. I can't let it find that I was scared.

"Did you bring anyone with you?" A deep hoarse male's voice grunts back at me... A voice which I felt that I heard somewhere but due to the condition I am in I wasn't able to recognize it.

*You said to come alone, so that's what I did," I shouted, my chest rising and falling.

"Just a simple no would have done it!" He growls at me before taking large menacing steps towards me.

I wanted to go since I was feeling weak, but it was too late because before I could ask him where my children were, his hands were forced around my throat.

He lifted me up, and my feet were no longer touching the ground. My nails were pressing more urgently into his hand to get out of his hold which only tightened around my neck..

He drops me to the ground. I can feel something breaking under the impact... A painful scream ripped out of my chest and my skull screamed at me to pass out... Black dots start to dance around my vision.

"Okay I will give you choices to make..." he said as he circled around me. He pulled me by my hair making me look at his amber red eyes....

"Choose your mate or children.." he growled.

"Kill that Alpha King and give your children a chance to live..." Fear raced through me. I was in a vulnerable position and on the verge of passing out. I could feel the blood. from my head wound, which was freely trickling and onto the floor where I was lying.

His one hand broke off the side of my shirt and tried to grab my breast. But before he could I grabbed his hand and blocked it. That's when I heard footsteps racing towards us. Unfortunately, he was not alone. My eyesight became blurry, but I knew I heard a roar and a snarl.

Chapter 49

Killian's Point of View

It was past 12 in the night, and sleep still hadn't knocked on my door yet. The events of the day had been overwhelming, and my mind was a chaotic mess. The revelation that Kiara was alive and seemingly hiding my children from me spun my thoughts into a whirlwind. Why would she do such a thin

I reflected on our past interactions, and besides one mistake where I blamed her pack, I couldn't recall treating her poorly during her time here.

"I have kids, for Moon Goddess's sake. I am the father, and I still don't remember or know a sh it about their existence, I muttered to myself, frustration and confusion bubbling within. The realisation that the child I had met earlier was my son and the girl in the field was my daughter added to the disarray in my mind. My wolf paced like a caged lion, urging me to take action to retrieve them.

Kiara was sleeping in the next room, her presence sensed by my heightened alpha instincts. I reached for a drink to quench my thirst, hoping that it would kickstart my brain into motion. I had decided to keep Lucia's coma condition a secret from Kiara. She was already grappling with so much, and revealing Lucia's situation might only bring more pain to her already fragile human b*dy.

"What are you so busy thinking?" A voice breaks my running thoughts. I cursed as I looked at Rihanna as she entered my guest room which now had become my bedroom in a little to no dress. What the hell is she trying to do today?

"Rihanna, I'm not in the mood right now to entertain you. I'd like to sleep," I replied with a sigh, trying to ward her off. The last thing I needed was for Kiara to see her in my room.

A mischievous smile played on her face as she moved closer to my side of the bed. However, I halted her in her tracks with my next sentence.

“Alone, Rihanna,” I stated firmly, pulling out my t-shirt, my joggers hanging low enough to reveal a hint of my pubic hair. The smile on her face faltered, and I could sense her disappointment. While I respected her, there were moments when her actions pushed me to the edge.

“Why do you let her stay here? Killian don’t you remember how she rejected you...” Rihanna started but a low growl rumbled from my chest.

“Rihanna, though she rejected me. We still are mates as I didn’t accept her rejection and she needed help. She had come to me for the help which I am going to give her,” I said. As I went to grab another drink, talking to Rihanna nowadays always gives me a headache. I missed the past Rihanna who supported me by giving solutions and not her who nowadays creates problems.

“And you believe her that the kids are yours?” She tsked at me making my grip on the glass tighter.

“Killian if the children were yours why would she run away with them? Why would she not come back to you? You have come across her many times and yet she didn’t come. to tell you that she is alive and has your kids?”

“Why would she accept to keep the secrets?” She said and a frown settled on my eyebrows. I don’t want to doubt her dignity but I am sure Kiara would not stoop so low as to give my name to other children...

“Killian she only came because I bet that Alpha Aries did something.. They are a small pack Killian why would that rogue alpha take her children. I bet she was telling you a lie..” She said and another low grumble through my chest.

“And haven’t you seen her intimacy with Alpha Aries? They look close... I mean closer than you and her were together..” And the glass breaking was heard in the room. My wolf was ready to thrust my hand around her n*eck.

A fit of jealousy settled on my chest. I have seen how close she stood with that Alpha. How he was always beside her. And that is wanting me to rile that Alpha away from her.

“Alpha?” one of my warriors on night patrol presses against my mind link.

“What’s wrong?” I instructed them to inform me if they noticed any suspicious behaviour, no matter how insignificant it appeared. We had warriors from another pack on site tonight, so all of the regular regulations were suspended.”

“What?” I yelled which caused Rihanna to shake a bit. I got up from the bed, grabbed my T-shirt and wearing it again.

“Killian! What? What happened now? Where are you going?” Rihanna asked me but I didn’t answer as I rushed out of the bedroom door.

“Alpha King, do you want me to follow her?” Warrior asked.

“No, leave it to me!” I commanded before cutting the mind link. I head downstairs to find Aries asleep on the kitchen table.

“Alejandro I need you to head downstairs right now,” I mind-linked my beta that was when my eyes went to the laptop on the kitchen table. I had to wake him up. Why the hell didn’t he wake up when Kiara made his way out.

“Aries?” I grunted, pushing his shoulder to wake him up from his deep sleep...

Chapter 49

“Wake up,” I slapped the top of his head, that ought to be done on purpose and hard. And that was enough for him to spring into action.

“Where is Kiara?” I asked.

“Upstairs. Sleeping,” he muttered so casually how the hell did he get this Alpha position when he didn’t even know a member of his pack ran away in the middle of the night.

“No just a warrior informed me that she had crossed the pack borders in my car,” I informed him.

“I will contact my men. I made them stay a little away from this pack, maybe they have seen her going,” he said as he checked his jeans pocket to find his phone but cursed he opened his laptop that is when the message popped up.

[COME ALONE ON THIS ADDRESS]

"I think we don't need that... That is an hour away. I'll go and see what I can find out!" I said before taking the car key.

I

got into my sports car, which was fast and would allow me to catch up with her. I zoomed onto the map after entering the address's location code.

Da mn, that is Alpha Dean territory. The wan kers had always caused me problems, but he wouldn't kidnap children, right?

We may have differences but still, he was an honourable alpha. He wouldn't even know that Kiara is alive and why the hell would he kidnap her children?

After an hour of driving. I silently pulled up to an abandoned building. I notice my car parked outside the building and pull up next. I'm not sure how far back I was; I pushed my foot down, but Kiara got a big head start.

This place looks like it would collapse any minute. I entered and this building seems to have been abandoned for a while now. It is clear that Alpha Dean had nothing to do with this building; he is wealthy though some parts of his territory were used by humans and that is why we had conflict. I don't want humans to enter my territory. He likes to do business with them.

Fear gripped over me as I heard screams from inside the building. I curse inside, attempting to find a way in. That agonising shrick sounded like Kiara.

"She is in danger!" my wolf exclaimed, sending a rush of adrenaline through me. I join in on his herding and can hear her brief, gasping breaths.

I followed her shallow sound of breathing and it took me a little to no time to reach her.

I opened the door only to find her pinned on the floor with a man on top of her.

09:59 Sat, 3 Feb

Chapter 49

"You're f ucking dead," I growled angrily at him but it was enough for him to run into the pitch-dark corner of the building.

As much as I wanted to chase that man and ripen his beating heart from his chest. My wolf gives me signals to go to Kiara. She has now become a human and needs me more. right now.

"Kiara!" I hurry towards her and crouch down next to her.

"Fuck why did you come alone here. It is dangerous," I said as I lightly pulled her up, supporting her limp body. I brushed aside her hair as her blood stained my hand.

I saw blood on the floor where her head was. I saw her ripped t-shirt and red anger boiled inside of me thinking that someone trying to touch her enraged us. From someone hurting her and at her for placing herself in another dangerous situation.

"Killian?" she called out my name and again that tickling feeling returned. I supported her head lightly tapping her cheek so she could remain awake. She was becoming more limp by the minute.

Her broken whimpers resonated in the silence of the room as she called out the names of her children. Her head now rested on my chest as she cried as she kept telling me to find them and bring them back to her.

"Kiara I promise I will do anything and bring them back to you," I said.

"Kiara?" I try to shake her gently. Calling her name out but she became pale. Fuck she needed to go to the hospital. Cradling her up I find a way out of the building, my wolf pushing me forward.

'Please hold on Kiara. I am not gonna let you leave me again' I said to myself.

As soon as I found the exit I saw Alpha Dean with his men waiting for me in front of my car. He saw me and smirked. I walked to him.

"Alpha King not that I had to say but as a formality I had to. You are trespassing without my permission lurking around my pack in the middle of the night," he said arrogantly as he folded his hand on his chest. Dumbass! I know this.

"Who is this?" He raised an eyebrow at me, glancing at Kiara in my arms, before noting the blood still flowing from the back of her head.

"Fuck Killian what have you done," Dean asked dropping the formalities. We both were used to knowing each other but that was before he got his pack to indulge with mere humans.

"This time, nothing... She's been attacked and requires immediate medical attention." I

“And you thought I would believe you?”

“I don’t give a da mn..”

“Who is she?” He questioned, brushing some of her hair strands to see her face. Why are all males touching my mate?

Killian’s Point Of View

“That is something new...” Dean said as he scraped his chin, narrowing his eyes at me.

“I thought she was dead..” he added.

“So did 1,” a growl rumbled through my chest. What is his problem? Why is he taking so much interest in my mate and my pack business?

He gives me an odd look for a time. A glance that appeared to be attempting to read me. Now was not the time to talk about my marriage troubles with this man. Kiara urgently needed help.

“Dean if you are done with your interrogation. I have to leave. She needed help,” I growl, my patience is low and this man standing there is making me lose it every second.

“If you want we can take her to my pack hospital. Give me your car key,” Dean said casually, making me knit my brows. Why is he getting so worried about her?

“Killian you don’t have time. She was bleeding a lot. If we don’t hurry to the hospital you might lose her,” He said as he pulled out his hand towards me demanding my car keys. I was contemplating as much as I didn’t want to go with him. This way I can reach the hospital faster. Because going back to the Mad Crest Pack would require more time.

I pulled out my car key, throwing it in his direction as he caught it and opened the backside door. I slowly sat lightly holding her head. My wolf wanted to keep her near mc.

“Bring the Alpha King’s car and follow me to the pack’s hospital. Hurry!” Dean commanded his man who rushed to take my other car. It didn’t take much time as we crossed his pack borders.

The car stopped in front of the hospital and a doctor was already waiting for us. A stretcher was pulled and I laid her down there. As they pushed it to the emergency room.

I don’t want her to get separated from me. My wolf wants her. He wanted to heal her. Dean and I waited in front of the emergency room. I had already called Alejandro and Austin to come to this pack. I needed my man.

“What is she doing there all alone?” Dean asked.

“Like I said someone told her to go there alone in exchange for information,” I repeated the same sentence the third time.

“Killian, you know that place doesn’t belong to me anymore, it belongs to humans who work for me. If they came to know that she was there it could have gotten worse,” He said.

“I thought she was dead. You know... Everyone knows that you found her b*dy,” He lowers his voice to me.

"I too don't know till now Dean. It was just yesterday she came to me,"

"Why?"

"You don't need to know that."

"Alpha King..." The doctor's panicked voice reached my eardrum making me stand up.

"There is a problem. She is not healing. She is bleeding a lot and we need blood transfusion immediately otherwise we would lose her," and it felt like the air had been knocked out of me. She has now become a human and she can't heal quickly like a wolf.

"What?" Dean asked as he looked at me. Confusion etched his face.

"I had to call Aiden," I said, pulling out the phone.

"What is her blood type?" Dean asked from behind me.

"It is O+ve Alpha,"

"I have the same blood type take mine,"

"No, Alpha we require human blood. Otherwise, it would mix with yours and it would. get her to shock," The doctor said.

"We will arrange it fast," They said and started to look for it.

Everything seemed to blur as they rushed here and there to bring the blood for transfusion. I don't remember how many hours had passed. But it felt like years to me. I just got and I was about to lose her. That was when the doctor came out of the room. telling me that she was now safe and I could meet her.

When I stepped into her room, seeing her pale on the hospital bed made me experience a variety of emotions. The most noticeable were regrets. She appears serene and attractive. Why have I never noticed her perfect complexion? Or how naturally long her eyelashes are? Or how plump and rosy her lips are.

'Because you never wanted to, you were so concentrated on hating and blaming her for the things she never did that you never saw anything positive in her, my wolf told me.

I hold her hand in mine. It is so tiny and delicate. I've been doing this a lot. Rubbing her wrist, feeling her pulse, and listening to her steady heartbeat, all to ensure that she was safe and with me. I didn't lose her again.

A knock on the door pulled me out of my thoughts. Seeing Dean standing there.

"I had sent my men to search that entire area but we didn't find anything, not even any smell through which you could trace that attacker," Dean said as he walked next to her watching her attentively. My wolf growls at the close proximity. He didn't like seeing how Dean was so attentive to her.

"And if you don't believe me I can ask your warriors to search the area again to find out if we had missed any clue," I nodded my head. That is what I was thinking. I won't believe this prick. Even if he tries to become a guardian angel I won't be able to trust him.....

"How did she become human?" He asked as he was still attentively watching her. He was about to touch me when I pulled his hand away from her.

"Try to touch her again and you will be dead,"

"Killian, you are in my pack and threatening me?" He laughed.

"I didn't ask you to do me a favour,"

"You didn't answer me,"

"You don't need to know,"

"We will leave as soon as she wakes up and I don't want anyone to know that this incident happened," I ordered him as he raised an eyebrow at my attitude. I was known to be ruthless and bad-tempered. I like those rumours about me.

"Okay but do remember that you're still indebted to me. For saving your ass my friend," He said, making me roll my eyes at him. He saluted me going outside of the room.
